The alleys in the Recreation building—there were twenty-two on one floor—furnished the best facilities for the convention bowling contests that the S. A. F. has ever had. All twenty-two were going full blast Thursday evening, and spectators packed the space behind the bowlers.

The S. A. F. championship prize was won by Herman Knoble, of Cleveland, with a score of 200.

The teams placed in the following order, with their total scores:

Chicago	2,563
Cleveland	2,481
Detroit	2,391
New York	2,351
Buffalo	2,111
Milwaukee	2,022

In the singles the winners ranked in the following order:

C. L. Seybold, Wilkes Barre, Pa.
J. J. Beneke, St. Louis.
Stephen Jones, Norwalk, O.
D. E. Weeks, Ashtabula, O.
F. Holznagle, Detroit.
J. L. Abele, St. Louis.
Victor Bergman, Chicago.
P. Papes, Detroit.
A. Deschley.
C. M. Balluff, Toledo, O.

High men on each of the six teams which competed were H. P. Knoble, Cleveland; C. C. Kirkpatrick, Detroit; A. Zech, Chicago; Chas. Sandiford, Buffalo; Arthur Buchholz, New York; James Matthewson, Milwaukee.

The highest number of pins for three games was scored by the following in order: A. Zech, Chicago; H. P. Knoble, Cleveland; C. C. Kirkpatrick, Detroit; Walter Amling, Chicago.

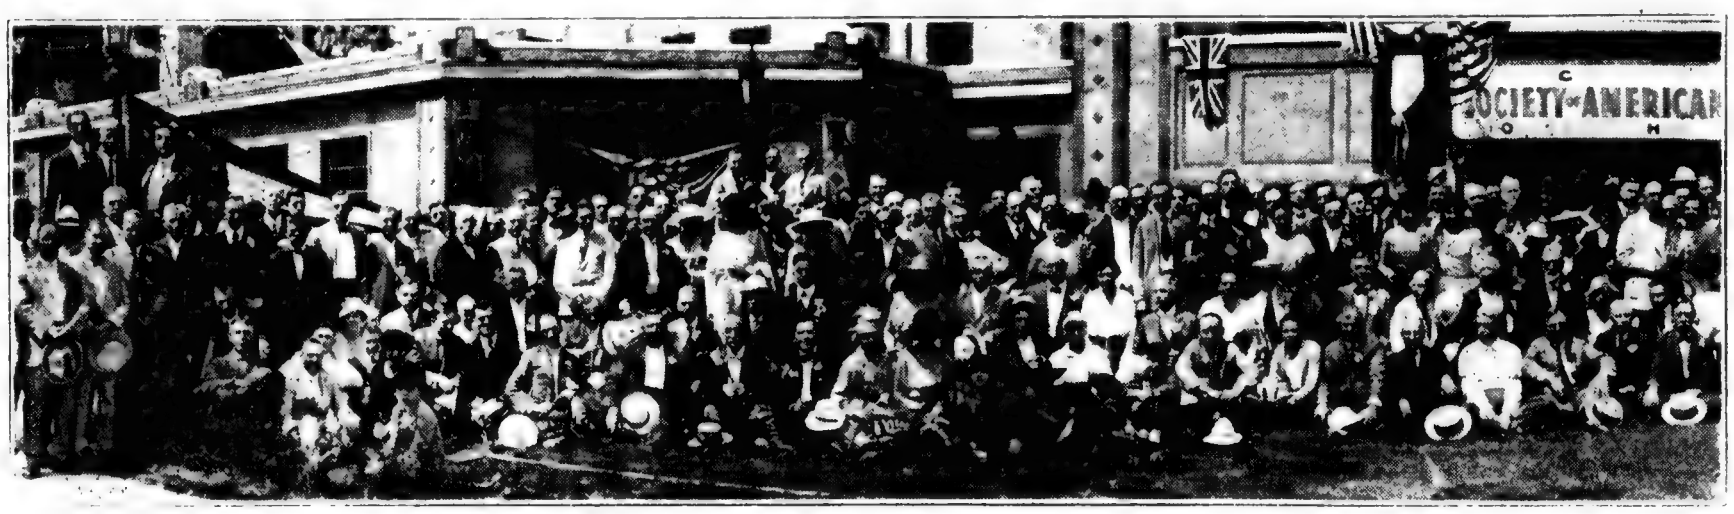
Highest average on the Detroit team was secured in order by C. C. Kirkpatrick, Louis Charvet and Joseph Streit.

For the greatest number of strikes C. C. Kirkpatrick, Detroit, and H. P. Knoble, Cleveland, were tied with fourteen apiece. Peter A. Olsem, Chicago, led in number of spares.

In the singles, F. Holznagle, Detroit, led in number of strikes, and E. A. Fetters, Detroit, in spares.

In the ex-presidents' contest the order ran: Philip Breitmeyer, George Asmus, F. H. Traendly, A. L. Miller and E. G. Hill.

The prize-winners in the ladies' contest ranked in the following order:



Mrs. H. P. Knoble, Cleveland.
Mrs. A. Pochelon, Detroit.
Mrs. Geo. R. Doemling, Detroit.
Mrs. F. H. Traendly, New York.
Mrs. A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis.
Mrs. Friedley.
Mrs. Wm. Warnke, Cleveland.
Mrs. John H. Klang, Detroit.
Mrs. Geo. L. Reichert, Buffalo.
Mrs. M. Bloy, Detroit.

Mrs. Doemling obtained the most strikes and Mrs. Pochelon led on spares.

THOSE PRESENT.

The attendance at the Detroit convention is thought to have surpassed that at any previous convention. Exact comparison cannot be made, for a great many did not register. How many failed to do so one can only guess, but the figure would be large. Additional attendance noted after the list in last week's issue of The Review was completed comprised the following:

Abele, J. L., St. Louis, Mo.
Armstrong, Hugh, Kitchener, Ont.
Acklin, D. S., Toledo, O.
Aswith, J. H., Cedar Falls, Ia.
Baker, J. F., Zanesville, O.
Ballas, Mrs. Bessie, Lansing, Mich.
Balluff, C. M., and wife, Toledo, O.
Barrow, John, Toledo, O.
Bate, Herbert, Newton Falls, O.
Bertoli, H. A., Chicago, Ill.
Bissinger, J. A., and wife, Lansing, Mich.
Blind, E. H., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Officers and Members of the Society of American Florists Grouped in front of the fore the bars were permanently dropped. Mr. Lager believed distinction should have been made between plants whose importation was essential and those not essential, and made a plea for the trade's representation on the board. Mr. Manda held up the board to ridicule because it refused reëntry into the United States of stock he had shipped to Toronto for the convention there the week previous.

Two in Defense.

C. L. Washburn, of Hinsdale, Ill., told of the palms being grown in California and of other stock previously imported which might be grown in this country, and expressed the belief that the quarantine would not be permanently detrimental to the trade's interests.

Declaring the florists of the middle west were in support of the board's action, E. G. Hill expressed approval of the quarantine because it was a measure which acted to the greatest good of the nation by protecting its agricultural products.

Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., affirmed his support of the policy of "America first," if it were necessary for the trade to sacrifice to that end, but voiced also as his belief that the trade should not be sacrificed as guilty of bringing in dangerous pests until definitely proved so, the burden of such proof resting on the board.

After Dr. Marlatt had made a brief reply to the criticisms embodied in the speeches of the society's members, reaffirming his belief in the quarantine but admitting that some corrections might be made after hearings had been held, F. R. Pierson, of Tarrytown, N. Y., expressed his belief that the quarantine was unconstitutional and amounted to confiscation. Then S. A. Anderson, of Buffalo, presented the resolution, which the society straightway adopted, placing it on record in certain and vigorous terms as opposed to the quarantine. The resolution is as follows:

The Resolution.

WHEREAS, on June 1, "Quarantine No. 37 with regulations" became effective, prohibiting further importation of many plants and plant products and raw materials essential to the conduct and expansion of our business, and places burdensome, expensive and unnecessary restrictions on the importation of other important classes of horticultural products, and

WHEREAS, the members of this society require and consider themselves entitled to real constructive regulation and efficient inspection, and are not satisfied with destructive, business wrecking regulations as a substitute, therefore be it

RESOLVED that the Society of American Florists at its annual meeting held in Detroit, Mich., August 19 to 21, attended by 1,500 delegates unanimously protests against these drastic regulations, also the autocratic methods used by the Federal Horticultural Board in promulgating them. And be it further

RESOLVED that this convention respectfully offers the following constructive suggestions:

1. That Quarantine No. 37 with regulations be rescinded, and that in its place such regulations be made which by correct methods of inspection will within reason properly safeguard the country against the invasion of foreign pests and diseases, but which will not unnecessarily interfere with the horticultural interests of the country.
2. That at least two members of the present Federal Horticultural Board of five bureau chiefs be replaced by practical horticulturists, who will not be entirely out of touch with the horticultural trade and its requirements.
3. Or that three practical horticulturists be added to the board's present membership of five.
4. That this reorganized board call hearings at a time when those interested can attend, giving separate hearings to each of these important classifications: (1) orchids; (2) bulbs and roots; (3) nursery stock; (4) roses; (5) dracaena canes and other similar raw materials.

And be it further

RESOLVED that the secretary be requested to send a copy of this resolution to the members of the House Committee on Agriculture.

CLOSE OF THE CONVENTION.

Toss Wins Election.

When the polls closed Friday, the returns were: For president, A. L. Miller, 234; J. F. Sullivan, 187; for vice-president, F. C. W. Brown, 369; for secretary, John Young, 386; for treasurer, J. J. Hess, 371; for directors, H. P. Knoble, 273; Paul F. Klingsporn, 256, and Irwin Bertermann, 256.

To avoid the delay of a new election to decide the tie for director, the two contestants, Paul F. Klingsporn and Irwin Bertermann, agreed to a decision by a tossed coin. R. C. Kerr tossed the half-dollar and it came down in Mr. Klingsporn's favor, whereupon he was announced director of the society by President Ammann.

Closing Business.

With the final session Friday afternoon, when Dr. Marlatt was heard, was joined the morning's business session.

Resolutions to remember sick members of the society by telegram were proposed by J. C. Vaughan. It was decided to "Say It with Flowers," also. The absent ones mentioned were J. D. Carmody, Robert Craig, Geo. A. Kuhl, John N. May and P. O'Mara.

Communications were read, one inviting the S. A. F. to represent American horticulture in an allied conference in Paris, one from the Florists' Club of Washington proposing a "Say It with Flowers" week, and one from the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. advocating a flower day.

John Young stated that the exhibits in the trade's display numbered eighty-five and that floor space had been sold to the value of $5,300.

Silver Service for Ammann.

Charles H. Grakelow wound up his forensic flights before the convention with one of particular brilliancy, presenting President Ammann with a silver table service in expression of the society's gratitude for his faithful and valued services during the year of his office.

Prof. F. L. Mulford, who came from Washington to read a paper for Prof. L. C. Corbett, departed unheard, the paper being filed, since the hour was late when the quarantine discussion ended.

Report on Exhibits.

The judges of the trade's exhibits were lavish in praise, particularly of the supply houses' efforts in staging such excellent displays. The judges of the florists' supplies exhibits, R. C. Kerr, F. C. W. Brown and G. E. M. Stumpp, commended the exhibitors for their initiative and effort and for their fine novelties shown. Certificates of merit were awarded the A. L. Randall Co. and Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago. Honorable mention was given to Wertheimer Bros., New York. The following were highly commended: Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia.; Cohen & Hiller, New York; M. Rice Co., Philadelphia; Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh; Geo. B. Hart, Rochester, N. Y.; Jos. G. Neidinger, Philadelphia; S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia; R. E. Gebhardt Co., Chicago, and C. S. Ford, Philadelphia. Special mention was made of the Bergman-Koropp Co., Chicago.

The judges of the plant section, A. L. Miller, Irwin Bertermann and Chas. H. Grakelow, made the following awards:

C. U. Liggit, of Philadelphia, honorable mention for Nephrolepis Macawii, a sport of Scottii a fast grower, more compact than, and as good a keeper as Scottii; stock is not being disseminated.

George Wittbold Co., Chicago, for extra well grown cyclamen, a cultural certificate.

C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, for a fine display of aucuba, a cultural certificate.

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, highly commended on the collection of fine palms and highly colored crotons.

W. A. Manda, West Orange, N. J., honorable mention on Juniperus Mandaianum, Dracaena Longii and Dahlia Mandaiana.

Jos. Heacock Co., Wyncote, Pa., highly commended on a remarkably clean collection of palms.

Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J., for foliage plants and evergreens.

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y. Special stress is laid on the new fern, Victory, a sport of Teddy, Jr., with a rapid growth and a branching at end of fronds, making it a shapely plant that should be a commercial success, and we recommend it most highly; a bronze medal. Also honorable mention for the display of Tarrytown fern and moss fern.

Arcadia Auditorium, Detroit, on the Afternoon of the Opening Day of the Convention.

Max Schling, of New York, a certificate of merit for three most beautiful, artistic steamer baskets.

Greening Nursery Co., Monroe, Mich., highly commended for display of evergreens.

Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia, honorable mention for a beautiful display of foliage plants.

Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. Y., honorable mention on lilacs.

John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, N. Y., an honorable mention for the new gladiolus, White America.

Additional Exhibits.

In addition to the exhibits described in last week's issue of The Review were the following, staged after the opening day:

Laurel festooning, cut ferns and holly were shown by the Crowl Fern Co., of Millington, Mass., with Manager E. W. Vineca in charge.

J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., had a collection of cyclamens and begonias.

Walter Mott outdistanced the bill of lading on the insecticides from Beacon, N. Y., and so all he had to show were the two famous exposition diplomas of Benjamin Hammond.

W. J. Boas, of Philadelphia, had a representative present, but made no exhibits of boxes.

The Kanawha Mfg. Co., Chicago, did not put up a Bernhard boiler, but had plenty of literature on its table.

Evertite glazing cement and the Oh Boy glazing gun were displayed by the Excello Mfg. Co., Cleveland, O.

On the Stage.

On the stage of the auditorium were the offices of the F. T. D., where M. Bloy presided and proved a most efficient aid to the visitors in general, aside from doing effective campaigning for the organization, and also of the publicity campaign fund, where John H. Pepper took orders for signs, slides and advertising helps, as well as contributions.

LOCAL PREPARATIONS.

The Detroit florists justified their reputation as excellent advertisers in their work in behalf of the convention. The newspapers all had notices of the meeting, some of them quite elaborate. Some of the dailies published editorials welcoming the florists. On the morning of August 18 a page in colors in the Detroit Free Press told about the meeting and exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society and the growth in popularity of the flower. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, was author of the article. Banners bearing announcements of the convention hung at the entrance of the Hotel Statler and of the Arcadia auditorium and across the street where the street cars stopped for the latter place. The souvenir album was an elaborate piece of work, not so large as that at the Chicago convention, but still a mark of Detroit enterprise.

The local florists had coined a slogan in their publicity concerning the convention, "By their flowers ye shall know them; Say It with Flowers," and to that end distributed gladiolus sprays and asters, for the ladies to carry and the men to put in their buttonholes, respectively.

In entertainment the hospitality of Detroit was bounded only by the time limit. Wednesday afternoon was a theater party for the ladies at the Temple theater, and Thursday afternoon an automobile ride was arranged for them. For Wednesday night a moonlight excursion on the steamer Britannia was provided, with music, dancing and buffet supper aboard. The bowling contest was rolled Thursday evening. These definitely programmed events were not enough for Detroit. Invitations for anywhere one wanted to go on Friday were offered, to the Ford plant, to the Hudson plant, or anywhere else.

To the energetic president of the Detroit Florists' Club, J. F. Sullivan, much credit is due for thorough arrangements. The vigilant care of the ex-mayor, Philip Breitmeyer, should also receive its due. The chairmen of the committees were as follows:

Finance—E. A. Fetters
Subscriptions—C. H. Plumb
Hotels and Reception—E. A. Fetters
Decoration—Henry Forster
Badges and Publicity—Wayne McLaughlin.
Press—M. Bloy
Automobiles—A. Pochelon
Refreshments—Philip Breitmeyer
Bowling—Joseph Streit
Music and Entertainments—Walter Taepke

ROSE SOCIETY MEETS.

On the morning of August 21 a meeting was called of the American Rose Society in Arcadia hall, Detroit. President Benjamin Hammond presided at a small gathering. The chief subject of discussion was the dissemination of Dr. Van Fleet's seedling roses at the test gardens at Arlington Farm, Washington, D. C. Since the work is being carried on under the government, it is felt that the distribution of such new varieties as Dr. Van Fleet perfects should be through such channels as will make the benefit general. The executive committee of the society was instructed to confer with the officials of the Department of Agriculture in regard to the matter.

COLLEGE S. A. F. MEETS.

The college section of the S. A. F. met Thursday morning, August 21. Five were present. Prof. H. B. Dorner, of the University of Illinois, was elected president and Prof. Alfred Hottes, of Ohio State University, secretary. Plans were discussed how best to undertake work that would be of practical assistance to florists.

MICHIGAN MEETING PLANNED.

Wednesday afternoon, August 20, Michigan florists gathered in Arcadia hall after the S. A. F. session to organize a Michigan state association. Henry Goetz, of J. B. Goetz Sons, Saginaw, Mich., was elected chairman to effect preparations for a state convention at Grand Rapids in November.

One would almost say more florists came from Chicago by automobile than by train.

The souvenir album followed the example of The Review and made its retailers' advertising pages a Pink Section.

* * * *

The only casualty of the convention occurred to J. C. Steinhauser, of Pittsburg, Kan., who slipped and fell in his bathroom, cutting his head severely, taking his joy out of the convention for a day or so.

* * * *

The stage of the Arcadia auditorium contained an exhibit for the F. T. D., showing progress "Through the Door of the F. T. D. and Electricity," and the office of Secretary Albert Pochelon and his assistant, M. Bloy.

* * * *

A page in colors in the Detroit Free Press for August 18 told about the American Gladiolus Society and the growth in popularity of the flower. Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, wrote the article. Breitmeyer's announced a store display of gladioli in an ad across the bottom of the page.

* * * *

Professor F. L. Mulford brought from Washington, D. C., some Harrisii bulbs grown at the experimental farm at Arlington. They ranged in size from 5-inch to 10-inch. The larger ones were from seed sown August, 1916, and had been forced in 1917 and 1918 and grown outdoors the following year, being dug August 18.

* * * *

Someone picked up four rings in the ladies' wash room at Arcadia auditorium Thursday afternoon, August 21, three of them solitaire diamonds. They were the property of Mrs. Marks, wife of Joseph Marks, the popular traveler for A. Henderson & Co., 166 North Wabash avenue, Chicago, who says she never again will be so careless with her valuables if this paragraph results in their return.

* * * *

The Skinner system on the lawn in front of Arcadia hall was auctioned off at the closing session by Philip Breitmeyer for the benefit of the publicity fund. When the bidding reached $50 the Skinner Irrigation Co. offered to add an additional fifty feet if anyone bid $100. J. J. Hess raised his figure immediately and the hammer fell. The amount is credited to the F. T. D. in the publicity subscriptions.

After looking over the field, growers were of the opinion that the vicinity of Detroit offers an exceptional opportunity for someone to start another large cut flower range. Inspection of the leading greenhouse establishments in comparison with the retail stores and the population lead to the belief that Detroit must produce a smaller percentage of the flowers used there than does any other large city in the country. They claim a million people.

Walter Mott received a telegram on the opening day of the convention informing him he was a grandfather.

* * * *

An established precedent was followed in making John G. Esler judge of election. Mr. Esler openly admits 73 years. He and Dr. Osler are not relations, not even friends.

* * * *

The members of the Ladies' S. A. F. presented Mrs. J. A. Peterson, the retiring president, with a handsome silver nut set in appreciation of her services during the year.

* * * *

The 15,000-pound Kroeschell boiler exhibited on the convention floor was sold to the Cedarlane Farms, at Wooster, O. On the same flat car came another of the same size for Wm. C. Engel, Detroit.

* * * *

Detroit knew there was a florists' convention. Banners bearing the announcement hung in front of the Hotel Statler, across Woodward avenue at Arcadia auditorium and on the front of the convention hall.

* * * *

The boat trip Wednesday night on the Detroit river and Lake St. Clair was further proof of the Detroit florists' ability to provide excellent entertainment. The boat was filled with florists from stem to stern and keel to top deck, and all enjoyed the music, dancing and refreshments heartily.

* * * *

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, of San Francisco, decorated the president's table with America gladioli and Golden Glow mums, shipped from the coast. She likes to make such demonstrations of the traveling qualities of flowers and has by this means done a great deal to build up the shipping trade at San Francisco, which has assumed large proportions.

* * * *

For the F. T. D. the convention resulted in converting George Wienhoeber, of Chicago. Mr. Wienhoeber is one of the retailers who has done a big business along F. T. D. lines without membership in that organization and the announcement that he had joined was greeted with cheers. Max Schling is credited with Mr. Wienhoeber's conversion, which promises benefits for all concerned.

* * * *

In connection with his publicity finance report, George Asmus told of the billboards for which orders are being taken. These are of sheet steel, 7½x20 feet, shipped ready to put up, weighing 250 to 300 pounds, and will emblazon the gold, green and blue sign "Say It with Flowers" for 200 florists who have already ordered them. The cost is $50 f. o. b. Chicago. Names of individual florists may be put just below the sign. Mr. Asmus expects a great demand for them, as the cost is about half of an ordinary billboard, owing to the contract rate in quantity.

ADVERTISING FLOWERS

I THINK next to my love of advertising problems, I love flowers best. From my office window I get a fragrant breeze that blows across from the famous Boston Public Gardens over Boston Common and busy Tremont street. It shakes the geraniums and other flowers that I have as companions during my working hours on the little stretch of roof which a thoughtful architect provided in the offices we occupy, nine stories above the street, for a roof garden. These flowers help me and I like to think that the breeze that comes to me through the window has just left the flowers in our public garden, a garden set in the center of our business section, which Boston will ever retain in its heart of hearts to "Say It with Flowers."

Am I sentimental? I do not think my friends would say so and yet is there a man living who can truthfully say that flowers have no influence upon him?

"Flowers make a brighter business day."

You remember this slogan we carried in our advertising that appeared in color last spring in the magazines. Every man who saw that advertisement was reminded in it of a truth he knew to be so. How many have acted upon it? How many business men have done what we told them would make the tedium of toil less tiresome? I know there have been a great many who acted directly upon our suggestion to put flowers, either cut flowers or growing plants, upon their desks, but the value was in the influence of that advertisement and of the others—taking roses home to the wife, remembering the birthdays, the anniversaries of our friends. This influence has taken root and prompted some sort of action to our advantage and theirs.

To Make People Think.

If you make people think, if you touch a responsive chord, you may not possibly always get them to act immediately just as you directed, but you will get them to act.

For instance, a man reads an alluring automobile advertisement. He is reminded of the delights of motoring by the picture surrounding the car, of rolling country with beach or country club or mansion not too far away, of prosperous, happy people in and about the car, and he says to himself, "Everybody's motoring nowadays. I'm only living once. Why not live right? I'm going to get an automobile."

He may not buy that identical car, but he will buy a car.

All the automobile advertising that is creating a demand for the better things of life is helping every manufacturer of automobiles whose product is made known to the public.

Now, when we advertise flowers we have no competition, as has the automobile manufacturer. When we tell people how one of the country's greatest executives has always a vase of flowers upon his desk, because they make a brighter business day—he says they keep him from being lonely—we do not expect every other business man immediately to do likewise.

We make people think of flowers in a new way.

We know they won't read our advertisement and run out and, instead of saying it with flowers, say it with a toy balloon, a brass band, a marble statue or a hat rack.

We've brought their minds to a point where they will remember to act on their finer feelings, to give them a regard for the finer things of life, and they do not buy flowers for themselves, they buy flowers for someone they are thinking about.

How Advertising Works.

The man who decided after reading the automobile advertisement that he would be a car owner, did not, we can safely say, go right out and buy a car. No; that advertisement only started him.

The next day he changed his mind. The day after he was sure he couldn't afford it, and for several successive days he thought nothing more about it.

Then he saw another automobile advertisement and forgot everything else to go back to the place he had left off.

He surely wanted that car. From wanting it, he grew after reading more and more automobile advertisements to feel that he couldn't live without it. So in time, he bought one.

That is the way all advertising works. Those who have the means to gratify every wish, it needs but little advertising to make act, or where the desire can be gratified without much financial outlay, it can be counted on working fast. But those who can gratify every wish because of financial resources probably have no need of what you have to offer, and in the case of small articles, where the money consideration is small, you must sell in tremendous quantities to make your business pay and so keep on advertising to broaden your field. Then, too, where the money consideration is small, you must remember the service that small article gives is also small and can be dispensed with without much sacrifice and so we must keep building by our advertising more and more desire for the goods we have to sell.

Advertising Flowers.

Flowers come under the head of articles requiring comparatively small outlay. We must therefore keep our advertising going. To popularize anything requires persistent and insistent reiteration, not repetition of the same thought expressed in different ways, but nationalizing a thought by continuous advertising.

We are popularizing rapidly indeed our slogan, "Say It with Flowers." It is fast becoming one of our national sayings, a national institution, and is today without question an asset which you gentlemen possess that is worth hundreds of thousands of dollars.

It is an asset which, unlike any other that I can think of, has the practical ability of being divisible among a large number of business men scattered over our entire country. The example which it sets is one that, once cultivated, grows from one person to another in each community and from one community to another.

Those who read see it from the pages of their favorite magazine; those who travel see that not only has this slogan been acted upon in their community but in the other communities they pass through and is not the business pulling vehicle of one man but of thousands. It is on the florists' delivery automobiles and it is in the newspapers.

More Advertising Needed.

But—yes, there is always a but—we have been too sparing of our ammunition. Our aim has been excellent and results good, but our shots have been too small and far between to really get a good rich reward. Remember that while it is true that in our field we are without competition, we have not, like the automobile people, hundreds of others working on the sentiments of people to stir them to action and buy flowers. That is up to us to do.

I do not, however, want you to think that we have not, even in the short time we have been conducting our national publicity campaign, attracted some outside help. We have. And it has been of much assistance.

We have brought about a use for flowers in pictures. You must have noticed among the magazines you read the tendency of artists to introduce flowers into their copy, magazine covers, advertising displays, illustrations for fiction. All this has helped.

President Wilson advised flowers for the proper celebration of our national glorification of peace day. The mayor of Baltimore in a public proclamation has taken up the thought and it rests with the florist in each community to do his part to keep this praiseworthy movement going.

But we shall be expected to supply more and more material to this growing demand for more news about flowers—more ways to "Say It with Flowers."

The Cost of a National Campaign.

We should go with a few words of greeting to every family in the United States every little while. Perhaps you may think this would require a fortune. What does it cost to advertise? It costs really less to advertise nationally than you gentlemen pay individually in your own community per capita.

The cost of successful advertising on a national scale is not large. For instance, if you were to spend 1 cent per family per year for advertising, your expenditure for the year would be about $220,000. The average total expenditure for advertising space in fifty-six leading magazines is less than one quarter of this sum. In other words, the average national advertiser buys less than $50,000 worth of space per year or less than ¼ cent per family in the United States. The larger user of space spends a million a year in national publications—5 cents per family or 1 cent per person in that family. How does he get it back? He does a business of about $120,000,000 per year, or, on a scale of $5 per family, $1 per person; $50,000 worth of space per year therefore represents the average of all the advertising, taking the smallest and the largest advertisers, the adequate and the inadequate, and altogether it makes quite a striking average. In our advertising, we select such mediums as we know will reach the family from whom, on account of their environment and resources, we can expect a response.

Bulk of Opinion.

But just while we are speaking of response from advertising, remember it is the bulk of opinion that really attains the results. Everybody cannot afford a Packard or a Pierce-Arrow car, but the masses do their share in building up prestige for these cars by what they think of them.

John Jones when he can afford a Pierce-Arrow buys one because he knows the masses will pay tribute to his standing and his judgment when he rides in it. He feels that they know he "has the goods," to use a slang expression.

When your line is established in the life and language of the people—which means all classes, everybody—you have added one more international medium of exchange. Any one of us individually would have the greatest difficulty in making our wants known or ourselves understood, but, due to advertisements Mary Pickford, the Gillette safety razor and Bull Durham all speak the same language in any dialect, in any country and even to those who do not read or write.

We can and intend to make our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," as well established and embedded in the language of the people as is Victrola, Kodak or Ivory soap.

A Good Advertisement.

What is a good advertisement? Should we make it brief and to the point? Most people will tell you so and most people believe they know all about how good advertisements should be written. Or should it tell all in one letter, as the classified boys put it?

"People haven't time to read. Make the ad short and snappy," is what nearly everyone will say. Mail order houses that receive direct orders in answer to their advertisements know what pays and what doesn't, what people read and what they don't read.

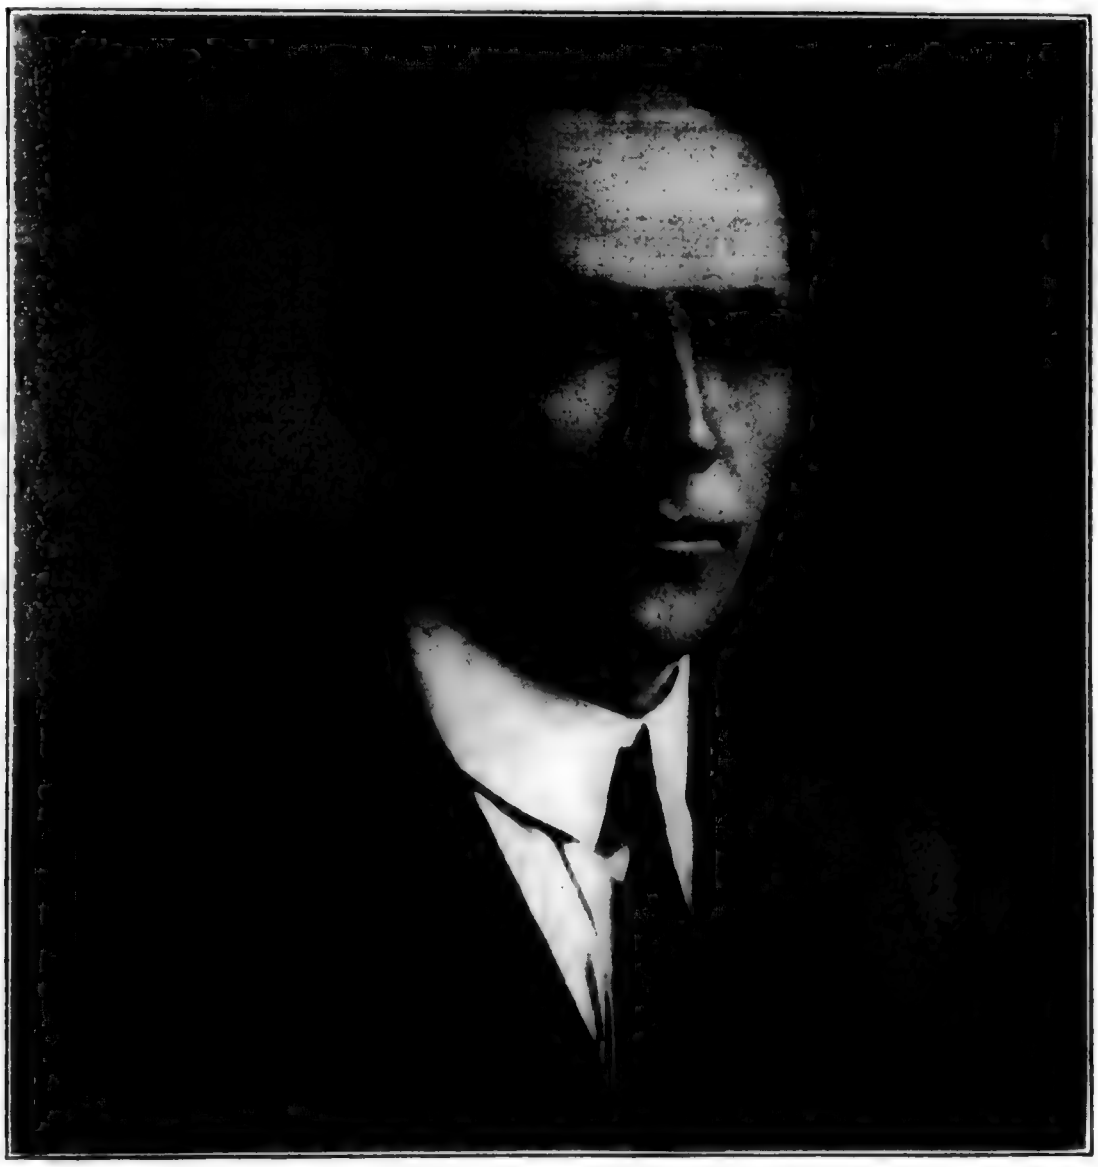
And yet, strangely enough, mail order advertisements are often long. There was one successful advertisement that proved quite profitable that had 2,800 words in it. People must therefore read long ads, or these many-worded ads would not pay.

On the other hand, Cream of Wheat advertisements often have no text at all—just a picture. With no other means of sales promotion, a great business has been created by this pretty picture advertising alone. Another great business uses pictures that are not pretty ones and quite subservient to the text, and makes a tremendous success from that form of advertising.

It doesn't after all matter much, you see, just how you convey your ideas to the public. The public doesn't stop to worry over sentences. It stops, it looks, it listens, and goes on its way. They've got your meaning, no matter how you tell it to them, but they judge you according to your own standard. Are you sincere? Do you mean it? If you are, if you do, the public knows and acts as you want them to. I have seen advertisements written and changed and rewritten, pictures made and remade and made again, and in the end after all the revisions, after all had stirred the broth, the original and first advertisement selected because it was the only one that told the story convincingly.

Those who contribute to this campaign the most will by the nature of all rewards reap the greatest harvest from it. The automobile manufacturer who does not advertise may be said to get some benefit from the advertising of those who boost the game along. But if you look to see who is really making the fortunes, who are reaping the biggest rewards, you will find it is the manufacturers who contribute the most in investment in advertising. Every cent that any member of the S. A. F. has contributed has been invested to return to him ten and a hundred fold. Those who have not contributed will in the end by the nature of things get less than nothing from it. They will be as those on the outside looking in, learning to the full the meaning of these words, "Alas, now it is too late."

Future Prospects.



I am optimistic for the future. We are already able to see light ahead. It is an encouraging sign that business is calmly adjusting itself both for its work in this country and abroad. The nation which brought a world war to a crashing, final finish is not to be discouraged by the task of getting back to its normal peace time pursuits.

In spite of high prices, or of uncertainty as to this or that aspect of the labor situation, the future, as I see it, is full of promise. Should there be anyone here who has any misgivings, I would suggest that he run over in his mind a side of the business aspect he may have overlooked. Just bear in mind that the value of our farm production this year amounts to $25,000,000,000. That figure represents the buying power of American farmers for the coming year. For the year ending last June our foreign trade totaled $10,000,000,000. One-half of the manufactures entering into international trade last year were the product of the shops and factories of the United States.

People Purchasing Freely.

A survey of the country finds people of all classes purchasing freely. One of the best signs of the underlying confidence among business men is to be seen in the number of industrial plants throughout the country that are making large additions to their equipment and otherwise planning for expansion.

For the last three months business men have been going ahead with increasing confidence. In textile, leather, automobile, and other lines, demand already exceeds supply. The starting of new enterprises furnishes additional evidence that the country is rapidly getting into its right stride. The first four months of this year saw the new capital issues of approximately $2,500,000,000. Nor is this increasing activity confined to bare necessities. The public is buying as never before.

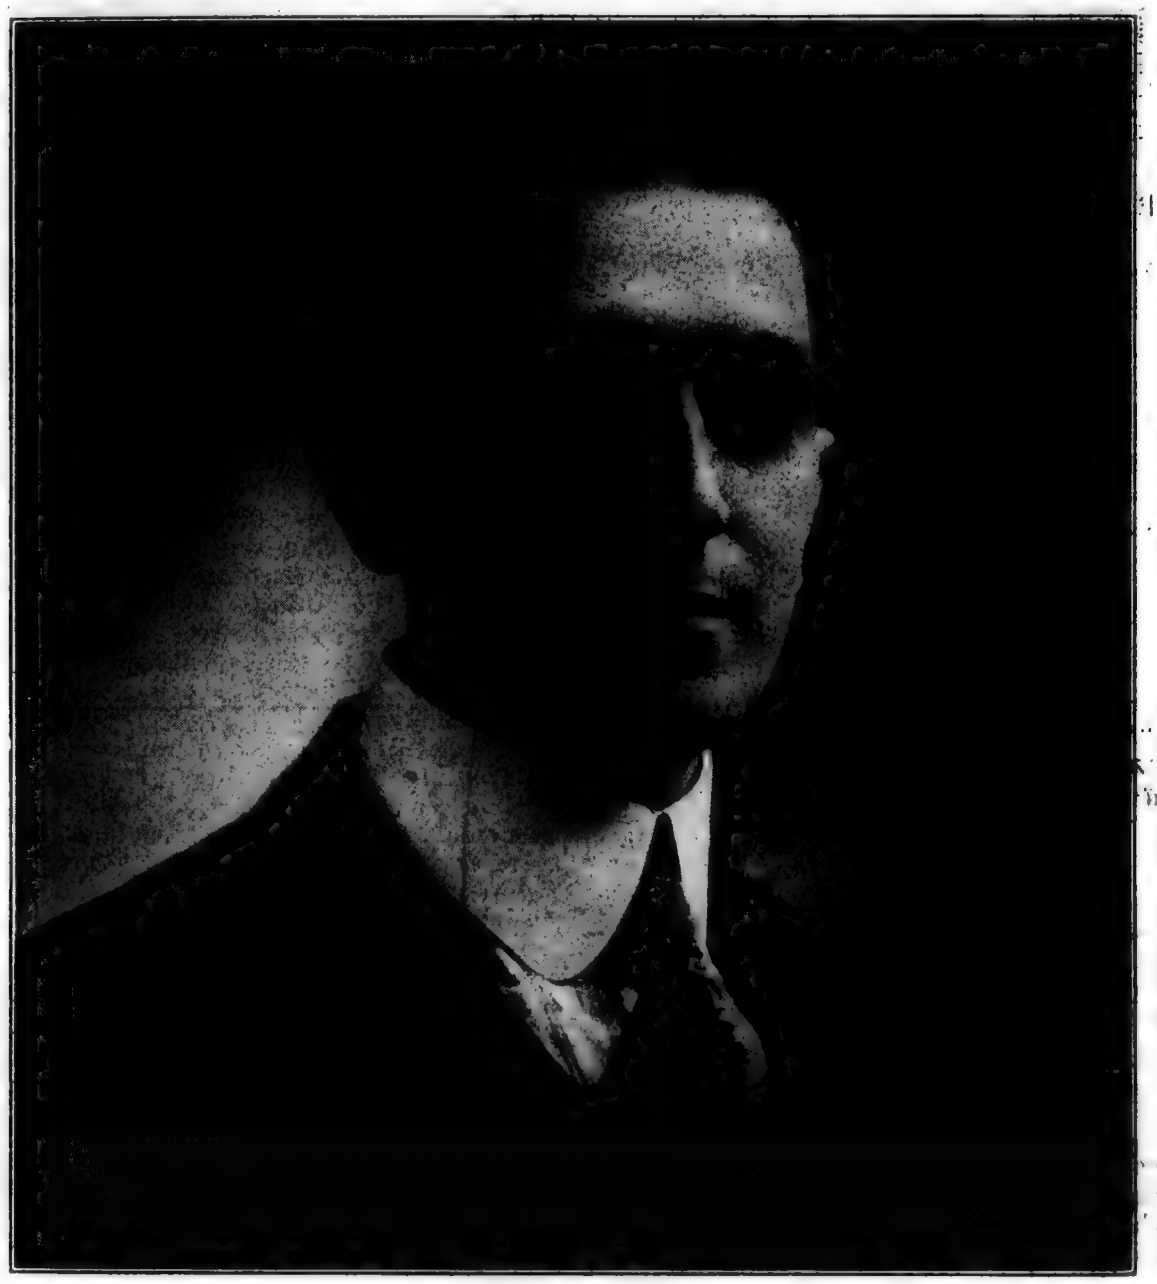
No Cause for Pessimism.

We shall have little cause for pessimism when we fully appreciate how enormous has been the development of our national power. Our manufacturing capacity has been vastly increased and improved by the war. We have built up a great merchant marine. New industries have come into existence and have been solidly established. We hold the greatest accumulation of gold in the world's history. With that as a basis, our reserve banking system is equipped to handle our vast credit problem. Behind all that is our vast wealth of natural resources, which enable us to produce over sixty per cent of the world's supply of cotton, copper, oil, coal, corn, and practically one-half the world's iron, zinc, lead and other metals.



We hear much of the perilous job of financing Europe from people who do not know that that task is being cared for now. Within the last few months upwards of $300,000,000 has been supplied France, Belgium and other countries by banking syndicates, while another $100,000,000 has been supplied by American industrial firms. Most of this money is being spent here in the United States for goods and merchandise. Pittsburgh, Chicago and New York firms joined in a single contract for the rebuilding of the French industrial city of Nancy amounting to $250,000,000, with a prospect that $500,000,000 might be needed. If we look around carefully we see neither reason for fear at our own future, nor any doubt as to our ability to aid Europe with her problems.

High Wages Develop Desires.

One of the most encouraging features of the present business situation is the free buying on the part of the people as a whole of so-called luxuries. The high wages during the last year of the war have developed desires among the masses for the best of everything. Articles previously regarded as too costly for consideration are now sought and paid for without protest. This new spirit suggests opportunity for the florists of America. It opens up immense possibilities for adding new thousands to the growing number who are learning to "Say It with Flowers" on every occasion.

Reference to opportunities brings to my mind a subject which is now recognized as a highly essential part of every program for business expansion, whether the business be the making of pins or the raising or selling of flowers.

I believe that closer coöperation and a greater use should be made of our promotion bureau, which acts as a clearing house for ideas in the florists' trade, where all new schemes for promoting the sale of flowers are collected for the benefit of all the members of the association. In a number of cities throughout the country there are well organized movements for encouraging the use of flowers as window decorations at home and even in office buildings and factories. In others there exist coöperative schemes for the use of flowers as window decorations by shoe stores and department stores. I cite these as suggestions which might be fully developed through the efforts of the association. As I have already said, I believe the coming year will be one of exceptional prosperity. Prophets of evil we shall have with us. You will continue to hear a grumbler here and there predict the early tolling of the funeral knell for business and a cheerful idiot recognizing the future only as a tinkle of bells.

SCHOOL GARDENS REPORT.

[The report of Benjamin Hammond, chairman of the school gardens committee, presented at the S. A. F. convention August 19.]

The Society of American Florists has a potent influence of uplift as a representative organization throughout the nation.

For several years past the committee on school gardens of the S. A. F. has annually put the society in touch with the public schools in places wherever is located a member of this society. There is nothing today of more practical importance to break the high cost of living than the home garden, and if children are interested in this work it will not be long before the fathers take an interest in making home premises both profitable and pretty.

Of all occupations or businesses, no other equals the ability of the florists' to set the example of pretty home premises.

Your committee reached schools in some 782 cities and villages where members of the S. A. F. are located, urging this work and telling the school authorities that the home florist would be glad to lend a helping hand. This work among children is growing.

It has taken hold gradually until, by word from the bureau of industrial research, it is reported that 4,000,000 school children within the United States are directly interested in school gardening at the present time.

The outlook over America is that more attention will be paid steadily to this work of usefulness and beauty than ever before and, now that the great war is past, the good work of the florist will be more highly appreciated, no part more so than that which helps to stimulate the children to make home gardens and keep pretty premises, and a florist in any town is a practical benefit.

PLANT REGISTRATION.

Secretary Young reported that since the last convention of the S. A. F. the following new plants have been registered:

Roses Premier, Victor, Golden Rule and Madame Butterfly, by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., September 3, 1918.

Pyrethrums Rutherford, President Wilson, Sylvia, Pink Beauty, Rosy Morn, Cactus, Dainty Favorite, Columbia, Delight, Rose Pearl and Purity, by Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J., September 3, 1918.

Asparagus Fletcheri, a seedling of A. Sprengeri, by F. W. Fletcher, Auburndale, Mass., and Orlando, Fla., October 25, 1919.

Box Barberry, seedling of Berberis Thunbergii, by the Elm City Nursery Co., Woodmont Nurseries, Inc., New Haven and Woodmont, Conn., November 18, 1919.

Geranium General Pershing, by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., December 30, 1918.

TARIFF AND LEGISLATION

THE last year was one of the most eventful of our organization, I might say in the history of the florists of North America. Numerous regulations bearing on the florists' business in many ways were promulgated and sent out by the Federal Horticultural Board, making it almost impossible to import anything in the florists' or nursery line from foreign countries.

The coal situation during the first three months of our fiscal year was dreary, owing largely to the conflicting errors occurring between the national fuel administration and the local fuel administrators. All of this trouble, with the exception of a few isolated cases, was happily ended November 11 upon the signing of the armistice.

Shipping.

The embargo on shipping caused by the concentration of ships on the Atlantic ocean to transport soldiers and ammunition made it difficult to receive imports from anywhere. This condition was also much relieved when the armistice was signed.

Quarantine No. 37.

The most important work before your committee during the last twelve months, possibly the most important in the history of our society, has been in connection with the plant import prohibition known as Quarantine No. 37 of the Federal Horticultural Board.

Your committee made every effort to secure the rescinding of this measure and the substitution in its place of regulations which would do justice to, and not unnecessarily interfere with, the horticultural interests of the country and which would, by correct methods of inspection, properly and within reason, safeguard the country against an invasion of foreign pests and diseases. However, they were unsuccessful in bringing about these results and the new regulation has been in force since June 1.

Members of your committee attended the public meeting which was called by the Federal Horticultural Board at Washington October 18 and presented concrete facts and figures showing not only the interests involved, but also the impossibility of commercially producing certain lines of plants and bulbs in this country in which not only the entire horticultural trade is commercially interested, but which are demanded by the public and which could not, by the greatest stretch of imagination on the part of the scientific members of the Federal Horticultural Board, be construed as being of any greater menace in carrying pests than hundreds of other non-horticultural subjects, which are not only permitted entry, but which come in even without inspection.

Meeting in Vain.

However, it was evident to everyone at this meeting from the introductory remarks made by the chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board that our efforts would be in vain, that the board was plainly committed to practically complete prohibition, which was substantiated by Quarantine No. 37 being promulgated and officially signed by the Secretary of Agriculture November 18.

Your committee's next move was to secure an interview with the Secretary of Agriculture, and with this in view we prepared a brief setting forth our objections to the ruling. This brief, before being offered to the secretary, was first presented to the executive committee of your association in session at Detroit, January 31, 1919, where it received unanimous approval and the signatures of all the members of your executive committee. Armed with this document, we were prepared to meet the secretary and planned accordingly and February 5 received a hurried call to come to Washington the following morning, presumably to meet the Secretary of Agriculture, but were instead presented to the Federal Horticultural Board, with whom we had a session lasting five hours. We were told that the board held out certain inducements, but they were not such as the committee could accept.

After this second meeting with the Federal Horticultural Board your committee finally, through the efforts of Senator Calder, of New York, and Congressman Bacharach, of New Jersey, March 1, 1919, were presented by Mr. Bacharach to Secretary Houston. At this meeting they also had the support of the legislative committee of the American Association of Nurserymen. Each committee presented its brief to the secretary, who courteously listened to our arguments and promised to give the presentation made in said briefs due consideration.

March 28 Secretary Houston rendered his decision, in which he supported the regulation of the Federal Horticultural Board and on the strength of which Quarantine No. 37, with few minor questionable amendments, is now in force.

Work Not Completed.

Your committee feels that its work in connection with this regulation has not been completed, but before taking further action requests further instructions from this society as a body. If it is your desire that your committee shall make additional efforts to secure satisfactory adjustment of said ruling, a vote to that effect of the society assembled in convention will greatly strengthen its position if it should find it necessary to appear before a congressional committee or any other legal body.

Your committee furthermore requests that, if it is your desire that it continue its efforts to secure changes in this regulation, it be empowered to employ legal advice if it finds it necessary or expedient to do so in the course of its proceedings.

Your committee takes this opportunity to express its appreciation to many in the trade who rendered valuable assistance.

[The report of William F. Gude as chairman of the committee on tariff and legislation, presented at the S. A. F. convention August 19.]

THE SOCIETY'S JOURNAL

THE Journal of the society which your secretary was, at the last convention, directed to publish, has now run through six numbers and has proved to be of great service in the society's work. Not only is it a medium of communication between the executive board and our members, but much matter that would ordinarily entail special printing and distribution is published in its pages, and attracts far greater attention in consequence. It is also of great service in the missionary work necessary in the interests of the society and serves to keep members in touch with the various details of the society's work. It has been a great aid to our publicity campaign, to which large space is devoted each month.

The secretary's office has received many inquiries in regard to the possibility of placing advertisements in the publication. It will be remembered that when the Journal was decided upon, it was expressly stipulated that no advertising was to be accepted. In our application for registration at the postoffice for second-class mailing privileges, it was necessary to declare that its columns were public, to the extent that anyone could place an advertisement therein. Without a doubt, as a medium for trade announcements, the Journal is a publication of high character, but any change of policy in this direction necessarily requires action from the society in convention.

Cost of Printing.

The cost of printing and mailing the Journal per month, for an ordinary issue confined mainly to our membership, is not more than $200 on the average, the actual cost of printing 3,500 copies of a 32-page issue being only $182. The printing of the last volume of proceedings, covering the 1917 convention in New York, alone cost $1,199.75, with a smaller distribution than usual. The 1916 proceedings, a smaller volume, and with printing costs lower, cost, with mailing and postage, $1,579.98. Had we issued a similar volume for 1918 the printing cost, owing to conditions in the paper and printing trade which then existed, and practically still exist, necessarily would have been, approximately, nearly one-third more.

All this expense has been avoided by publishing the proceedings of the last convention in the Journal. In addition, we have saved the cost of printing the minutes of the executive board's meeting, which last year cost $89.75 and additional for mailing, and our official program for the convention, which last year cost, with mailing, $158.

From the report of John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, presented at the Detroit convention, August 19, 1919.

The cost of the Journal for a year, including mailing, editorial services and other expenses, is approximately $3,000. On one or two occasions we have been obliged to run a few pages extra, mainly to expedite publication of the proceedings of the last convention, which were published in serial form and completed in four numbers. We have also, at times, increased the number of copies printed, using the excess in our missionary work and with gratifying success. In addition, the Journal has saved us much in the way of printing costs, as all our announcements, etc., are printed in copies current, and thus distributed among our members practically without cost for mailing and postage. An instance of savings effected is found in the copies distributed at this convention, containing the minutes of the executive board meeting and the official program, at a cost of about $24, against the cost of separate printing and distribution of these, which would have to be estimated at not lower than $300.

Subscriptions of Life Members.

As I have pointed out, there is no advertising income from the columns of the Journal, but it might be mentioned that inasmuch as the post-office department does not concede to us second-class postal rates on copies of the Journal to life members, we have been obliged to set a minimum subscription rate of 50 cents per year and bill such members accordingly, our form of billing having to be passed upon by the postal authorities.

I am pleased to state that many of our life members have cheerfully made remittance of this small amount, some covering a period of years, and those who have not yet done so have neglected through carelessness. With 710 life members, our income from this source should be $355, which may be deducted from the annual cost of the publication. Taken all in all, our Journal is a good investment, and really indispensable.

Washington, D. C.—The Florists' Club of Washington will offer prizes to the grade school children for the best essays on flowers during "Say It with Flowers" week, in October. The club will also award prizes for the best window decorations and interior displays. The judges will be selected from the members of the Window Dressers' Association.

OPPORTUNITY FOR FLOWER PUBLICITY

THE other day, in a conversation with another advertising man, the subject of national publicity in flowers was introduced. This man said to me that he had never before in his life bought so many flowers as in this last year, simply because the impulses to do so had been so frequently aroused in him. In other words, each one of the national advertisements which passed his vision proved to be sufficient reminder to cause him to realize how often it is appropriate to "Say It with Flowers."

In selling almost any of the staple commodities in daily use, the selling appeal must be directed to the reason. Arguments must be put forth demonstrating economy, timeliness and quality. Competition must be met on every hand from those who purvey to many sides of human needs and desires. But in selling flowers the sales resistance powers of most commodities are eliminated. Your appeal is directed to the heart, rather than the head, and various motives of human sentiment are set to work in your favor.

Up to several years ago, and for a number of years before that, I expended a terrific amount of energy in trying to convince many retail florists that it would pay them to advertise. Before starting in on this work sufficient evidence had come to my attention to prove to me beyond any doubt that advertising would on the average pay better for a florist than it would in most other lines of retail business. In reaching this conviction I was perfectly aware of the fact that to the success of many businesses, particularly that of the metropolitan department store, proper advertising is indispensable. So I started out.

Too Many Unbelievers.

Almost the first thing that I discovered was that a certain small proportion of the retail florists' craft professed to believe in advertising. Even this small proportion amounted in the aggregate throughout the country to quite a large number of establishments. But I really believe that there were as many different views on the proper ways to advertise as there were florists who said that they believed in advertising. For the most part, each individual was convinced that his way was the best and that he had sufficient knowledge of the subject to be superior to the assistance of outside talent.

"Yes, I am a great believer in advertising and always advertise for Christmas and Easter." "I believe in keeping my name before the public." "Yes, it pays to advertise." These were typical of the remarks of wisdom which so often greeted my efforts to introduce a serious conference on the subject. Just about the net of what I found was an inclination on the part of these florists to regard advertising as possibly good for the other fellow, but as nothing to be depended upon to help in his business. It was a custom to use advertising now and then, but without much faith. It was, after all was said and done, regarded as something of a bother and not nearly so important as numerous other really minor details of their business organization.

Obviously this was a discouraging attitude to encounter at first. In spite of it, my efforts met with a bit of success and arrangements were made with a florist now and then for the starting of a definite advertising program. Then was encountered a second and more serious phase of the difficulties. Arrangements entered into after much persuasion were thrown aside, as a straw before the wind, on even slight pretexts. In other words, the arrangements would not stay put and it seemed as though most florists could never be persuaded that advertising was a force which should be woven into the fabrics of their businesses. Because the florist was persuaded that he could successfully advertise for Christmas business was apparently no proof that he could also successfully advertise for business on the next following occasion of importance, St. Valentine's day.

A Foresighted Florist.

Even under the most discouraging conditions, persistence often has its reward. Contact was finally made with a florist whose business training was gained from another line of business and his natural endowment gave him a real line of vision. He met sound ideas more than halfway. He admitted the legitimate place of advertising as a business force and welcomed the opportunity to carry out an advertising program on what approached scientific lines. With a definite appropriation determined logically in relation to annual sales volume, advertising was purchased in accordance with a system which clearly aimed for certain definite results.

The experience of this particular florist advertiser has vindicated the ideas which caused me to start upon this enterprise. The experience is one where the apparently impossible has been accomplished. The success established in a few short years takes rank with the numerous amazing small and large successes that belong to the romance of American business.

With a few such men of vision as the one whose experience has been touched upon, I believe that the idea of national floral advertising had its conception. For a number of years prior to the actual start of this movement, men like Henry Penn, of Boston, Herman Knoble, of Cleveland, and George Schulz, of Louisville, had been showing the accomplishments actually possible through intelligent publicity. Serving the public with flowers of quality, ideas of originality and correctness, these men at the same time have been generating, through their advertising, the good-will of the great public which plays no favorites, but turns invariably to those most deserving.

Greater Possibilities.

Though the possibilities of successfully advertising flowers were amply proven, the national floral advertising has made the possibilities infinitely greater. Prior to 1918 each retail florist who advertised was in the position of a pioneer somewhat laboriously blazing his own trail. For but a small portion of the public were accustomed to the use of flowers and the introduction of new

A paper by Payne Jennings, western manager of the Metropolitan Magazine, read before the Society of American Florists at the Detroit convention, July 20, 1919.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

THE last year has been an eventful one for your Washington representative, particularly the first three months of our fiscal year, during which time the coal situation, with which you are all so familiar, created much concern and much work for your Washington representative, owing to the fact that many local fuel administrators did not seem to understand the national orders. The everlasting "work or fight" order, which cropped up all over the United States as a big bugaboo and which frightened many of the florists into closing up their places and many employees into quitting their positions on account of the local draft boards not understanding their orders, also caused your Washington representative much concern. However, be that as it may, the war is now over and the work-or-fight order is obsolete, but the question of adequate help still concerns us much; and as for the coal situation, while there is no embargo now, unless those who have not already ordered their coal for the coming winter get it on the ground at once, they may find themselves without fuel to carry them through the coming winter. This is due to several causes, such as insufficient miners to dig the coal, insufficient railroad facilities to distribute the coal and various other causes. However, I sincerely hope that the coal situation is not so black as it looks, because the last several seasons caused enough anxiety without our having further coal troubles this year.

Chamber of Commerce Convention.

Obedient to a call from the National Chamber of Commerce, President Totty, Secretary Young, George Asmus, chairman of the national flower show committee, and the Washington representative attended the convention of the National Chamber of Commerce, at Atlantic City, December 3 and 4, 1918. The convention was probably the biggest convention of business interests ever held in the United States. There were over 400 business firms represented.

American Rose Society.

The annual meeting of the American Rose Society was held June 2, 1919. The members assembled at 1214 F street, where they were received by the florists of Washington and taken in automobiles for a ride through Potomac park before going to Arlington Farm, where they inspected and judged the rose garden. They then reëntered the automobiles and proceeded to the home of Mrs. Charles J. Bell, Twin Oaks, where they inspected her rose garden and grounds, after which light refreshments were served.

The Coal Situation.

For nearly two years the restrictions on coal on account of the war gave many of our members much concern. The coal situation happily righted itself when the armistice was signed, November 11, and the coal embargo was lifted.

The Shipping Board.

I will not go into details on the shipping proposition, which has been taken care of with the end of the war and the action of the Federal Horticultural Board.

Work-or-Fight Order.

Then the work-or-fight order loomed up to frighten many of the men engaged in the florists' business, causing them to seek other employment and also creating much unrest. This was through the ill-advised draft boards who gave out the information through the country that men in so-called nonessential businesses must either secure essential employment or fight. September 14, 1918, the following letter was sent out and published in all the trade papers, and, notwithstanding these publications, there were a number of florists who left their work or shut down their business altogether in order to secure more essential employment:

Important to All Florists Throughout the United States of America.

Statements have gone abroad that an order issued from General Crowder's office, at Washington, D. C., placed the florists' business on the nonessential list and that florists must seek other occupations. This I have never believed and do not believe now, but the fact is that these statements have gone out and succeeded in disorganizing help to large degree in the florists' business.

In view of the above statements which have come to me from various parts of the United States, I called on General Crowder at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, September 6, and he personally assured me that the florists had not been classed as nonessential, nor was there any idea of doing so.

This statement coming direct from General Crowder should in a measure alleviate the discontent among the florists, especially the heads of departments.

All these rumors were unofficial, so far as the war industries board was concerned.

Most of you will remember on the Thursday of last year's convention there was published what was supposed to be an Associated Press story to the effect that all must secure essential work or fight. I said then that I did not think it was true, but the story had the effect of frightening many men into leaving their employment and going to work for the shipping board and munitions factories, where unskilled labor could earn much higher wages. And from that time until the armistice was signed this monster would not be downed, but would loom up at different times in various places.

The Rose Garden.

The rose garden, which is conducted by the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the American Rose Society, now contains 700 varieties. During the year additions have been made to the extent of three varieties. Twenty-four concerns were requested to contribute plants to the garden, aggregating 161 varieties. Sixteen replies were received and three firms sent plants totaling fifteen and consisting of three varieties.

Fortunately, at the time the executive committee of the American Rose Society visited the garden this year, the weather was propitious and the roses were in better condition than at any previous meeting of the committee. The condition of the garden was creditable, considering the difficulty of securing labor with the limited funds at the disposal of the department.

The work of Dr. Van Fleet in breeding hardy garden types of roses has yielded exceedingly interesting results. There are now in the trial grounds between 3,000 and 4,000 seedlings and among the mature plants which have been selected out of the previous generations of seedlings there are five or six remarkably promising new varieties, which the committee of the Rose Society feels warrant introduction. These plants are not only interesting because of their inflorescence, but because of their foliage and habit of growth. While they have not yet been tested out in a wide geographical way, yet it is believed from the parentage which has contributed to these varieties that they will carry rose planting into regions not now well supplied with hardy sorts which bloom profusely. One of the remarkable plants is a hybrid form of Rosa rugosa. The inflorescence in this hybrid consists of a large number of small perfect roses from three-fourths of an inch to one inch in diameter, borne in clusters of from twelve to twenty roses each. The great number of flowers borne by the plants gives them the appearance of a large bouquet. Another of the new forms carries a flower considerably brighter, somewhat larger, but with markings quite similar to that of American Pillar. As this is a bush type of plant and is floriferous, it promises much. These two sorts are outstanding in their inflorescence, but others are excellent for their class. No attempt is here made to describe the several sorts, but merely to call attention to the fact that an important contribution in the form of new varieties is awaiting introduction and distribution.

Test Garden Only.

The rose garden, which is jointly maintained by the Department of Agriculture and the American Rose Society, is distinctively a test garden. The arrangements entered into between the Department of Agriculture and the society were for the express purpose of determining the adaptability of varieties of roses to the soil and environmental conditions of Washington and for the purpose of affording the department material to study roses in general, as well as for breeding purposes. As a result many have been disappointed in the appearance of the rose garden maintained at Arlington Farm. Those who visit the farm in the future should distinctly understand that the garden is a test garden for the purpose of determining the relative hardiness and adaptability of varieties and not a show garden. Acting upon this viewpoint, the executive committee of the American Rose Society at its annual meeting in June considered the plan of attempting to establish in the parks of Washington a show garden which should be based upon the results of the test work carried on at the Arlington Farm. It is believed that this plan of maintaining test plots and show gardens will yield the largest return to the interested rosarians of the country.

It is a significant fact that a considerable portion of the correspondence growing out of the publication of the rose annual has to do with the report of the committee on the behavior of the varieties of roses in the several field test gardens. Mr. McFarland clearly brought this out in his discussion of the matter and commented upon it as a significant indication of the character of information which appealed to rosarians the country over. The importance, therefore, of the maintenance of the test gardens such as the one at Arlington is clearly indicated by the reaction of the public to the information carried in the rose annual.

Experimental Work.

There will be submitted to the chief of bureau, who we hope will transmit it to the Secretary of Agriculture, an estimate and request for $35,000 to undertake work under glass with the standard florists' crops, including roses and carnations in particular, and for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a small bank of greenhouses to be devoted to investigational work, which may be of benefit to the florists of the country. In addition to this, we are also asking for a small fund to be used in conducting efficiency tests on the heating plants used by the florists throughout the country, in order that we may coöperate with them in an effort to make their fuel consumption more efficient and economical. A preliminary study has been made of the results obtained by the florists' and vegetable forcing industries and we are convinced that changes could be made in many heating plants which would effect important advantage to the owners and operators of these plants. It is this type of work which we feel, in addition to the actual investigational work in connection with florists' industries, could be undertaken by the department with great profit to the industry.

Botanical Gardens.

On the first day of the present session of Congress, Senator Moses introduced a bill to acquire twenty-two additional acres to the botanical gardens in the heart of the city of Washington. This bill is to be taken up as soon as the railroad and labor bills and the league of nations are out of the way. Representative Norman J. Gould, chairman of the library committee, under whose jurisdiction the botanical gardens come, is much in favor of the enlargement of the gardens. Both Senator Moses, chairman of the district committee in the United States Senate, and Congressman Gould, chairman of the library committee in the United States House of Representatives, are deeply interested in the national capital and we expect this project to become a reality before long.

Prosperity.

Last year throughout the length and breadth of the land, as far as I can understand, was a prosperous one for nearly all florists. While in some cases the crops were much curtailed, the addition in price more than made up for poor, indifferent or short crops. The outlook for the coming year is unusually bright and the next twelve months should be the best twelve months that we have ever experienced in our business. I want to take this opportunity to thank all who have helped to make the work of the Washington representative lighter.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR PROPAGATORS

OUR knowledge of plant propagation and the factors limiting it measures our ability to provide plant material for decorative and commercial uses. That such demands are well met you will say is attested by the extensive use of ornamentals and by the great acreage of orchards and vineyards. Yes, we know how to propagate many plants; in fact, we know how to propagate most plants in one or more ways. Even a plant like horse radish, which has entirely lost its power of seed production, is extensively propagated vegetatively. We know many things about plants and plant propagation, but most of our knowledge of plant propagation is empirical and some of it is not true.

For generations we have been propagating plants from cuttings. The most of us think we know that a cutting must callus before it will root and that the root develops from the callus, all of which is not true, but that in no way influences the success in propagating plants from cuttings. It merely indicates one of the great handicaps of our present and past work in horticulture. Plant propagation has developed as an art, has succeeded, has been self-satisfied and many possessing great skill in the art have considered their knowledge as a personal trade secret. This point of view has tended to foster and maintain the apprentice system which prevails in England and on the continent. We have depended upon foreign sources, both for our propagators and for a considerable portion of our plant material. This, I believe, has tended to retard the extension of plant business in this country. It has certainly retarded the development of the art of plant propagation in this country, because investigators have not been induced to work in this field as a result of demands from the industries, as have many other branches of horticulture. It has retarded the introduction and improvement of valuable native plants to which we must look for material to make beautiful wide stretches of our vast land to which the ordinary plants of commerce are not adapted.

Propagation Problems.

These native plants present problems in plant propagation the same as do all other strangers and newcomers. But besides the actual problems of propagation presented by wild plants worthy of introduction, the vast stretches of territory encompassed within the confines of tne United States and the great diversity of soil and climate represented within this domain, present problems of plant adaptation which all students of horticulture recognize, but which, I am sorry to say, have not received the attention they should. The only attempt at a systematic study of the adaptability of the commercial ornamentals to the great plains and to the inter-mountain area of the country, and that is by no means a comprehensive study, is one jointly carried on by the forest service and the Bureau of Plant Industry. While this study is more comprehensive than any heretofore undertaken, it is necessarily confined to forest ranger stations in the national forest and to the limited range of species at the command of the Bureau of Plant Industry. This is one aspect of the problem of plant propagation for this country which should be given more attention. It will take years at best to solve it, but unless it receives systematic attention at the hands of investigators and members of the trade, little worth while can be accomplished. Yet there is no information of greater value to the trade than accurate knowledge regarding the territory to which species and horticultural varieties are adapted. Many costly errors are annually made for lack of this knowledge and every error of this character stands out as a striking monument to our ignorance and marks the interment of many orders for nursery stock. Not only should such adaptability work be encouraged and extended for plants on their own roots, but many varieties can be rendered valuable assets in regions where they do not thrive on their own roots by placing them on congenial adapted roots. In the field of fruit culture there is no more interesting or vital problem. In some regions the whole problem of fruit culture is involved in the adaptability of a stock. The vinifera grape industries of France and of the Pacific coast are striking examples of what stock adaptation means to horticultural industries. Apple culture has been retarded in the northern section of the great plains area because we have no satisfactory hardy roots. The cultivation both of fruits and ornamentals is retarded in the irrigated as well as the semi-arid sections because many plants of value elsewhere are not alkali-resistant.

Plant Congeniality.

Coördinate with the problem of plant and stock adaptability is the problem of congeniality. Here again we are talking in a language without definite meaning.

An address on "Opportunity of the Society of American Florists in Present Day Plant Propagation," prepared for the Detroit convention August 21, 1919, by L. C. Corbett, Horticulturist in Charge, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

for no one knows what congeniality really is. We know that certain varieties and species unite easily and make permanent unions; such plants we say are congenial. We know, too, that certain plants work together with difficulty, that only a small percentage take or that the unions are not good; the plants do not thrive and are as a rule short-lived. Such sorts are not congenial. In every region where adaptability problems require the use of stocks other than their own roots in order to render plants of value, there goes hand in hand with the adaptability this question of congeniality.

Some day our nursery books will contain such entries as this:

Stocks for Vinifera Grapes—Phylloxera resistant stock, Rupestris St. George.
Phylloxera resistants adapted to alkali soils, adobe soils, sandy soils.

This together with a list of varieties carrying the names of the stocks with which they are congenial, as Muscat of Alexandria—congenial with Rupestris St. George, Lenoir, etc.

Soil Adaptability.

If one has adobe soil and wishes to grow Muscat of Alexandria on a resistant root, it will be possible for him to determine that he must contract with his nurseryman to grow for him the desired number of plants in the proper combination of root and scion; that is, a stock congenial with Muscat of Alexandria and, at the same time, adapted to adobe soil. Now that information in regard to such details as I have enumerated is being rapidly gathered, the practices of the trade should be modified to make plants carrying the combined good features available to the trade. This does not mean producing such material on a chance or speculation basis, but rather an order specifying the conditions to be met filed in advance so the plants can be grown to order. To a degree such business methods are an innovation in the plant trade, but I believe the time is not far distant when the nurserymen and plantsmen who desire to be of greatest service to the industries will undertake to grow plants of a special character or combination on a contract basis.

I have said we have drawn our plant propagators chiefly from abroad. This is a natural result of the failure of the apprentice system in this country and the tardy development of vocational institutions. Our colleges giving instruction in agriculture and botany should make it a point to train teachers for the vocational schools, which in turn will instruct the growing generation in the rudiments of the art of plant propagation. We should go one step further and request, as the nurserymen did, that these instructors give special courses in plant propagation. Such a request made in good faith by so representative a body of plantsmen as the membership of the S. A. F. cannot help but produce an effect even greater than the offering of courses of instruction. It will, I am sure, stimulate investigation in this field.

The members of this association can be of great assistance to investigators in this field by putting up to them the problems that are of greatest interest and most pressing. The states, I am sure, will respond as far as their facilities permit in handling local problems and the Department of Agriculture will give aid in the solution of regional and interstate problems for which it has facilities.

Society Can Help.

The society can help in the solution of many of the problems of plant adaptation by encouraging reports on new sorts from members and by a committee to assemble and present such reports. There is a great mass of information in the possession of the membership of this society and an effort should be made to assemble this information for the benefit of the industry, now that this country must depend more upon its own resources than ever before. A man possessing information which will be of value to the trade, but which because of his environment the possessor can not put into practice for the advantage of the trade, should give such information to the press or to educational or investigational institutions, in order that we may offer to the American trade even a greater variety of plant material of equal or better grade than it has heretofore had offered.

The opportunities in the field of plant propagation open to this society, briefly stated, are:

This society can act as a clearing house for the exchange of information on plant propagation among its members.

This society can assemble and publish information relating to the adaptability of plants to various regions and soil types.

This society can through its publicity agents do much to popularize native ornamentals worthy of introduction.

This society can, through coöperation with the educational and investigational institutions of the country, do much towards popularizing the work of instruction as well as shaping the character of investigation in the field of floriculture.

We believe that this is an opportune time for the society to assume a leading roll in such matters, not only because of the advantages that will come to the industry, but because of the satisfaction that will come to the public in general from more and better ornamentals.

The great field is among the owners of small and modest homes, both in the town and in the country, and now is the accepted time. Our motto should be "Right forward into line—March."

INSPECTING THE BULBS

TRADE GETS SURPRISE.

First Effect of Quarantine Order.

Within the last few days the trade has felt the first effects of the working of the new general quarantine, No. 37. Although the order went into effect June 1 and shut off practically all plant imports, it was about the end of the season and the workings of the new regulations are getting their first test on the arrival of Paper Whites from France.

During the last week hundreds of florists have received notice from their state authorities that they must notify those authorities of the arrival of bulb shipments and hold the cases unopened pending inspection or release. Bulbs have not heretofore been inspected on arrival and the notices have caused much surprise among those who have not studied Quarantine 37 and the regulations for its enforcement.

What the Law Requires.

The rules and regulations supplemental to Quarantine 37 require that all bulbs (included under the term "nursery stock") admitted under permit shall carry the certificate of the recognized inspection authorities of the country of origin. The regulations further provide:

Regulation 11. Notice of shipment by permittee.

After entry of the nursery stock and other plants and seeds and before removal from the port of entry for each separate shipment or consignment thereof the permittee shall notify the Secretary of Agriculture in duplicate, on forms provided for that purpose, stating the number of the permit, the date of entry, the port of entry, the customs entry number, name and address of the consignee to whom it is proposed to forward the shipment, the general nature and quantity of the nursery stock and other plants and seeds, the number of cases or other containers included in the shipment, and the case or container numbers and marks, together with the probable date of delivery for and route of transportation. A separate report is required for each ultimate consignee.

At the same time a copy of the notice to the Secretary of Agriculture shall be sent by the permittee to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the state, territory or district to which the nursery stock and other plants and seeds are to be shipped. A list of such inspectors and officers is appended.

Should a consignee named in such a notice ship or deliver for shipment to any other state, territory or district such nursery stock and other plants or seeds before they have been inspected by a duly authorized state, territorial or district inspector or officer, he shall, prior to such shipment, give like notice to the Secretary of Agriculture and to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the state, territory or district to which the nursery stock and other plants and seeds are to be reshipped.

Nursery stock and other plants and seeds which have been once inspected and passed by a duly authorized state, territorial or district inspector or other officer, will be allowed to move interstate without restrictions other than those imposed on the interstate movement of domestic nursery stock.

Regulation 12. Marking a condition of interstate shipment of nursery stock and other plants and seeds not inspected.

No person shall ship or deliver for shipment from one state, territory or district of the United States into any other state, territory or district any imported nursery stock and other plants and seeds, the case, box, package, crate, bale or bundle whereof is not plainly marked so as to show the general nature and quantity of the contents, the name and address of the consignee, and the country and locality where grown, unless and until such imported nursery stock and other plants and seeds have been inspected and passed by the proper official of a state, territory or district of the United States.

This appears to necessitate the inspection of all bulbs which are to be reshipped by the original consignee and to leave it up to the various state inspection authorities as to what they will do in the matter of inspecting bulbs that have arrived at the establishment of the man who will plant them.

What the States Will Do.

When the state authorities received their notices that the Paper Whites had been forwarded from New York most of them sent the consignees notice to report arrival and await further instructions.

P. A. Glenn, chief inspector for Illinois, was at Chicago August 25 to direct first inspections and for conference with jobbers. He is thought to have modified his ideas when he saw the size of the job.

The outcome of the Chicago conference was that Chief Glenn arranged to inspect at Chicago all bulbs destined for Illinois consignees while in the hands of the jobbers, thus obviating the necessity of chasing the shipments all over the state. What he will do with shipments direct from New York, which cannot be inspected at Chicago, was not announced, but probably will depend on what the Chicago inspections show.

It is hoped that a little experience with bulb inspection, a new subject, will show that the foreign certificate can be relied on and the procedure here much simplified.

GLADIOLUS SOCIETY'S AWARDS.

The exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society in conjunction with the S. A. F. convention at Detroit, as indicated in last week's telegraphic report, called forth more competition in the open classes than in the non-commercial classes.

Special award of honorable mention was made to the following: United Bulb Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich., for variety Wisconsin; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., for variety Lily White; J. F. Munsell, Ashtabula, O., for Seedling White No. 1; A. H. Austin Co., Wayland, O., for variety Evelyn Kirtland; Jelle Roos, Milton, Mass., for varieties Mrs. Dr. Norton and Mary Fennell; Grullemans Co., Avon Lake, O., for splendid achievement in hybridizing primulinus; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, on excellent display; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., on trade display.

Awards in the open classes were as follows:

Best collection, twenty varieties, three spikes each, named—C. Zeestraten, Bemus Point, N. Y., first; United Bulb Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich, second.

Twelve varieties, three spikes each, named—Joe Coleman, Ravenna, O., first; C. Zeestraten, second.

Twelve vases, twelve varieties, one spike each—Joe Coleman, first; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., second; Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., honorable mention.

Five vases, five varieties, six spikes each, predominating color yellow—Madison Cooper, first.

Six spikes, white, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Europa; United Bulb Co., second, with Maine.

Six spikes, yellow, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Schwaben; E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., Pittsburgh, second.

Six spikes, pink or blush, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Pink Perfection; J. F. Munsell, Ashtabula, O., second, with Ashtabula.

Six spikes, crimson or red, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Red Emperor; H. E. Meader, second, with Red Amarilla.

Six spikes, blue, purple or lavender, one variety, named—Joe Coleman, first, with Herada; H. E. Meader, second, with Byron L. Smith.

Six spikes, ruffled, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with White Glow.

Best seedling gladiolus never before exhibited, American Gladiolus Society's medals—Joe Coleman, first, silver medal; H. E. Meader, second, bronze medal; J. F. Munsell, honorable mention.

Twelve spikes Myrtle—Madison Cooper, first.

Three spikes Lily White—Madison Cooper, first.

Basket or hamper of fifty spikes arranged for effect—B. Hammond Tracy, first.

Largest and best display, number of varieties, quality and staging considered, Burpee cup—National Bulb Farms, Inc., Benton Harbor, Mich., first, with over fifty varieties.

Twenty-five spikes primulinus hybrids—C. Zeestraten, first.

Basket or vase of twenty-five or fifty spikes primulinus hybrids—C. Zeestraten, first.

Twenty-five spikes Mrs. Watt—H. E. Meader, first.

Six spikes Prince of Wales—Dr. R. W. Schnarr, Kitchener, Ont., first; Madison Cooper, second.

One spike Anna Eberius—Madison Cooper, first; H. E. Meader, second.

Blue varieties, three spikes—C. Zeestraten, first, on Dick; H. E. Meader, second, on Mabel Hubbard; United Bulb Co., third, on Dr. Mark; Madison Cooper, fourth.

Centerpiece of not more than eighteen spikes, grown and arranged by exhibitor—C. Zeestraten, first, with Dominion; H. E. Meader, second.

Display of the Austin originations—Madison Cooper, first, silver medal.

Collection of Kunderd varieties—Madison Cooper, gold medal.

Six spikes Purple Glory—Madison Cooper, first; H. E. Meader, second.

Six spikes Myrtle—Madison Cooper, first; H. E. Meader, second.

Six spikes Mrs. Pendleton—Madison Cooper, first.

Six spikes Summer Beauty—Madison Cooper, first.

Six spikes Orange Glory—Madison Cooper, first.

All the awards in the non-commercial classes went to Madison Cooper except second prize for the largest and best display and the medal for finest quality of bloom, which were taken by the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, of St. Thomas, Ont.

The judges of the open classes were Dr. Frank E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont.; Mrs. A. H. Austin, Wayland, O., and Jelle Roos, Milton, Mass. The judges of the non-commercial classes were J. F. Munsell, Ashtabula, O.; Prof. A. C. Hottes, Columbus, O., and C. Zeestraten, Bemus Point, N. Y.

GARDENERS IN CONVENTION.

National Association at Cleveland.

The 1919 convention of the National Association of Gardeners was held at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., August 26 to 28, about 100 members being present.

In the absence of the Hon. Floyd Waite, the address of welcome was given by Fred C. W. Brown, of the J. M. Gasser Co., in his usual hearty manner. His principal theme was the necessity of coöperation, as evinced by the S. A. F. in its recent convention at Detroit. The response by Ex-President Thomas W. Head, of Lake Forest, Ill., was made in a clever and humorous vein, but paid a deserved compliment to Cleveland gardening.

President Robert Weeks dwelt strongly upon the advisability of granting diplomas to deserving gardeners, believing this will add much weight to their standing. He said: "If we are to make this association a factor for service, we must advertise it more; we must have a fund for publicity, such a fund as the Society of American Florists has established. I bespeak your earnest attention in this convention to the problems of health, to enlisting young men in our profession. If we are to secure the right standard of young men, we must elevate our profession. The great stumbling block seems to be the social standing of a gardener. It is only by elevating the standard of our members that we shall obtain social standing." He went on to speak of Quarantine No. 37. He termed it a serious setback to horticulture and spoke of the absurdities and inconsistencies of the measure, which are well known. He recommended that rigid inspections should be substituted and that the association should go on record in the endeavor to secure modifications of the quarantine.

Association Prosperous.

The treasurer's report as of August 20, 1919, showed a balance in the treasury of $2,387.13. In the secretary's report he announced there are 868 active members. Affiliation of local branches with the national organization was urged.

August 27 an auto trip was made to the estates of F. F. Prentiss and S. H. Severance, through the delightful Heights district, where some of the beautiful homes of Cleveland are located. The annual banquet took place that evening in the ballroom of the Hollenden.

The illustrated lecture by J. Otto Thilow, of Dreer's, on the flora and life of Hawaii, was ably given, illustrated by 125 slides, and received the close attention of a large audience. Mr. Thilow, by the way, mentioned that his next subject will be New Zealand, whither he is bound at an early date.

Apropos of the popularity of the for no one knows what congeniality really is. We know that certain varieties and species unite easily and make permanent unions; such plants we say are congenial. We know, too, that certain plants work together with difficulty, that only a small percentage take or that the unions are not good; the plants do not thrive and are as a rule short-lived. Such sorts are not congenial. In every region where adaptability problems require the use of stocks other than their own roots in order to render plants of value, there goes hand in hand with the adaptability this question of congeniality.

Some day our nursery books will contain such entries as this:

Stocks for Vinifera Grapes—Phylloxera resistant stock, Rupestris St. George.
Phylloxera resistants adapted to alkali soils, adobe soils, sandy soils.

This together with a list of varieties carrying the names of the stocks with which they are congenial, as Muscat of Alexandria—congenial with Rupestris St. George, Lenoir, etc.

Soil Adaptability.

If one has adobe soil and wishes to grow Muscat of Alexandria on a resistant root, it will be possible for him to determine that he must contract with his nurseryman to grow for him the desired number of plants in the proper combination of root and scion; that is, a stock congenial with Muscat of Alexandria and, at the same time, adapted to adobe soil. Now that information in regard to such details as I have enumerated is being rapidly gathered, the practices of the trade should be modified to make plants carrying the combined good features available to the trade. This does not mean producing such material on a chance or speculation basis, but rather an order specifying the conditions to be met filed in advance so the plants can be grown to order. To a degree such business methods are an innovation in the plant trade, but I believe the time is not far distant when the nurserymen and plantsmen who desire to be of greatest service to the industries will undertake to grow plants of a special character or combination on a contract basis.

I have said we have drawn our plant propagators chiefly from abroad. This is a natural result of the failure of the apprentice system in this country and the tardy development of vocational institutions. Our colleges giving instruction in agriculture and botany should make it a point to train teachers for the vocational schools, which in turn will instruct the growing generation in the rudiments of the art of plant propagation. We should go one step further and request, as the nurserymen did, that these instructors give special courses in plant propagation. Such a request made in good faith by so representative a body of plantsmen as the membership of the S. A. F. cannot help but produce an effect even greater than the offering of courses of instruction. It will, I am sure, stimulate investigation in this field.

The members of this association can be of great assistance to investigators in this field by putting up to them the problems that are of greatest interest and most pressing. The states, I am sure, will respond as far as their facilities permit in handling local problems and the Department of Agriculture will give aid in the solution of regional and interstate problems for which it has facilities.

Society Can Help.

The society can help in the solution of many of the problems of plant adaptation by encouraging reports on new sorts from members and by a committee to assemble and present such reports. There is a great mass of information in the possession of the membership of this society and an effort should be made to assemble this information for the benefit of the industry, now that this country must depend more upon its own resources than ever before. A man possessing information which will be of value to the trade, but which because of his environment the possessor can not put into practice for the advantage of the trade, should give such information to the press or to educational or investigational institutions, in order that we may offer to the American trade even a greater variety of plant material of equal or better grade than it has heretofore had offered.

The opportunities in the field of plant propagation open to this society, briefly stated, are:

This society can act as a clearing house for the exchange of information on plant propagation among its members.

This society can assemble and publish information relating to the adaptability of plants to various regions and soil types.

This society can through its publicity agents do much to popularize native or namentals worthy of introduction.

This society can, through coöperation with the educational and investigational institutions of the country, do much towards popularizing the work of instruction as well as shaping the character of investigation in the field of floriculture.

We believe that this is an opportune time for the society to assume a leading roll in such matters, not only because of the advantages that will come to the industry, but because of the satisfaction that will come to the public in general from more and better ornamentals.

The great field is among the owners of small and modest homes, both in the town and in the country, and now is the accepted time. Our motto should be "Right forward into line—March."

INSPECTING THE BULBS

TRADE GETS SURPRISE.

First Effect of Quarantine Order.

Within the last few days the trade has felt the first effects of the working of the new general quarantine, No. 37. Although the order went into effect June 1 and shut off practically all plant imports, it was about the end of the season and the workings of the new regulations are getting their first test on the arrival of Paper Whites from France.

During the last week hundreds of florists have received notice from their state authorities that they must notify those authorities of the arrival of bulb shipments and hold the cases unopened pending inspection or release. Bulbs have not heretofore been inspected on arrival and the notices have caused much surprise among those who have not studied Quarantine 37 and the regulations for its enforcement.

What the Law Requires.

The rules and regulations supplemental to Quarantine 37 require that all bulbs (included under the term "nursery stock") admitted under permit shall carry the certificate of the recognized inspection authorities of the country of origin. The regulations further provide:

Regulation 11. Notice of shipment by permittee.

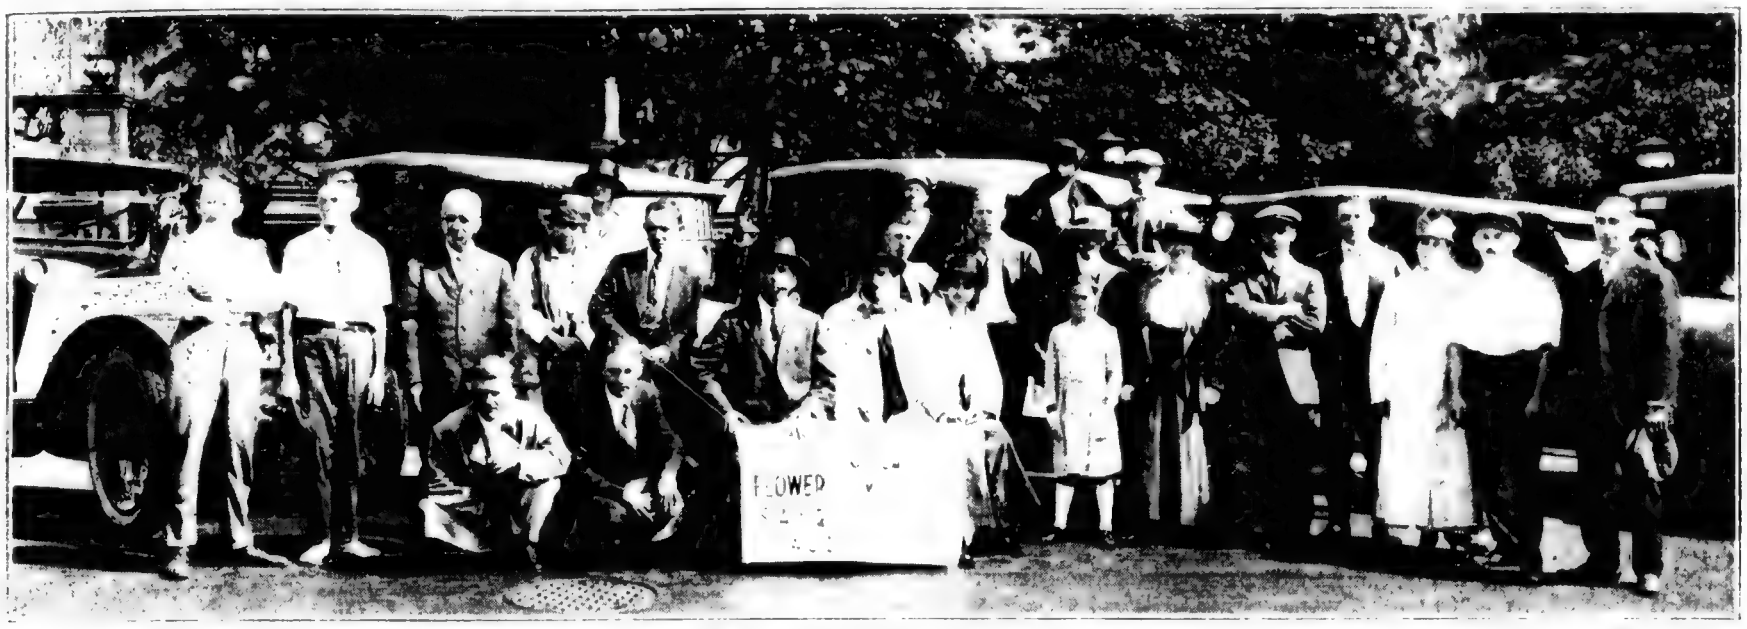
After entry of the nursery stock and other plants and seeds and before removal from the port of entry for each separate shipment or consignment thereof the permittee shall notify the Secretary of Agriculture in duplicate, on forms provided for that purpose, stating the number of the permit, the date of entry, the port of entry, the customs entry number, name and address of the consignee to whom it is proposed to forward the shipment, the general nature and quantity of the nursery stock and other plants and seeds, the number of cases or other containers included in the shipment, and the case or container numbers and marks, together with the probable date of delivery for and route of transportation. A separate report is required for each ultimate consignee.

At the same time a copy of the notice to the Secretary of Agriculture shall be sent by the permittee to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the state, territory or district to which the nursery stock and other plants and seeds are to be shipped. A list of such inspectors and officers is appended.

Should a consignee named in such a notice ship or deliver for shipment to any other state, territory or district such nursery stock and other plants or seeds before they have been inspected by a duly authorized state, territorial or district inspector or officer, he shall, prior to such shipment, give like notices to the Secretary of Agriculture and to the duly authorized inspector or other officer of the state, territory or district to which the nursery stock and other plants and seeds are to be reshipped.

Nursery stock and other plants and seeds which have been once inspected and passed by a duly authorized state, territorial or district inspector or other officer, will be allowed to move interstate without restrictions other than those imposed on the interstate movement of domestic nursery stock.

Regulation 12. Marking a condition of interstate shipment of nursery stock and other plants and seeds not inspected.



No person shall ship or deliver for shipment from one state, territory or district of the United States into any other state, territory or district any imported nursery stock and other plants and seeds, the case, box, package, crate, bale or bundle whereof is not plainly marked so as to show the general nature and quantity of the contents, the name and address of the consignee, and the country and locality where grown, unless and until such imported nursery stock and other plants and seeds have been inspected and passed by the proper official of a state, territory or district of the United States.

This appears to necessitate the inspection of all bulbs which are to be reshipped by the original consignee and to leave it up to the various state inspection authorities as to what they will do in the matter of inspecting bulbs that have arrived at the establishment of the man who will plant them.

What the States Will Do.

When the state authorities received their notices that the Paper Whites had been forwarded from New York most of them sent the consignees notice to report arrival and await further instructions.

P. A. Glenn, chief inspector for Illinois, was at Chicago August 25 to direct first inspections and for conference with jobbers. He is thought to have modified his ideas when he saw the size of the job.

The outcome of the Chicago conference was that Chief Glenn arranged to inspect at Chicago all bulbs destined for Illinois consignees while in the hands of the jobbers, thus obviating the necessity of chasing the shipments all over the state. What he will do with shipments direct from New York, which cannot be inspected at Chicago, was not announced, but probably will depend on what the Chicago inspections show.

It is hoped that a little experience with bulb inspection, a new subject, will show that the foreign certificate can be relied on and the procedure here much simplified.

GLADIOLUS SOCIETY'S AWARDS.

The exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society in conjunction with the S. A. F. convention at Detroit, as indicated in last week's telegraphic report, called forth more competition in the open classes than in the non-commercial classes.

Special award of honorable mention was made to the following: United Bulb Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich., for variety Wisconsin; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., for variety Lily White; J. F. Munsell, Ashtabula, O., for Seedling White No. 1; A. H. Austin Co., Wayland, O., for variety Evelyn Kirtland; Jelle Roos, Milton, Mass., for varieties Mrs. Dr. Norton and Mary Fennell; Grullemans Co., Avon Lake, O., for splendid achievement in hybridizing primulinus; Vaughan's Seed Store, Chicago, on excellent display; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., on trade display.

Awards in the open classes were as follows:

Best collection, twenty varieties, three spikes each, named—C. Zeestraten, Bemus Point, N. Y., first; United Bulb Co., Mt. Clemens, Mich., second.

Twelve varieties, three spikes each, named—Joe Coleman, Ravenna, O., first; C. Zeestraten, second.

Twelve vases, twelve varieties, one spike each—Joe Coleman, first; H. E. Meader, Dover, N. H., second; Madison Cooper, Calcium, N. Y., honorable mention.

Five vases, five varieties, six spikes each, predominating color yellow—Madison Cooper, first.

Six spikes, white, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Europa; United Bulb Co., second, with Maine.

Six spikes, yellow, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Schwaben; E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., Pittsburgh, second.

Six spikes, pink or blush, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Pink Perfection; J. F. Munsell, Ashtabula, O., second, with Ashtabula.

Six spikes, crimson or red, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with Red Emperor; H. E. Meader, second, with Red Amarilla.

Six spikes, blue, purple or lavender, one variety, named—Joe Coleman, first, with Herada; H. E. Meader, second, with Byron L. Smith.

Six spikes, ruffled, one variety, named—Madison Cooper, first, with White Glow.

Best seedling gladiolus never before exhibited, American Gladiolus Society's medals—Joe Coleman, first, silver medal; H. E. Meader, second, bronze medal; J. F. Munsell, honorable mention.

Twelve spikes Myrtle—Madison Cooper, first.

Three spikes Lily White—Madison Cooper, first.

Basket or hamper of fifty spikes arranged for effect—B. Hammond Tracy, first.

Largest and best display, number of varieties, quality and staging considered, Burpee cup—National Bulb Farms, Inc., Benton Harbor, Mich., first, with over fifty varieties.

Twenty-five spikes primulinus hybrids—C. Zeestraten, first.

Basket or vase of twenty-five or fifty spikes primulinus hybrids—C. Zeestraten, first.

Twenty-five spikes Mrs. Watt—H. E. Meader, first.

Six spikes Prince of Wales—Dr. R. W. Schnarr Kitchener, Ont., first; Madison Cooper, second.

One spike Anna Eberius—Madison Cooper, first; H. E. Meader, second.

Blue varieties, three spikes—C. Zeestraten, first, on Dick; H. E. Meader, second, on Mabel Hubbard; United Bulb Co., third, on Dr. Mark; Madison Cooper, fourth.

Centerpiece of not more than eighteen spikes, grown and arranged by exhibitor—C. Zeestraten, first, with Dominion; H. E. Meader, second.

Display of the Austin originations—Madison Cooper, first, silver medal.

Collection of Kunderd varieties—Madison Cooper, gold medal.

Six spikes Purple Glory—Madison Cooper, first; H. E. Meader, second.

Six spikes Myrtle—Madison Cooper, first; H. E. Meader, second.

Six spikes Mrs. Pendleton—Madison Cooper, first.

Six spikes Summer Beauty—Madison Cooper, first.

Six spikes Orange Glory—Madison Cooper, first.

All the awards in the non-commercial classes went to Madison Cooper except second prize for the largest and best display and the medal for finest quality of bloom, which were taken by the St. Thomas Horticultural Society, of St. Thomas, Ont.

The judges of the open classes were Dr. Frank E. Bennett, St. Thomas, Ont.; Mrs. A. H. Austin, Wayland, O., and Jelle Roos, Milton, Mass. The judges of the non-commercial classes were J. F. Munsell, Ashtabula, O.; Prof. A. C. Hottes, Columbus, O., and C. Zeestraten, Bemus Point, N. Y.

GARDENERS IN CONVENTION.

National Association at Cleveland.

The 1919 convention of the National Association of Gardeners was held at the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O., August 26 to 28, about 100 members being present.

Apropos of the popularity of the canna, King Humbert and its yellow companion were recognized as standing preëminent.

Amid the elaborate floral decorations, two tables filled with vases containing forty varieties of Gladiolus primulinus hybrids from the Grullemans Co., of Avon, O., all labeled, attracted much attention.

An especially fine specimen of Rhapis flabelliformis stood in the center of the hotel lobby. It was twelve feet high, a well grown specimen in a 20-inch tub. This was exhibited by Carl Hagenburger, of Mentor, O.

The trade was represented by salesmen from A. Henderson & Co. and Vaughan's Seed Store, of Chicago; Stumpp & Walter Co., New York; Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia; Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh; W. A. Manda and Joseph Manda, South Orange, N. J.; Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.; Thos. Meehan & Son, Dresher, Pa.; Skinner Irrigation Co., Troy, O. W. M.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There is little change to report in market conditions. The demand for flowers is small and the supply more than adequate. Gladioli stand first as a dominating factor. Asters have shortened to an extent that enables them to hold their own. Really good asters are bringing from $2 to $4 per hundred; the latter figure, of course, applies only to fine stock. Gladioli are bringing fair prices, too, if one eliminates the cheap grades, of which there are plenty. Some remarkably fine flowers, with stems approaching four feet in length, are in evidence and bring as much as $1 per dozen. Last week opened with drenching showers and a close atmosphere, which tended to cut down both quality and quantity of outside stock.

The supply of roses is not so heavy as of late; consequently values are firmer and in some lines increased. The demand for them is anything but active. The trade must pay more for choice stock.

Carnations are out of the market. Judging from the demand for field-grown stock, planters are on the short side for their benching requirements.

Longiflorum lilies are not to be had, but there are quantities of rubrum and auratum, which are sluggish in their movement. Their use is chiefly for funeral work, which is light just now, in fact, unusually so. A little lily of the valley is coming in and brings $10 to $15 per hundred, according to quality.

The orchid supply is short and such as do arrive are quickly snapped up. Good cattleyas command as much as $2.50 each and the low grades readily bring 50 cents per flower.

The supply of herbaceous flowers is heavy, mostly of the summer variety, and much remains unsold at the day's close. Dahlias are plentiful, but, as usual, growers are shipping varieties that are useless and consequently do not return express charges.

Various Notes.

Louis Constant, for some time with Wadley & Smythe, sailed last week for his native France. He expects shortly to locate in Morocco, where he will engage in growing flowers for perfumers.

Most of the Detroit delegation have returned. C. H. Totty, with Mrs. and Miss Totty, are returning by motor, their route being through Canada.

The New York Florists' Club bowling team, comprising P. F. Kessler, Wallace R. Pierson, Jos. A. Manda, A. Buchholz and Roman J. Irwin, gained fourth position in the team bowling at Detroit. Mr. Buchholz was high man on the team and bowled in the championship series, winning second place with a score of 191, against 200, bowled by Herman P. Knoble, of Cleveland.

Robert E. Berry, of Lawrenceville, Va., is spending a few days in town on his way home from the convention.

F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, is pleased with the award of a bronze medal for his new fern, Victory, exhibited at the S. A. F. convention.

Notice appears in the obituary column of the death of William Roemer, who had an establishment opposite Woodlawn cemetery. J. H. P.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

In spite of the scarcity of outdoor stock and the lack of bloom under glass, the demand for flowers is keen and insistent. The arrival of the Prince of Wales at Halifax and Quebec has been the cause of a good deal of social activity in those centers and presentations of floral tributes appear to be the order of the day. The funeral of the late Joseph E. Leagram, at Waterloo, was also responsible for a huge design output from most florists throughout Ontario.

A fine cut of Premier has created a great demand for this rose, which with Columbia commands a ready market at $10, $15 and $20 per hundred. Carnations are off crop everywhere and orchids are scarcer than ever. It is left to roses and outdoor flowers to furnish whatever decorative effects are needed during the fortnight of the Canadian national exhibition.

More florists than usual are enjoying a holiday and a rest this summer, after the strenuous four years just passed. A good number attended the S. A. F. convention. With few exceptions the trade appears to be on a firmer footing than ever before, which says a great deal for the pluck of the average florist.

Most of the growers in this neighborhood are planting the same crops as usual for the coming season. The dry weather will have the effect of lessening the quantity of carnation plants available and there is bound to be a shortage of stock throughout the winter.

Various Notes.

T. E. and W. Dale have started the erection of a main heating plant to connect the three sections of their greenhouses. A new coal shed is also being built. Next spring offices, cellars, shipping rooms, etc., will be constructed.

Among recent visitors were C. Knightley, of Kitchener, Ont.; C. J. Hay, of Brockville, Ont.; R. H. Wright, of Aylmer, Que.; Mrs. Lefebvre, of Quebec; James Jack, of Arnprior, Ont.; R. B. Read, of Ottawa, Ont.; R. A. Milford and Miss Milford, of Sherbrooke, Que.; A. R. King, of Winnipeg, Man.; H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, Man.; L. McLaughlin, of L. McLaughlin & Sons, Stellarton, N. S.; O. Omadery, of Havana, Cuba; A. C. Wilshire, H. G. Eddy, E. J. Hayward, T. Hill and S. J. Denson, of Montreal, Que. W. G. P.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Market.

During the last week the market for cut flowers was seasonable, with no salient points noticeable, except that there has been a distinct improvement in the class of stock coming in from the middle west. Gladioli are offered, but the supply is not heavy. For decorations and wreaths and bouquets florists have had to rely largely on the local crop of tuberoses. These are in much favor at present and are going well, the cut from day to day being readily absorbed. Gentians, from Texas, are going fairly well. Asters and dahlias fill in gaps in the trade generally and seem to be rising in favor. The local cut of outdoor roses, such as Pink Cochet, White Killarney and Kaiserin, is at present just about equal to the daily demand. Asparagus plumosus sprays are in short supply.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society was held August 21 in the rooms of the society. The attendance was small, and in the absence of President Charles Eble, who was in attendance at the convention in Detroit, the chair was occupied by Paul Abele. The society went on record as favoring the foundation of a chair of horticulture in the Delgado Trade School, to be erected shortly in New Orleans. E. Foster and Solomon Marx were elected honorary members of the society.

Joseph Goudy, representative of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, was here last week. Chicago has been represented by W. M. Reid, of the A. L. Randall Co.

E. F.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The local market is at this writing heavily stocked with gladioli, the bulk of which are of splendid quality and in their prime. The demand is good, especially in the lighter shades, which are being used chiefly for funeral work. There are only three varieties of flowers arriving in any quantity, gladioli, roses and asters. Other outdoor stock is mostly off bloom for a while. Asters are of fine quality and sell well. The supply does not by any means meet the demand. Roses are of excellent quality. All kinds sell well at summer prices. American Beauties are good, but the demand is quite light. Orchids are in fair supply, with only a small demand. A fair supply of buddleia is arriving and moves well. Good fresh green goods are on the market and sell well.

Florists' Picnic.

For the first time since the beginning of the war the Rochester Florists' Association held a picnic, August 12, at Grand View beach. The committee in charge made preparations for 175 people, but more than 250 turned out for the festivities. Invitations had been sent out to florists throughout western New York and visitors from Lyons, Pittsford, Le Roy, Brockport, Albion and other places accounted for the unexpected crowd.

The contests resulted as follows:

Hundred-yard race for men—Charles Ward, first; R. Havill, second.
Hundred-yard race for women—Miss Helen Wilson, first; Mrs. Herman W. Miller, second.
Hundred-yard race for boys—R. Likly, first; William Teute, second.
Fifty-yard race for small boys—George Blase, first; William Teute, second.
Fifty-yard race for small girls—Ruth O'Dell, first; Eleanor Keller, second.
Three-legged race for men—Robert and George Havill, first; Charles Ward and Charles Meyers, second.
Three-legged race for women—Miss Wilson and Miss Ruth Ingram, first; Miss Alice Teute and Miss Ethel Decleyne, second.
Ball throwing for women—Miss Honey O'Hara, first; Miss Rodell, second.
Clothespin race for women—Mrs. Babst, first; Miss Ruth Ingram, second.
Piece race for boys—Michael Verrarra, first; Brace Verrarra, second.

The picnic ended with a baseball game between the employees of the F. J. Keller store and the employees of the J. M. Keller greenhouse. The greenhouse men won by a score of 13 to 12. George T. Boucher, M. Keller and James Sproat were members of the arrangement committee.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Harold Butler, bookkeeper for the Rochester Floral Co., has left its employ, having recently moved to Buffalo, N. Y. Miss B. Thurston is taking her position. Miss Hattie B. Ellis, of the same firm, is spending two weeks with friends at Sodus Point, N. Y.

Several of the florists are away on vacations, including Mrs. Bashford, who is spending several days in New York and Atlantic City, Herman H. Zahn at Coldwater, N. Y., Mrs. E. Babst at the Thousand islands and Charles Gow in Toronto, Ont.

Miss Kate Harvey, formerly of Rochester and now located in Cleveland, O., is visiting friends in this city.

H. J. H.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

The bulk of the work of the Newark retail florists at the present time is funeral work. Prices are low compared with what they have been. Besides gladioli and asters there is not much in the market. There are a few sweet peas, but they are of poor quality. Roses are good for this time of the year, but open up quickly. Gladioli bring at retail prices $1.50 to $2 per dozen, asters 75 cents to $1.50 per dozen and roses $1.50 up. Premier has proved a good seller. Other good sellers are Russell, Ophelia and Hadley. The latter is in great demand, but is scarce.

Various Notes.

Frank Philips, of Philips Bros., 938 Broad street, has returned from his vacation, and now his brother, Fred, is away. He is spending his vacation at Asbury Park and much of his time he is devoting to casting for big sea fish. Last week he caught an 8-pound striped sea bass, which is several pounds larger than the average.

F. R. Wolfinger, 13 Broad street, is automobiling during his vacation. He motored to Atlantic City and then left for a trip through New Jersey and nearby states.

The annual outing of the Essex County Florists' Club will be held much later than usual this year, the date having been set for September 11. It will be held at Seidler's beach.

BOSTON, MASS.

The Market.

Two flowers remain in undisputed sway in the flower market, namely, the aster and the gladiolus. These were never apparently in greater abundance or of finer quality than now. Clear, sunny weather following severe rain storms has wonderfully improved all outdoor crops. Gladioli are low in price and clearances are made as low as $10 per thousand. Some of the better varieties realize several times this price. Asters sell as low as 25 and 50 cents for remnants of the early varieties, but fine flowers of Crego, Royal, American Branching and Comet make as much as $3 to $4 per hundred. Roses are more plentiful than a week ago, but sell out well at $2 to $12 per hundred. There are few American Beauties and little call for them. Lilium auratum is being used in funeral work and for window decorations. L. speciosum, both white and colored, comes from several growers, but there are exceedingly few longiflorums. Sweet peas are also scarce. Dahlias are of fine quality, but are not good sellers. Among miscellaneous flowers are buddleias, cosmos, larkspur, salpiglossis, centaureas, snapdragons, scabiosa, everlastings and bouvardia.

A small number of Cattleya Harrisoniæ and Miss Williams are the only ones procurable. Valley is practically nil. There is not much call for adiantum and asparagus.

Various Notes.

Wollrath & Sons, of Clematis Brook, have 3,500 fine cyclamens. Many are now in 8-inch pots, have splendid foliage and are a pretty sight. A house of begonias, mostly Melior, looked well and there are splendid batches of poinsettias, Dracæna Massangeana, rubber plants, Boston ferns, peppers, oranges and other plants, all in splendid condition. Chrysanthemums fill one house and carnations, such as Laddie and other fancy kinds, occupy another. The plants are remarkably well done here and the whole place is a great credit to the hard working men in charge.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Elliott and their daughter, Margaret, are enjoying a vacation in the Maine woods. George Elliott is in charge of the Madbury, N. H., range and John runs the Brighton establishment. The splendid Miller, Ophelia, Kaiserin, Hadley and other roses coming in show that both are making good. Years ago Mr. Elliott built the first big house for Asparagus plumosus and earned the sobriquet of "Asparagus King." Long strings were featured here for years. Now the roof of this big house has been removed and one of more modest height will take its place. While strings of asparagus will still be one of Brighton's products, they will not attain the extreme length of former years.

A. M. Beckwith has entered the commercial field at South Sudbury, Mass., and has housed about 15,000 carnations of such varieties as Matchless, Good Cheer, Ward, Benora and Pink Delight. Sudbury is right in the carnation belt, where the soil suits the flower to a nicety, and Mr. Beckwith, I am sure, will make good there. Flowers will be sold at the Coöperative Market.

H. S. Rogers, formerly in the employ of Penn and Hoffman, will open a large and up-to-date flower store September 1 in the Little building, on Boylston street.

The Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. has fine window displays of dahlias and gladioli at the store in Faneuil Hall square.

Robert Cameron left August 28 for his new position as superintendent of Castle Hill Farm, Ipswich, Mass.

Penn's duck farm continues to attract thousands of people daily. No other store windows on Tremont street draw such crowds. A window of Gladiolus Mrs. Watt is effective. Funeral and wedding orders are still in good volume.

William H. Carr is back at his duties as a salesman at the Flower Exchange. Mr. Carr was taken dangerously ill May 1 and his life hung in the balance for some time. He now looks more rugged than ever. His brother, Arthur H. Carr, is enjoying his vacation in the woods of Maine.

Norris F. Comley is shipping in a nice lot of roses at present. Scott Key, Ophelia and Double White Killarney are especially good.

M. Aronsen, who has been away from the flower markets for six months, is now back and active as salesman for E. P. Matsen and others at the Coöperative Market.

Owing to the fact that he will be away in Nova Scotia on a trip in the interests of the Arnold Arboretum, Professor J. G. Jack will be unable to lecture at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, September 16.

Martin Wax was expected back last week from Grand Lake Stream, Me., where he has had some excellent catches of salmon. At the Tremont street store a collection of dahlias in one window will be a daily feature while frost holds off. Business has been exceedingly good this summer.

The scarcity of greenhouse assistants is so acute in this section that several commercial establishments of moderate size will be obliged to close unless they can secure men soon. Italians have been largely employed, but since the close of the war large numbers have gone home and many more are to follow.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, are cutting remarkably handsome Royal asters. The size of flower and length of stem are rarely seen in our local markets.

Eugene N. Fischer, of Jamaica Plain, has a collection of the finest seedling gladioli I have seen for years. All he grows are his own seedlings and he has some beautiful varieties of both gandavensis and primulinus. He secured awards for several varieties in Boston and will exhibit other seedlings August 30. A. E. Fischer, in charge of the McCormick estate at Lake Forest, Ill., is a brother of Eugene.

OBITUARY.

William Roemer.

William Roemer, who for some time had conducted a florists' establishment opposite Woodlawn cemetery, New York, was struck by an automobile August 19 while crossing Webster avenue at Two Hundred and Thirty-third street. He died in the Fordham hospital two hours later. Mr. Roemer was 60 years of age. The driver of the automobile was not arrested, as the police considered the accident unavoidable.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

Two admonitions from the convention: Buy coal today and close on Sunday.

A SURPLUS of field-grown carnation plants is almost like money in the bank.

As the purchasing power of a dollar decreases the incentive to spend it expertly increases.

SCARCITY of experienced help requires more careful planning of work to get the best results with what one has.

THE shrinkage of the wheat surplus of North America to one-half that expected in June is another factor in holding up prices.

IT costs as little as $2.25 to put a full-page advertisement in the hands of each thousand florists through The Review. Is it any wonder so many use it?

THOSE who have made adequate preparations for the season's heavy business will not feel the lack of help as much as those who have not.

RAILROAD strikes no sooner lifted on the Atlantic coast than they struck the Pacific seaboard. Los Angeles and San Francisco are completely tied up.

IF Manetti stocks cost a nickel instead of only a little more than half a cent, it may soon alter the opinion that rose stocks can not be grown in America.

IT is hoped the railroad men will listen to President Wilson's appeal to stay at work. A nation-wide strike would be seriously damaging to the trade at this time.

THE French Society of Chrysanthemum Growers is resuming activities, now that its members have been demobilized, and its journal, The Chrysanthemum, appears once more under the direction of Philippe Rivoire.

THE factories making hand-blown glass are operating only a small part of the time and, as greenhouse sizes are cut only from parts of sheets which will make nothing larger, the output is so small prices have an upward tendency.

NEW ENGLAND growers of gladioli, dahlias, geraniums, chrysanthemums and herbaceous perennials are regarding with much anxiety the Federal Horticultural Board's proposed quarantine of the section on account of the corn borer.

THE DETROIT CONVENTION.

All things considered, the thirty-fifth convention of the S. A. F. is entitled to first rank in the society's annals. It was high-water mark, displacing the Chicago convention of 1912 as the standard by which future conventions, or at least next year's convention, will be measured.

The Detroit convention set a new record for attendance; the circumstances were favorable to attract many for purely business reasons, many who made the trip a vacation and many who combined the two. There must have been close to 1,500 florists and their families from out of town. The increase in the attendance of women was especially notable.

While the trade's display did not number quite so many exhibitors as at Chicago and the space used was considerably smaller, still if you ask any exhibitor he will tell you it was the most successful exhibition on record. He judges by the volume of business done. The change in attitude was remarkable. Whereas in other years the salesmen trailed the buyers, this year they had time only to enter the orders of those who asked to be waited on. The volume of business done probably equals the combined sales at all the conventions in the five years preceding.

In the matter of the business sessions of the society not so much can be said. While they were well handled, brisk, interesting and moderately well attended, the real work of the society is done elsewhere. It would be as well to shorten the program another year; to invite men to address the society and then, for lack of time, not to read the papers they prepare is not just as it should be.

Shortening the convention to three days meets with general approval. There is time in three days for sufficient entertaining, as the Detroit florists proved, and the revival of the old-time fourth-day picnic should not be encouraged. The trade has progressed beyond that point.

BUSINESS IN HIGH GEAR.

Were there not a shortage of labor and materials, business would reach an enormous figure, according to the report of business conditions issued by the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

"Business, according to all reports, is going forward on high gear," the report says. "Jobbers cannot get goods fast enough to supply their retailers and store shelves are depleted. There, however, is a noticeable increase in the tendency to 'wait a while before buying.' This is noted in shoes and clothing especially; but it is not noted in luxury lines. But for labor and material shortage, business would be enormous. Advanced prices make no difference. All classes of workers insist on costly and elegant apparel, regardless of wearing quality, and are reckless of prices.

"Mercantile stocks are admittedly very low. This is partly due to the efforts of jobbers to protect their customers against possible slumps, partly due to the shortage of freight cars and partly to the desire of the people to spend their money as fast as possible. Retail conditions are described as healthy, but there is complaint on account of the large amount of money needed to do business.

"The labor crisis, which was giving general alarm a fortnight ago, appears to have passed. Efforts have been fairly successful to cause labor to assume a more contented attitude and coöperate in increasing production. All these things, taken in conjunction with the vigorous federal campaign against food profiteers, with nation-wide libel seizures of hoarded food supplied by the government, have effected a summary and surprising improvement in the popular frame of mind."

DAYLIGHT SAVING REPEALED.

Overriding the veto of President Wilson, Congress last week repealed the daylight saving law. While the scheme has many adherents in the cities, it has many opponents in the rural districts, and whether the popular voice, as its advocates affirm, is sufficiently strong to cause congressmen to change their mind later is an open question. The trade has, as a whole, found no strong reason to favor or to condemn daylight saving. So the fluctuation of the congressional mind will not bother it in this regard.

EUROPE OPEN AGAIN.

After October 1 passports will be issued to tourists going to France, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Italy and northern Africa, except Egypt, Secretary Lansing has announced. Applications may be sent in before September 15.

This announcement, which removes the ban which has deprived florists of the large and profitable steamer trade they enjoyed before the war, restores the opportunity, if not the business. That it will increase ocean travel is scarcely possible, since the steamship lines have been sold up on accommodations two months ahead for some time past. Vessels for European and South American ports have no cabins unsold for the months of September and October. Ocean travel is strong again; the trade, however, must bring back the voyagers and their friends to the steamer flowers habit.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

There is some difference of opinion as to last week's business, but none at all as to the supply of stock. Apparently last week's demand was limited to flowers for funerals, which resulted in some good days and some poor ones, with some houses busy at times others were doing little. The result is a few houses report better business than a year ago, while more of them say it was about the same as then and one or two admit a falling off. It is about the first time in 1919 that sales have not been considerably ahead of the same period of 1918, but we now approach the time of last year at which business began to boom.

The market has been and is heavily supplied with stock in two lines, with scarcely anything available in other standard items. Roses have been on the increase for several days and there are more than the demand calls for. Three classes of stock are readily identifiable. Most numerous is the short-stemmed, small, soft stuff, the first crops cut from young stock. The supply of this class of roses is much ahead of the requirements, because such stock is of little

We Offer a Large Cut of Fancy Roses

HERE you will find a perfectly satisfactory supply of Premier and Columbia Roses. No better stock ever has been shown on a summer market. Can supply long stems in quantity—excellent stock, sure to please. And a good supply of all the other Roses in the list.

Colored Pond Lilies

Blue, red, yellow, pink, white—an exclusive supply of these wonderful Nymphaeas. Many florists hold the mistaken idea that these flowers are useful only for window decoration, but those who carry them in regular stock find they are good sellers, useful everywhere.

The Better "Glads"

If your Gladioli are getting weak or burned, order from Amling. We have all the finest varieties in quantity.

Beauties in Large Supply

Our Beauty cuts increase each day—and the stems are lengthening. Cut from young plants, this is fine stock. Order some today—you will want more tomorrow.

Giganteum Lilies

They have been selling briskly, but the increased supply enables us to take care of some more customers.

The Greens You Need

It should not be overlooked that Amling's also is headquarters for Greens. Everything. Good. Plenty.

use; most of it has to be sold through street boys. Then there is the stock cut from old plants that have been dried off, rested and recently started up. It is only a grade ahead of the first clip from young plants and at present the supply is fully as large. Finally, there is the stock cut as a second crop from plants benched early in the spring. These roses are good, unusually good for summer. There are stems up to thirty-six inches, with flowers and foliage in proportion, stock which would class as top grade at any time in any market. But there are so many roses of each grade that even the best clean up only occasionally, not daily, as we expect them to. Columbia is far more plentiful than any other variety, with Premier second; for the moment Russell is in eclipse, although it probably is only because growers are resting plants from which they have been cutting heavily for months. Beauties also are in increased supply.

Gladioli have come in so heavily that they have accumulated on wholesalers' tables, but it is said by some that the accumulation is in part due to the public having become satiated; the gladiolus has been used so much this summer that people are fed up and want a change. Of course prices have fallen. Much of the stock is extremely good and deserves to sell well.

A.T. Pyfer & Company

WHOLESALE FLORISTS 164 North Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO

Aside from roses and gladioli there is little that calls for comment. Asters are scarce. There have been so many poor years for asters that not many were grown this summer and the drought brought most of these to an early end. The few good asters coming in sell well. Other outdoor flowers are practically off the market. There are a few Easter lilies and more or less rubrums, but only an occasional lot of auratums. Valley is plentiful when there are no orders and scarce when three or four buyers look for it. Cattleyas are negligible. An occasional half dozen Golden Glow mums is seen, harbinger of autumn.

This is the final week of the vacation season. Nearly everyone is resigned to a dull, waiting market until after Labor day, but we all expect to see things begin to pick up as soon as this now useless holiday is past.

Various Notes.

The commission houses have received, from the Director of Agriculture, the blanks for applying for license under the new law, and for the bond, which each licensee is required to put up. The application is a rather formidable affair, calling for a statement of the dealer's business history and financial standing. Like the law itself, the forms seem to have been drafted to fit conditions on South Water street rather than those in the cut flower market. As affecting this trade, the principal point in the law is the requirement that returns be made to consignees within forty-eight hours. Many growers feel that this would tend toward forced sales and lower prices, but the law provides that any mutually satisfactory arrangement as to time for making returns can be made between consignees and dealers, so it is probable the trade custom of weekly returns will be continued by most of the wholesalers.

feels will be the biggest season of the thirty he has been on Michigan avenue.

Alois Frey and Mrs. Frey are preparing to leave in a few days to make their home in southern California. After having returned early this week from a trip to New York, they now are visiting in Minneapolis. William Beyer, for some years grower for H. C. Wullbrandt, 5315 West Madison street, has taken charge of Mr. Frey's Crown Point establishment and will conduct it for the owner.

After a vacation spent fishing at Wooster, Mich., A. C. Kohlbrand visited A. E. Kunderd's gladiolus fields at Goshen, Ind., and customers at South Bend and Michigan points, returning to his duties with the E. C. Amling Co., August 25.

George Wienhoeber joined the F. T. D. at the Detroit convention.

There is need for a good soil grinder and at the S. A. F. convention Poehlmann Bros. Co., already operating one of their own construction, bought the Kost pulverizer shown by the W. F. Kasting Co.

The A. L. Randall Co., with about 375 employees, has started the publication of a weekly house organ, especially as a means of keeping the men on the road informed as to what goes on at headquarters, but also in the interest of all other employees. No name has been given the pamphlet, but suggestions are invited. Why not call it Randall's Rustler?

Aaron T. Pyfer was 41 years of age August 26.

Frank Oechslin and wife recently returned from a tour of the Yellowstone.

A. J. Zech journeyed from Detroit to Niagara Falls at the close of the convention to give Mrs. Zech her first view of the falls.

Anna Tonner left August 23 for Winona Lake, Ind., where she will spend a vacation of two weeks.

Visitors.

E. D. Burton, manager of the New York office of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., is in town.

W. H. Englehart, president and manager of the Idlewild Greenhouses, Memphis, Tenn., was here this week on his way home from the convention, having made the trip in Eric Johnson's machine. Mr. Englehart is a large buyer on this market and says the approaching season will be the best yet. The summer business at Memphis has broken all records.

D. C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., was in town this week. He has been vacationing at Battle Creek and attended the convention and was on his way home. Like all the southern florists, Mr. Horgan is figuring on a big season. He has almost a monopoly in his territory, Macon being perhaps the largest city in America with only one fully equipped florist.

Harry Papworth, the widely known New Orleans florist, came to Chicago after the convention, his first visit in a long time. He has a little idea in line with modern tendencies. It is his notion that if all retail florists made a small charge for the green which goes with almost every sale, the public would not object and the average store would save a tidy sum for other uses, better wages for the workers, for instance. Many stores pay $5 to $10 a day in the season for the green they give away.

C. C. Wakeling and Mrs. Wakeling, of Eldora, Ia., were Chicago visitors this week. Mr. Wakeling has just returned from France, having served three years in the Canadian army.

P. A. Glenn, chief inspector of nursery stock for the state, was here from Urbana, August 25, in conference with R. B. Howe, of the W. W. Barnard Co., over the new requirements regarding the inspection of bulbs. Those interested in the matter will find further information on another page of this issue of The Review.

There were a great number of visitors in the market last week, many on their way home from the convention. Among them were W. Westgate, Houston, Tex.; Otto Rice and wife, Sapulpa, Okla.; J. C. Steinhauser, Pittsburg, Kan.; R. Lutey, Ironwood, Mich.; Mrs. Maude McGovern, Winnipeg, Can.; H. Kusik, Kansas City, Mo.; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; A. R. King, Winnipeg, Can.; R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; F. L. Washburn and wife, Bloomington, Ill., and C. E. Gullett, Lincoln, Ill.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The market took a jump the early part of last week, owing to several large funerals, which kept some of the retail stores busy to get stock of the quality they required. Of course there was plenty of stock on the market, but not all of it by any means would answer to fill the orders for the above-mentioned funerals. Good white and pink gladioli were at a premium, as were good asters. These are being used principally for sprays. Roses were out of the question, as in most cases they were not fit for fine spray work. Some of the sprays of gladioli were certainly fine examples of the florists' art, as were also some wreaths of purple and white, and pink and white asters. While many roses were used, they were made up into designs. In spite of this extra demand, at no time were the commission houses cleaned up, and, as I write this, it looks as if the street men would have their innings again Saturday.

Various Notes.

Samuel Feast & Sons had the largest share of the work for the funeral of Charles Von Hollen Kalkman, an officer of the Consolidated Coal Co., who died in New York. His body was brought to Baltimore for burial at Sykesville, as the headquarters and home office of the company are in this city, and most of its members reside here. Aside from this, Samuel Feast & Sons had a large business, principally from New York, through the F. T. D. Mrs. Fannie Hill was on her vacation, which she spent this year at Asbury Park, leaving the burden of the work on Gilbert Daily and a short staff of assistants. However, Gilbert Daily can be depended upon in any emergency.

Another large funeral from a florist's standpoint was that of Mrs. Dr. MacGill, who had spent the better part of her eighty-five years of life at her home in Catonsville. Her home being adjacent to the range of John Cook, and many of Mrs. McGill's friends being Mr. Cook's customers, most of this work went to him. A pall of purple asters for the immediate family was one of the finest pieces of work seen in Baltimore for some time. It took five trucks to deliver the Cook orders for this funeral.

One of the best white roses for summer blooming I have ever seen is Mrs. John Cook. A vase of these recently shown me surpasses anything on the market at the present time. The blooms are double, on good stiff stems, pure white, and a fine keeper. It will be on the market in 1920. A. N. Pierson will bring it out.

The next meeting of the Florists' Club will be held in the Royal Arcanum building, September 8. This will be one of the most important meetings of the year. At this meeting new officers for the ensuing year will be nominated for the election at the October meeting. If any member of the club has anything in bloom of which he feels proud, the exhibition committee will be glad to have him bring it to the meeting. There should be some fine dahlias about this time.

One of the most optimistic florists in Baltimore over the outlook for business is William F. Keys, Jr. He is making preparations for the largest business in his history. He has recently opened a branch store at 1731 Harford avenue. Both this and the original store at 1520 East Chase street are in fine residential sections of the city. One of Mr. Keys' best ventures is a membership in the F. T. D. and an advertisement in the Pink section of The Review. Mr. Keys told me the out-of-town business he had done was indeed surprising.

On a recent visit to the dahlia farm of R. Vincent, Jr., I was surprised to see the damage done growing crops, especially dahlias. Wherever the ground was low and the water had a chance to stand, in many instances the plants were ruined. R. A. Vincent took a great deal of pride in showing me a block of houses devoted to ferns. This is rather a new department with this firm, that is, the growing of such quantities, but "Rich" has demonstrated that he can grow ferns as well as geraniums. He had Boston, Scottii and Whitmanii as fine as I have ever seen them.

Robert Halliday, who has been ill at his home on Woodburn avenue, Govans, for the last four months, is still confined to the house, but the last reports of him from Robert L. Graham were that he was much improved. Mr. Graham told me he had never seen Bob look better. Everyone hopes he will soon be back on the job, because a good fellow like him is greatly missed.

One of the most serious cases which have come before the Baltimore Traffic Court in a long time was that of Anthony F. Eilers, a salesman for a well known Philadelphia seed house. Mr. Eilers was in Washington and August 17 started home in his machine to catch the train from Philadelphia to Detroit in order to be at the opening session of the S. A. F. convention. When on Washington boulevard, near this city, he collided with two automobiles. He was charged with failing to have his operator's card and registration certificate and was fined $5 for each offense. For reckless driving he was fined $50, but the more serious charge of failing to stop and render aid cost him $100 and thirty days in jail—a total fine of $160 and thirty days in jail. His counsel took an appeal and the case will be heard in the Criminal court. Tate.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business last week was about as usual at this time of the year, quite dull except for funeral work.

Several good rains during the week brightened up outdoor flowers; the rains were badly needed.

The usual summer supply is coming in daily, with plenty of it for the demand. There are plenty of roses, but in these only few are of the fancy grades. Carnations were scarce, but a large consignment of asters made up for the shortage. Tuberose stalks are selling well and a big supply is on hand daily. Gladioli are still the best seller. All good stock cleans up long before the market is over. Valley and lilies are scarce; in fact, the market of late is clear of these. Among the outdoor flowers coming in now are dahlias, cosmos and goldenrod, which make excellent window dressing. Some Golden Glow and Smith's Advance mums are expected.

Greens still have a big call in all lines, especially asparagus, smilax and flat ferns.

Various Notes.

A great deal of interest was shown on the train which carried the St. Louis florists to the Detroit convention when President Kaupp, of the Missouri State Florists' Association, called for a meeting, which was held on the train. Secretary Archias was also present, and all became members of the association. Twenty-five members were gained. It was decided to hold the first meeting and exhibition at Kansas City the first week in November. Mr. Manson, of the Pinehurst Floral Co., Kansas City, was elected vice-president and will have charge of preparations for the meeting. A big delegation is promised from St. Louis for this first big meeting.

Vandervoort's floral department will start this week to double the floor

GREENHOUSE-GROWN ASTERS
OF EXCEPTIONALLY FINE QUALITY

The supply of good Asters has increased considerably, and from now on they will be ample until the end of the season. A few weeks ago we had a quantity; now Quality is more in evidence, and the latter is the more desirable. The Best Asters are the indoor-grown stock. You will find them exceptionally fine.

Gladioli

You are obliged to carry some stock during the summer months, and you have less risk of loss in Gladioli than any other flowers you can buy. We have all the standard varieties, especially Augusta, America, Halley, Francis King, Schwaben, Pendleton, etc.

EARLY CLOSING
WE CLOSE EVERY DAY AT 4 P. M.

Rubrum Lilies

They are inexpensive and very desirable for design work. We have them in quantity, both in long and short stems. Pink Lilies make a good showing and on account of their good keeping quality they should be used more freely.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The week of August 18 to 23 was dull in the cut flower market. The supply is scarce and demand irregular. There is an excess of poor and medium grade asters and of short-stemmed roses. The difference between really fine flowers and "junk" is as marked as the difference in the prices paid for them. I am taken confidentially aside and urged to persuade the growers not to grow poor asters and then a bunch of Semple's Branching or astermums is brought out and it is compared with four or even six bunches of ordinary grade asters that are out on the counter with the hope that someone may buy them. And then the question is asked, "Would not you prefer the single bunch at four times the price?" You can only nod and wonder whether the grower of the ordinary stock could not do better and hope that he would for the sake of self and family.

The feature of the market is the arrival of Golden Glow chrysanthemums, clean, well-grown stock that brings a quarter without competition. Cattleyas continue to ascend in price. Shipping is light.

The Convention.

Robert A. Craig returned August 22 from the S. A. F. convention at Detroit. Mr. Craig was greatly pleased with the meeting, which he said was most successful in every way. He met many delightful people and thought the arrangements excellent. Describing the meeting, Mr. Craig said:

"There were over 800 delegates alone, not counting their families and friends, who were registered up to Wednesday, August 20. The feeling seemed to be one of confidence. Everybody felt that now was the time to go ahead. The publicity campaign had a lot to do with this. Even those who had not gone for it were talking about it. George Asmus said that the next move for publicity would be the making and distribution to the purchasers of signs. Each sign is to be 7x20 feet and will bear the motto, 'Say It with Flowers,' and the purchaser's name and address. Such signs would be erected on the purchaser's premises or at any place he might select, such as nearby cross roads. One thousand signs, all uniform in size and style, would certainly make an impression. Our exhibit arrived at Detroit in good condition. I was more than pleased with its appearance when displayed. Some years ago I was asked why we did not have larger plants in a certain sized pot. I said we would have them. Since then we have been growing a select grade in several popular sizes. They are growing in favor. We showed a select 4-inch fern in three of the straight-leaved varieties of Boston ferns. We asked and readily obtained nearly three times the price of the regular 4-inch ferns. The advantage to the buyers is that these ferns are less expensive to ship by express than 6-inch ferns, yet they can be shifted into 8-inch immediately upon arrival if so desired. People were willing to pay the increased cost of production for plants of good quality. We never received so many orders at a convention. We could have done more, but it seemed better to come home and fill the orders entrusted to us."

From Over There.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer writes to his father from England that you can get clothes and candy at high prices, but there are a good many things you cannot get. That he is learning to drink tea. That passport regulations make it hard to get into England and harder to get out.

Mr. Bayersdorfer writes later from France that the post-war price of labor is four or six times the ante-bellum price. That good chiffons are steadily advancing in price. That you are told if America doesn't want them, England will pay the price. That conditions are still chaotic.

The friends of Paul R. Klingsporn, formerly of this city, now of Chicago, will be interested to know that he has been elected a director of the S. A. PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Last week was the dullest of the summer, the biggest cause being the street car strike, the second one in four months. At the present writing it does not look as though there would be any settlement reached for some time. The supply of roses has been small, which is a good thing, as the demand is light.

The supply of asters is just about equal to the demand. The first of the New York state asters have put in an appearance, but the stems are short and the flowers small.

Gladioli continue to be the backbone of the market, but the supply is not nearly so large as usual at this season. A few garden flowers are seen, but not enough to cause any flurry.

Various Notes.

Harvey Scheaff, manager for Mrs. E. A. Williams, was to have left on his vacation August 16, but was taken sick and has been confined to his home with an attack of lumbago ever since.

Earl Hunkel, of the cut flower department of the McCallum Co., has returned from his vacation, which he spent at home.

H. L. Thompson, on Third avenue, New Brighton, has a window display which represents a country estate, with a bungalow home, summer houses, pergolas, driveways, lakes, woods, flower gardens, bridges and all that goes into the making of a rural estate.

A. Kleinberg has returned to Pittsburgh and resumed his former position as salesman with the Alpha Floral Co., on Penn avenue, East Liberty. He went across with the Fourth Army Corps and was with the Army of Occupation in Coblenz, Germany.

Although having been in existence only three months, the Thompson-Harris Co., 306-307 Lloyd building, Penn avenue, East Liberty, is having exceptional success. The firm is composed of G. H. Thompson, who was formerly a downtown salesman, and Robert M. Harris, who is having his first experience in florists' lines. They are engaged in the manufacture and importing of artificial crepe.

Richards & Brown have opened an attractive new retail flower shop in Monessen, a suburban town on the Monongahela river. This is the first venture of the proprietors in the cut flower business, but the enterprise is under the experienced management of Carl Volker, formerly of Pittsburgh, but more recently with T. Malbranc, of Johnstown, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. McCallum, George E. McCallum and Earl Tipton represented the McCallum Co. at the Detroit convention.

A party composed of Mrs. Gustav Ludwig and her daughter and grandson, Mrs. Victor Bergman, Victor Bergman, Jr., and Raymond Parry, has returned from an eastern motoring trip, including stops at Gettysburg, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Auburn, Brooklyn, Albany and Cleveland.

Randolph & McClements have added much to the appearance of the exterior of their store and conservatory frontage on Penn avenue, through the use of boxes of feathery ferns and potted plants bordering the pavement.

President O. M. Beckert, of Beckert's Seed Store, is taking a vacation trip through New England. Manager Augustus Frishkorn attended the Detroit convention and is at the meeting of the National Association of Gardeners in Cleveland. Miss Ruth Kelly, of the E. C. Ludwig Floral Co., has returned from a two weeks' visit in Jeannette, Pa., with her sister, Mrs. Thomas J. Spiers. Miss Margaret Sturn is visiting Johnstown friends.

Isaac Bayersdorfer was in town last week calling on the trade in the interests of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Julius Dilloff was a recent visitor representing Wertheimer Bros., New York.

Edward H. Blind left August 18 for Cleveland, where he was joined by Harry P. Langhans, who is on a several weeks' vacation trip, and the two continued to the Detroit convention. Mr.

Blind returned last week from a motoring trip through the White and Adirondack mountains, on which he was accompanied by a party of relatives.

The firm of McGrath & Langhans made a most effective funeral pall of Ophelia roses last week for customers in Indiana, Pa.

Accompanied by his family, George B. Telfair, of Scobie & Parker, has returned from a trip up the St. Lawrence river to the Thousand islands. Frank D. Roll, of the same firm, has gone to Atlantic City for a fortnight's vacation.

Miss Alma Abbiati, an employee of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., has returned from a visit with friends at Hulton station, on the Allegheny river.

Meyer Krongold and Clarence Abrams, of the Victoria Flower Shop, have returned from a sojourn at Atlantic City.

Anthony W. Smith, Jr., has returned from a several days' sojourn on the Long Island coast, accompanied by his family, who went on earlier in the season. Arthur J. Hall, head of the sales force, left August 16 to join his family, who were spending the month of August at Atlantic City. Miss Lillian Espy, also of the selling staff, is about to leave for a visit with friends in the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Hamm, of Homewood, are about to take up their residence on the Frankstown road, in Penn township. Mr. Hamm's brother and former manager, Allen J. Hamm, is still confined to the house as the result of an attack of influenza last autumn.

Mr. and Mrs. David Fraser will leave the last of the month for a two weeks' visit in Philadelphia and Newport, R. I. Their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Fraser, is now at Geneva-on-the-Lake, near Cleveland.

William M. Turner returned from a several days' business trip to Philadelphia. William R. Shackleford, his head salesman, has returned from a visit to his former home in Richmond, Va.

Miss Emma B. Maxwell is sojourning at her summer cottage at Van Buren Point, near Dunkirk, N. Y. Miss Maxwell's bookkeeper, Miss Eleanor Craig, left August 16 to spend two or three weeks at Ligonier, in the Allegheny mountains. Prior to her departure, Miss Nellie Graham, a saleswoman, returned from a three weeks' visit with relatives in Minneapolis. Corporal

Wesley A. Mellon, a former member of the Maxwell staff, has returned from a year overseas, but has not resumed his business position. Sergeant Clarence S. Schleicher, still another employee of the same firm, who went abroad in the motor supply service, is still in Germany.

J. Leo Giesey left August 13 for a visit in New Hampshire with his brother, Wilfred Giesey. Miss Frances Bradford is a recent addition at Mr. Giesey's store. E. E. S.

FLORIST TURNS SLEUTH.

Through some keen detective work on the part of John Butterworth, of Framingham, Mass., William B. Lannell, 33 years of age and claiming residence in Lynn, Mass., is in the hands of the police and held under $3,000 bonds to the grand jury for attempting to pass a forged check on Mr. Butterworth. Lannell bought $30 worth of floral pieces of Mr. Butterworth "for the funeral of a relative," tendering in payment a check for $610.50 drawn on a Watertown bank in favor of A. E. Joyce and bearing the signature of William Fairnier. Lannell said to Mr. Butterworth that as he was not known in Framingham he would ask him to endorse the check so that he could get the money to pay for the flowers. Mr. Butterworth asked Lannell to leave the check with him and go to the Framingham Trust Co. and see if the arrangement would be acceptable to the bank. Lannell left the check, but did not go to the bank or return to Mr. Butterworth, who notified the police. The culprit was soon rounded up and identified by his would-be victim.

At the courthouse in Framingham, August 18, Lannell was identified by H. W. Vose, of Attleboro, Aylward Bros., of Woburn, and others. Lannell then admitted to the police that he passed worthless checks in Malden, Somerville, Cambridge, Woburn and other cities. He is also wanted in Vermont and Connecticut. Lannell has worked his bad checks principally on florists and undertakers and J. Butterworth's good sleuth work has received many words of commendation. C. W.

OPPORTUNITY FOR PUBLICITY.

habits succeeds only at the cost of much persuasion.

Now the national advertising of the S. A. F. is blazing the trail everywhere. Through the use of national magazines of large circulation, not a city or town of importance throughout the country but what is being penetrated with germs of thought to promote the use of flowers.

Yet it is just at this point that appears the weakest part of the S. A. F.'s national advertising structure. In the usual national advertising of commodities such as soaps, motor cars or food products, the demand is created in almost precisely the same general way as your national advertising is creating the demand for flowers. But the manufacturer of soaps or motor cars or food products cannot be content with merely creating a demand for his goods. He takes steps to convert his national demand into actual orders by telling the public in each individual community exactly how and where to obtain his goods. In other words, the advertising manufacturer sees to it that his dealers advertise locally in order to cash in with actual business upon the demand created by national advertising.

It is not enough that florists should be content to merely subscribe to the fund for national floral advertising. This national campaign will never reach its biggest success until local advertising in every community links itself up to the national effort and crystallizes the desire for flowers into actual patronage.

Grasp the Opportunity.

The S. A. F. plays the part of a manufacturer who advertises nationally. Its products are ideas and sentiments and habits for the use of the great American public. The growers of flowers and the commission and supply houses may be said to play the part as jobbers do in ordinary lines of business. Their function is to be ready sources of supply to the dealers who form contact with the consuming public. And the retail florists are the actual dealers who distribute the goods to the consumer. They are dispensing the ideas and sentiments being generated by the national advertising of the S. A. F. through the medium of flowers and goods purchased from the growers, wholesale florists and supply houses.

In later years business in general has been dissected by students in the subject, and it has been discovered that instead of being a hit-or-miss proposition, business is a science, whose proper conducting is according to certain pretty well defined principles. The first battle of the Marne in the great war now ranks as one of the decisive battles of all times. It was not a hit-or-miss proposition. The French high command took every item of the German strength into consideration and so disposed its forces that the superior enemy numbers were outmaneuvered. With every movement but one of the French plans being carried out to the letter, the general, Foch, with lightning vision, at the critical moment seized the opportunity that definitely made this French victory and won for him the description of "The Greatest Strategist in Europe." With instant perception this man grasped an opportunity that perhaps saved the entire allied cause.

As strategy prevails in war, so does it prevail in business. Factors perhaps are different, but each business man is, after all, a captain who must visualize obstacles to success and so use his vision as to maneuver the forces at his disposal towards success and victory.

Be a Local Foch.

There now exists the most extraordinary opportunity that retail florists have ever had to advertise successfully. The various factors of the business are now so disposed that the retail florist is in relation to his business in a similar position to Foch at the battle of the Marne. Foch perceived the opportunity and drove an almost exhausted army corps through the Prussian Guards themselves to certain victory.

pulse to buy which can come only from your own aggressive effort?

Why not now, with clear vision, grasp the opportunity and with your local advertising turn that great dormant demand for flowers into a steady stream of patronage through the medium of your persistent, systematic and scientific efforts in local advertising?

Probably in every city from 20,000 or so upwards, some one florist has come to be the largest or, what is often termed, the leading florist. Being perhaps better known than other florists, he will benefit most by the national advertising. But often this leading florist is too complacent and sure of his position. He is doing business to a comfortable part of his capacity. Often he may lack something of that progressive, driving spirit which wins the greatest business success.

So the real opportunity here is not necessarily or conclusively for the largest and present most successful florist. It is rather for that keen-minded florist who, with vision, is prepared to utilize that quality best described as progressiveness. It is certain that the greatest benefits of this national floral advertising will come to those florists in each community who, with their own subsidiary, aggressive effort, reach out and grasp the prizes.

Systematic Advertising.

The logical conclusion is reached that it will pay almost every retail floral establishment to advertise. Therefore consideration should be given to the ways and means that the average florist may utilize.

The most prevalent evil that I have found is the tendency towards spasmodic advertising effort. No matter how well you believe in it, to advertise now and then without some definite, systematic plan clearly indicates that you do not understand the function of advertising. It also indicates that you do not appreciate its almost certain value to your business. The man who will not admit the force of advertising to his business is stubborn, while the florist who won't admit the suggestions or services of the advertising expert is short-sighted.

The expert will want you to elevate your advertising to the status of a regular department in your business. It should rank on at least a parity with your purchasing and production departments. It is really the vital part of your sales department, and should outrank in importance such departments as bookkeeping, delivery and shipping.

to assure the success of your advertising is to determine upon an appropriation—the amount which your business can legitimately afford to invest, not spend, annually. Bear in mind that correct advertising is based on fundamental principles. One such principle is that it should tend to reduce both the prices which you charge and your own cost of doing business.

Let me illustrate by a specific example. A certain manufacturer of automobiles had an annual output of 3,000 cars. Allowing $50 per car for advertising, including this, of course, in his costs, gave him an annual appropriation of $150,000. This appropriation invested in advertising created a reputation for this car and consequently a greater demand than this production could satisfy. The following year this manufacturer, by enlarging his output to 6,000 cars, was able to so reduce production costs as to sell a better car to the consumer at a somewhat lower price. The manufacturer's profit per car remained the same, and while the car's customers benefited by reduction in price, the manufacturer's cost of doing business considerably decreased and the net profits were better than doubled.

The Percentage of Sales.

I have for a long time instinctively felt that the going retail floral business could afford to invest in advertising a sum equal to five per cent of annual sales. I judge this through my experience with successful retail florist advertisers and by comparison with the standard average appropriations in other retail lines, such as furniture, clothing, dry goods, etc.

Your own ingenuity, combined with the most intimate knowledge of its affairs, should enable you, as manager of its destinies, to hit upon the best way of determining the proper advertising appropriation for your business. You see I am taking it for granted that you are all bound to become successful advertisers. I will suggest just one method that may help to set your imagination to work.

Compile a record of your sales for a year back. Suppose your average sale was $2—a figure somewhat reasonable, I imagine—and that you averaged 500 sales per week. A dime taken out of every sale will give you an advertising appropriation of $50 per week or $2,600 for the year. This would be five per cent on an annual volume of $52,000. By careful figuring of costs you can doubt-will tend to decrease in its proportion to sales. In fact, as your advertising gains momentum, through its persistence, its increase each year will be smaller in proportion than your increase in sales.

Advertising Media.

You may advertise in your newspapers, in your street cars, on your billboards or direct through the mails. The first is easily the medium to be preferred, because it is the least expensive and most efficient.

Street car advertising is exceedingly limited in scope. It limits your message to such brevity that little can be expressed at one time. Nor can your messages be changed frequently enough to keep pace with the seasonable phases of your business. The same is true of billboard advertising. Excellent as these two media may be for purposes of general publicity, few florists that I know of have become advertisers large enough to indulge in the luxury of their use.

Direct by mail advertising is certainly the most expensive medium you can employ. Though it may be efficient as a means of contact with individual persons, you cannot afford to reach the public with it in numbers large enough to produce satisfying results. Direct advertising should be used only by neighborhood florists for whom other media are not practical—and by larger establishments for special purposes only.

Advertising Policy.

Newspapers are read daily by the most progressive, intelligent and well-to-do people. They have become a seriously taken, everyday essential. Your advertising in a good newspaper finds readers in moods that are alert, open-minded and receptive. The cost of newspaper space analyzed shows that a good-sized advertisement may be purchased at a cost of only a few cents per thousand readers. In such papers as the New York Times or the Chicago Tribune full page advertisements cost such amazingly low rates as approximately $2 per page per thousand copies. There are reasons why newspaper advertising is the least costly and most efficient.

The force of advertising is so great that even inefficient advertising is sometimes successful. In modern practice, however, methods are becoming more exact, more scientific. Virtually every advertiser has certain peculiar problems to solve—and in advertising, expertly directed, more often than not is found the means of solving such problems.

For instance, a certain make of automobile is constructed on engineering principles which aim to combine superior riding qualities, extreme lightness and flexibility. The result sacrifices almost all vestige of good looks. One of the peculiar problems put up to the advertising of this automobile is to overcome the sales resistance of this car's homeliness.

TWO STORES—LARGE STOCK

A certain florist located away from the shopping center of a big city aspired to the finest trade throughout every district. Advertising was properly directed to solve this peculiar problem. It succeeded.

Your advertising policy should be determined in accordance with the more important needs of your business. Do you need to secure higher prices? Should you receive a greater proportion of funeral business? Must you overcome cut-throat competition? Lacking such problems as these, what particular kind of reputation will it do your business the most good to achieve? To take an example outside of your business, the Metropolitan Magazine is making value the policy of its present successful advertising. Expressing this policy is the campaign slogan, "Two Magazines in One."

Planning Advertisements.

When the amount of the advertising appropriation has been decided upon, and the best advertising policy for a period has been chosen, it remains to schedule and prepare the advertisements.

The scope of this talk is scarcely large enough to permit an exhaustive treatment of the subject. First of all, common sense should rule. It is well to devise a uniform style of advertisement, so that all your advertising may be readily recognized and associated with your business. This will help it to gain momentum and accumulate strength.

No matter how good it may be, it is rarely wise to repeat an advertisement. No one pays serious attention to a parrot. Once a person discovers that you are running the same advertisement, he passes it by. It fails to create that desire for your flowers. Therefore, see that your advertisements are ever fresh in interest.

A good advertisement is usually simple. It is easy to read and worth reading. Its layout and headline attract attention. Perhaps it is illustrated. It looks as though it had an interesting message. Then it proceeds to tell that message clearly, forcibly and with human interest. It assumes that you are interested in the goods or service offered, so it tells you how and where to get them—this being almost an essential. Of course, it makes clear who the advertiser is.

Such an advertisement is one of a series. In your business a series may be planned for each season, or on a particular subject. For instance, for the wedding season, on funeral flowers, or for spring planting. Each advertisement takes into consideration your policy and tends to generate sales. The readers of your advertising are led, step by step, to the conviction that your establishment is the one to patronize. Good will and results gradually accumulate and in time your advertising by word of mouth spreads far beyond the media for whose circulation you pay. There can be no failure to proper advertising—fundamental principles are behind its success.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

There was an abundance of stock last week. That of good quality moved quickly, while some of the poorer outdoor stuff had to be dumped.

Business, without a doubt, is better than last August. More stock is being moved and better prices are paid in most instances. Funeral work has been brisk.

No shortening up in either indoor or outdoor stock is in sight. About the only improvement wished for is a falling off in the poor stock.

Various Notes.

Mr. Morichard, of the S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade in Milwaukee last week.

Mrs. M. D. McGovern, one of the incorporators of the Rosery, Ltd., Winnipeg, Man., Canada., spent a few days in Milwaukee, en route from Detroit to her home.

William Zimmermann, 427 Grand avenue, and E. Welke Co., Third street, are the latest Milwaukee members of the F. T. D. Both made application while attending the convention last week. Milwaukee now has seven members.

Some excellent Beauties are being cut by the Cudahy Floral Co. A. H. M.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Last week was fairly good for summer and August 19 saw such a heavy day that wholesale stock was sold out by noon. Roses are getting better and more plentiful every day as a result of the cooler weather and occasional rains, but home-grown gladioli are almost gone. The Colorado crop is being shipped in now. To make up for gladioli, home-grown asters are coming in, but are still small. A shipment or two from California served as an experiment that was not satisfactory. If trains are on time the flowers reach here in pretty good condition, but delays are disastrous and the chances are considered too great to be taken. Some good stock has been received from Chicago, and it will be but a short time until the home-grown asters are in prime condition.

Various Notes.

Samuel Murray has been in the Kansas oil fields for several days.

George Rye, of Fort Smith, Ark., was in Kansas City last week.

A. Newell has received a shipment of Morocco statuary, which he will use for decorative purposes in his new store.

Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Noll spent a day at the state fair in Sedalia.

Miss Elizabeth Hayden, employee of Samuel Murray, has returned from a six weeks' stay at her home in Wisconsin. Miss Mary Hayden has gone to Chicago and will later go on to Wisconsin for a month's visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Alpha Elberfield and Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Millicee have returned from a two weeks' motor trip to the Ozarks. Mr. and Mrs. Elberfield attended the Rotary meeting in Salt Lake City and from there went to Yellowstone park.

S. Bryson Ayres, of Sunny Slope Seed Farm, has great expectations for his new flower, the celosiamum. This year's flowers are in greater abundance and of much better quality than last year's. The blooms are dark red, rich in color, four or five inches in diameter, compact and the stems are about thirty-six inches long. Some of the flowers have been on exhibition with the Pinehurst Floral Co. Mr. Ayres took some of his best specimens to the Detroit convention.

TORONTO.

Building Operations.

The growth of the florists' business in Toronto is illustrated by the number of growers who are erecting new greenhouses. The plant of Miller & Son, Bracondale, was recently remodeled and brought up to date. J. H. Dunlop, of Richmond Hill, is erecting a flat rafter type house, 51x300. The plant of the Toronto Floral Co. was recently remodeled and enlarged. Last year Carl Grobba, of Mimico, built five houses and this year he has let a contract for two more houses, each 35x130. The business of the Bedford Park Floral Co. has been steadily growing and it has been necessary for them to secure additional ground. This they have done, securing thirty acres at Richmond Hill, adjacent to J. H. Dunlop. H. Arnold, the manager, announces that next year they will erect either one or two houses on this property.

Various Notes.

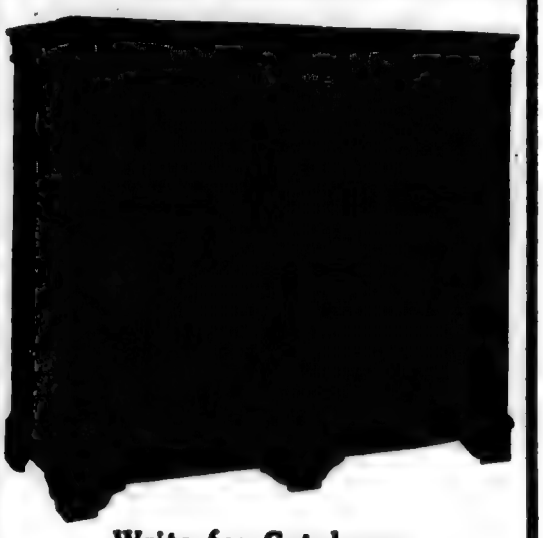
The Fraser Floral Co., Moncton, N. B., is erecting several houses.

McKenna's, of Montreal, are replacing the big greenhouse destroyed by fire recently by four smaller ones covering 62x140 feet.

The Lord & Burnham Co. announces that it has secured orders from Thos. A. Ivey & Sons and Henry Newsome, Esq., for additions to their greenhouses.

Hall & Robinson are erecting a new house 130 feet long, to be devoted to growing sweet peas.

A. Gilchrist has a new seedling America gladiolus. It is shell pink. His entire production has been purchased by H. G. Dillemuth and J. J. Higgins.



Harry James, the energetic secretary of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club, and Mrs. James are enjoying a holiday at Atlantic City and on Long Island, N. Y.

The Ontario Horticultural Exhibition is to be resumed this year and will be held November 11 to 15. This is one of the big events, at which hundreds of prizes are awarded. It was discontinued during the war, but this year's exhibition promises to be the largest in history. The Toronto Retail Florists' Club and the Gardeners' and Florists' Association are supporting it. The usual chrysanthemum show held by the retailers during the last two years will be merged with it. J. J. H.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Spokane, Wash.—Wrecking operations have been started on the greenhouse of Patrick & Son, 2722 Fiske street.

Covelo, Cal.—William Osborne, former postmaster of Covelo, has purchased the gladiolus fields of Earl Edgerton, the latter having returned to his home in Lansing, Mich.

Oregon City, Ore.—Riegelmann Bros. are adding a third greenhouse to their range. They are among the largest growers of sweet peas and pansy plants in this vicinity. They have been actively engaged in the trade for the last twenty years and succeeded their father, the late R. Riegelmann. They have forty acres of land on the Taulatin river devoted to market gardening and flowers.

Ventura, Cal.—A call at the nursery of the T. B. Shepherd Co. revealed the fact that the present year has been the best they ever had. Mr. Francis says they were never so busy in July. There is always an interesting lot of rare and little known plants here, but the big thing of all is the magnificent strain of petunias, double and single. The doubles now bedded out are truly wonderful, some of them being eight or nine inches across, beautifully built and fringed and of the most exquisite colors. They have good reason to be proud of these splendid strains.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Eureka, Cal.—G. Vanden Abeele, receiver for the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., made this statement to the creditors August 20: "As conditions have materially improved, I feel it my duty to keep you posted on same. Over $50,000 in orders have been booked and more are being booked every day. There is no question but that the $100,000 mark will be reached this season. At the present time we are shipping bulbs. It was through the courtesy and cooperation of our customers in advancing money on their orders that I was able to arrive at this point. At the present time the local merchants are assisting me by purchasing receivership certificates. I can frankly state that I can now see daylight, and if more time is given me I will be able to straighten out the affairs of the corporation and eventually pay dollar for dollar to the creditors. I hope by the first of the year to be able to pay a substantial dividend to each creditor, at the same time preserving the industry."

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

All shipping business has been stopped here by the railroad and street car men's strikes. The wholesalers are doing no business except with the local trade and to such points as can be reached by automobile. The loss inflicted as a result is serious to all. At the present moment no relief is in sight.

Among the scarce items last week roses must be included. There has seldom been such a scarcity at this time of the year. Everything else is fairly plentiful, outdoor carnations especially so. The new crop is in and although the flowers are good, the demand does not keep pace with the supply. Asters are still good, but not quite so fine as they were recently, and it will not be long before the best ones will be cleaned up. Orchids, valley, sweet peas and Cecile Brunner roses are practically out of the market. Dahlias are plentiful, but gladioli are scarce. There is a fair supply of small flowers in variety. Funeral work and a few weddings form the chief outlet for stock.

Various Notes.

Mr. Aldrich, representing M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, was in town last week and will visit San Diego.

Paul Staiger, head of the nursery department of Roy F. Wilcox & Co., Montebello, has purchased a Cadillac roadster.

WHERE SHALL I TRADE NEXT YEAR?

With ARMACOST & CO., of course!

Easy to answer that if you have visited our plant and have become acquainted with us. If you haven't we will try to tell you in this space some of the reasons that have caused Armacost & Co., Los Angeles, to come to be recognized as the best and most dependable wholesale house on the Pacific Coast.

Reason No. 7

We are repotting Cyclamen this week at the greenhouses. We won't get through for a month. It is a big job. There are 14,500 of them and they run from 4-inch pots to 9-inch pans.

Mighty fine stock they are and mostly pink and salmon shades—some Christmas reds of course. See the stock if you possibly can. We are sure of your order then. Next best, start sample shipments about October. We make all of our shipping crates at our own mill, and our crates are strong but light; you don't have to mortgage the greenhouses to pay your express bills when we ship you.

Here is what a new customer said last Fall: "Have sold out all the plants sent. Am more than pleased. Your packing is the best ever, not a leaf on any plant broken." Pretty good place to buy your Cyclamen. Don't you think so?

POINSETTIAS

I have now nearly 70,000 POINSETTIA bushes, including 25,000 new Stock plants, with about A QUARTER OF A MILLION branches for cut Poinsettias, on about 14 ACRES. Many thousands of branches are already now (middle of August), five to six feet in height and one inch thick, and these bring the large flowers. None of my visitors, nor I, have ever seen such Poinsettias at this time of the year. This is the result of the experience and study I have given for years to this subject, and I will have this Thanksgiving, all November and December and Christmas, and maybe later, many thousands of blooms eighteen to twenty or more inches across.

The experience that I had last winter and spring made me think I will ship more softwood not-rooted cuttings next season. I think nobody can raise cuttings in hothouses as cheap as I can raise them in the field, and the successful shipping is proved and easy. I can ship 1,500 cuttings easier and more quickly in one box than 100 stock plants.

My main business is raising and shipping cut Poinsettias, but I have what you want when you order early, and let me have the real cash two weeks before you expect me to send the goods. Then nobody will be disappointed. The shippers and leading florists in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Sacramento, Seattle, florists in Indianapolis and other eastern and southern cities will tell you about my Poinsettia blooms.

My stock plants were sent last winter and spring all over the United States, Canada, and even to Porto Rico, but the easiest and most pleasant business was, in the late spring, the shipping of softwood cuttings. The main thing, as I told before, is to order what you want as early as possible, and when you want it, so that I will be prepared and have secured enough help.

I will have for Thanksgiving, all November, December and Christmas, all the cut Poinsettias you want, when you order EARLY, CASH. I expect to ship them this year by the carload to Chicago if a good wholesaler will handle them. I would like a representative to call on me and see my stock and let us make arrangements here. I will give the right discount, and would ship samples to Chicago to prove my flowers there.

Years ago I had no expert packers, and I disappointed some customers. All this is past. As I have too many blooms to ship them all myself, please give your orders to the Los Angeles shippers, who mostly handle my stock—EARLY, TOO, so that I have time to have them cut by daylight. It protects me and my help against night work and you from disappointment. Last December, and especially for Christmas, I had so many unexpected orders that it was impossible for me to do the right thing. Disappointed florists, I beg you to excuse me now for not answering in right time.

Regarding the color, I wish to say that I have found that rich soil makes bright flowers; poor soil, dark flowers. The late variety is usually more bright, but the early one holds the leaves better.

A little story to show you how to get what you want, quality and service. When I first started my shipping business, right after the first ad, about two months before the beginning of the season, I got the first order from a Lady florist, Mrs. Woodward, of Santa Clara, Cal. Enclosed was the check. She is since that time my steady customer and sends every fall the first Poinsettia check. Who is in doubt of this fact may ask her. Should anything happen that I could not do what you expect, I will send the check back, as I did it last season.

If you go from Los Angeles via Hollywood to Santa Monica, look to the mountains; you will see my large Poinsettia plantations. In November, December and later you will see the bright red fields. Visitors are always welcome.

berg, has joined the staff of the Athletic Club Florist. Carl Brose, of Lichtenberg's, is away on his vacation. Business is reported good and a magnificent show of flowers is being kept up.

A. Hubbard, of the Howard & Smith force, left last week on his vacation.

At the Cedar Nursery probably the finest lot of cyclamens ever grown around Los Angeles may be seen. Mr. Kimura sows his own seed and specializes on cyclamens and poinsettias. The cyclamens are wonderfully good stock in large and small sizes. Every plant shows the result of careful and well considered culture. The poinsettias are growing in specially arranged low houses and a special bench with air spaces below the plants is used for propagation. The result is especially good, as the stock in small pots is only a few inches high and with the leaves close to the surface of the soil. In fact, the cuttings have not lost a single leaf and everyone knows the great advantage of such stock in making up orders. This skillful grower is certainly to be congratulated on the excellence of the stock in all the houses.

Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co., started out August 15 on a northern driving tour, intending to visit San Francisco and the big tree regions before returning.

Rudolph Fischer, of San Gabriel, reports being sold out of all his named colored freesias for this season.

Walter Armacost, of W. Armacost & Co., has returned from his northern fishing trip. He reports having had a fine time and looks it. The new building going up for this progressive firm on East Fourth street is rapidly approaching completion and will evidently be a credit to the florists' business.

C. S. Stewart, who recently sold his business near Humboldt park, Chicago, arrived here August 16. He and Mrs. Stewart motored as far as Wyoming, where they sold their car with the intention of buying another one here. Mrs. Stewart's health has not been good of late and they intend to stay at least a year and will probably locate a business of some kind here.

At the Artesia nurseries, Tassano Bros. are making rapid progress. The greenhouses are finished and partly planted, while the new lath house extension is fully planted up to Asparagus plumosus, which is doing well. About 75,000 daffodils and other bulbs are being planted and the sandy soil here should be perfect for them. The maidenhair ferns are especially fine. There is a great improvement in the appearance of this place since the Tassano boys took hold.

J. Dieterich is still improving his new place at Wintersburg and the stock newly planted in the lath house looks fine. A good spring on the land insures a supply of water of the finest quality.

At the Huntington Beach Nurseries there is a fine collection of the new dahlias just coming into bloom. About 250 varieties are grown, but the reason of the late blooming is that the plants are stopped a couple of times in order to insure a dwarf habit and thereby enable them to stand up in the sea breezes. It is an interesting collection.

Miss Mary Rohr, of the staff of S. Murata & Co., met with a serious accident recently. While she was on a mountain trip a boulder dislodged above her struck her leg, breaking it below the knee. Although Miss Rohr is getting along as well as could be expected, it will be some time before she can be around again with her usual vigor. Mr. Murata left for San Francisco last week to meet Mrs. Murata, who is returning from Japan with their children. Mrs. Murata and family left here about a year ago.

John Howe, of Tucson, Ariz., was a visitor last week. H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Asters, asters everywhere is the condition that prevails in the local flower market. Were it not for the heavy shipping orders, in addition to the active retail demand, these flowers would demoralize, as well as dominate, the market, as the supply is greater than ever before. Fortunately, the blooms are well formed, the stems long and the keeping qualities all that can be desired.

Next on the list to be mentioned are gladioli. They have had a splendid run for several weeks, but maintain their popularity with remarkable persistency. Excellent specimens of Niagara, Francis King and other large-flowering varieties are to be seen at all the downtown stores.

With chrysanthemums also making an appearance, the shipping season is well under way. Only three or four early varieties of chrysanthemums are in supply as yet, but they make a good showing for the first of the season. October

Ant. C. Zvolanek & Son, Sweet Pea Ranch, Lompoc, Cal.

Frost is the white most in evidence. The yellow blooms are confined to Golden Glow and Monrovia. They are bringing from 75 cents to $1.75 a dozen. Some of the best Golden Glow go a little higher.

The market is well supplied with roses. Good Russell brings $1.50 a dozen and extra fine stock cleans up easily at $1.75. Columbia ranges about the same. This rose is rapidly gaining in popularity in this section. Ophelia sells around $1.50 a bunch of two dozen, only extra fine blooms going higher.

Miscellaneous outdoor stock is plentiful and cheap. In fact, the only flowers that are scarce are orchids and gardenias and possibly good carnations. Orchids are at a premium, which tends to accentuate the shortage of gardenias. Old carnation plants are being thrown out. A few violets are arriving, but they are not suitable for shipping purposes.

Downtown retailers are making extensive preparations for the arrival of the new Pacific fleet the first week in September. Hotel reservations indicate that many visitors will come to the city for that event and the trade has already been consulted in many instances in regard to decorations, in conjunction with dinners and other social functions scheduled for Fleet week.

Various Notes.

The fourth annual show of the Dahlia Society of California will be held in the ballroom of the Palace hotel September 4 to 6. It is of great satisfaction to the trade that this event, which has been so successful in the last three years, can be held during Fleet week this year. Secretary F. C. Burns, of the Dahlia Society, announces that the entries received to date guarantee that every available inch of the ballroom, as well as the corridors leading thereto, will be filled with dahlias.

F. C. Jaeger, of Powell street, is back at his post of duty after fifteen days' vacation, which consisted of a hunting expedition in Mendocino county and a stay of five days at Napa. There were five men in his party and they brought down five deer. Two of the party connected with the trade are P. Fillippi, of Alameda, Cal., and his brother, Bert

STEELE'S PANSY GARDENS

PORTLAND, OREGON

Fillippi, of the Western Evergreen Co. of this city. Upon his return Mr. Jaeger was pleased to find that business held up well while he was away.

Mrs. Copeland, who conducts the former Hannon establishment in Sutter street, reports good business for this time of the year. She already has some nice orders booked for Fleet week. Her daughter, who is associated with her in the business, is just recovering from a serious illness. Mrs. Copeland says her greatest difficulty at present is to get experienced help.

Julius Eppstein, proprietor of the St. Francis hotel stand, has just returned from a month's vacation, during which he made a long automobile tour taking in Yosemite valley, Lake Tahoe, Boise Springs and other points of interest. Miss Crosswaite, who serves the trade at this stand, reports business fine and says the patrons of the hotel are spending money more freely for flowers than for several years. Mrs. Beecher is away on her vacation.

P. V. Matraia, of the Art Floral Co., says business leaves nothing to be desired. Summer trade has shown an increase over last year's and all indications point to an excellent fall and winter demand.

Walter Hoff, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is expected back this week from an automobile trip, which had as its objective point Crater lake in southern Oregon. Fred Bertrand, manager of the retail end of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., is devoting much time to preparations for Fleet week, which he thinks will stimulate business generally and create quite an extra demand for cut flowers, especially at the stand in the Palace hotel. He is having a large supply of new baskets put in readiness for early September orders and is making improvements in the appearance of the hotel stand.

V. Podesta, of Podesta & Baldocchi, says they have been averaging about a wedding a day lately as far as decorations of this nature are concerned. With general business good, they have been quite busy. He pronounces stock fine now, with the exception of orchids, which are impossible to obtain in sufficient quantity to take care of the requirements of the business. Gladioli, he says, are the finest he ever saw in this market. He has given up his European trip for this year, but hopes to get started next spring.

A. Bianchini, formerly with Mr. Shibeley, on Sutter street, has accepted a position at Joseph's, where John Bianchini is buyer. They are not related, however.

Henry Avansino, manager of the E. W. McLellan Co., reports heavy shipments of asters and a good start on chrysanthemums, which indicates a banner shipping business this fall.

Joseph Proietti continues to send in a fine supply of gladioli from the place which he recently purchased at San Leandro, Cal.

To facilitate their shipping business, the United Flower & Supply Co. has established a special department to take care of their eastern orders.

Enomoto & Co. are rushed with aster shipments. The daily orders are much heavier than in former seasons.

The Francis Floral Co. has no complaints to make about business, having had a nice summer trade and no reason to fear that fall business will not be correspondingly good. Mr. Francis is working on novelties, as usual.

C. Kooyman reports a big demand for bulbs. M. M.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

The demand for flowers, both wholesale and retail, is good. A large number of funerals keep the florists busy. Asters are arriving in good quantities and are of good quality. Some carnations of the new crop are seen, but are short-stemmed and small. Roses are scarce. Dahlias are coming into bloom and will soon be on the market in good quantities.

Various Notes.

C. L. Niednagel was in Chicago last week. His houses are planted to roses and every bench is in fine shape. The old stock is breaking into nice growth and the young stock is fine. He has planted heavily to Columbia.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann has been using large quantities of asters.

Theodore Kuebler is bringing in large numbers of asters, which sell at $1 to $4 per hundred.

The Lockyear Floral Co. has about completed its two houses. One is planted to roses and the other is about ready to be planted to carnations.

Geo. H. Blackman and wife and daughter, Margaret, attended the convention at Detroit last week.

E. L. Fenton has bought a little tract of land on Weinback avenue, consisting of fifteen lots, and will move next spring. There is a fine 5-room residence on the place and two greenhouses, 25x 50. It is right on the edge of the city.

Karl Zeidler reports a large amount of funeral work. He is cutting lots of short roses and a good many carnations from the new stock. E. L. F.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CATALOGUES will cost considerably more than they did for 1919.

THE steamer Frederick VIII, which arrived in New York from Copenhagen last week, brought 1,048 bags of seed.

ON the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived at New York from Rotterdam last week, were twenty-four cases of bulbs and 592 bags of seed.

THE shortage of pea seed is so severe that the canners are worrying about their next season's supply of peas. Wisconsin is extremely short. From the northwest, however, reports state the crop is good, which may help matters somewhat.

NOW that Poland has obtained her independence, the large number of seed growers who formerly grew large crops for German seed merchants are anxious to establish direct trading relations with the allied countries. As a measure of reconstruction the growers, numbering over 900, have banded themselves into a syndicate called the United Agricultural Syndicate of Poland, and the leading directors have been on a short visit to England. Offices have been opened at 88 Kingsway, London.

THE business of Hommo Ten Have, at Schmeeda, Holland, has been incorporated under the name of N. V. Hommo Ten Have's Zaadteelt En Zaadhandel, with a capital of 3,000,000 guilder, or $1,250,000. The business has been extended and new farms are being bought, which will be exclusively for the growing of seeds. The directors of the new company are L. L. Ebels, president; W. A. Scholten, of Groningen; Hommo Ten Have, of Schmeeda, and G. B. Kamps, of Schmeeda, manager.

JEROME B. RICE SEED CO., Cambridge, N. Y., has sent seedsmen in all parts of the United States an invitation to visit its Grass Lake stock seed farm September 2 to 5, when Howard M. Earl and Charles P. Guelf will be at the farm. Grass Lake is ten miles east of Jackson, Mich., and in addition to 1,200 acres of seed crops now maturing, the Rice concern has in the trial grounds now, and which will be at their best at that time, 118 selections of cucumbers, 190 of tomatoes, 334 garden beans, 188 sweet corn, 114 muskmelons, sixty-two watermelons, ninety cabbages, fifty-one squashes and pumpkins, eighteen peppers and a complete radish and root crop trial.

MOTTLY GLEANINGS.

Total sales of 12,000,000 packets of seeds for school gardens is the encouraging report of Secretary Bradley, of the Templin-Crockett-Bradley Co., of Cleveland, O. "At one time we were sending them out at the rate of a quarter of a million packets daily," observed Mr. Bradley, "and I believe this to be the record for any mail order seed house this year. If we are behind, we want to know it. The bulk of the seed is grown in California."

Botzum Bros., of Cleveland, O., have moved into their new seed store and now occupy the entire building, including four floors and the basement. The entrances at the side and rear afford excellent facilities for handling bulk goods. A strong bid will be made for wholesale and retail business, in addition to the market gardening trade, as they are completely equipped to handle the business. The main house remains at Akron, O.

A. C. Kendel's Seed House, at Cleveland, O., is well satisfied with the season's business. Mr. Kendel is enjoying a well-earned vacation.

Johnson's Seed Store, Cleveland, has also shared in the successes of the season. Both the senior and junior members of the concern are taking a short rest.

Wood & Co., of East Cleveland, are optimistic. "Until we take stock," observed Manager Rotherham, "we do not know what special line has sold the most, but the average must be good."

Walter E. Cook, of St. Clair street, Cleveland, was a busy man among the private gardeners during convention week. As he is personally known to them, they seek his advice, which is cheerfully given.

Harry Dow, located on the west side, in Cleveland, is enjoying a flourishing combined seed and plant trade. He credits the new viaduct with attracting much business to what was formerly considered the rural part of Cleveland. It is now one of the busy avenues.

HAVEN SEED CO. HISTORY.

In the Santa Ana, Cal., Register for August 14, the Haven Seed Co. occupied a prominent place on the front page of the prosperity section of the paper. The article gave something of the company's history, as follows:

"The Haven Seed Co. is now in its forty-fifth year, having been established in 1875 at Bloomingdale, Mich. Its founder was the late E. M. Haven, then a youth of 19, who determined to start in business for himself after having served a period of apprenticeship with a Rockford, Ill., seed concern. Mr. Haven was a pioneer grower of radish seed, having as high as 500 acres planted for this one product alone. He also produced large quantities of sweet corn, beans, tomato and other kinds of seed, and shipped in carload lots to the biggest seed firms in the country."

In 1910 the company made its first plantings in Orange county, California, on a 20-acre tract. Two years later 160 acres were planted, mostly to tomato seed. This year 400 acres are planted to tomato seed and 200 acres to other crops.

E. M. Haven died two years ago and the business is now managed by his two sons, A. B. Haven, president of the company, and L. S. Haven, secretary. Last year a large 3-story warehouse was built at Santa Ana. Last year's seed crop harvested by the company included 75,000 pounds of tomato and 15,000 pounds of pepper, melon, lima bean and other seed. This year's crop is expected to be twenty-five per cent larger. Thirty miles of tile are used in the drainage system on the land south of Santa Ana.

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming

GIANT PANSIES

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and the unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden Yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations.

Each Color Separate or Mixed

500 Seeds, 25c; 1000 Seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE is undoubtedly the largest flower and longest stemmed Pansy in the world. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seeds carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

W. Wheelwright is starting a nursery at Vancouver, B. C. His establishment will be known as the Capilano Nurseries.

NEWS OF THE A. A. N.

Credit and Collection Bureau.

The credit and collection bureau, formerly conducted by Counsel Curtis Nye Smith, was temporarily suspended after his release as counsel. With the assistance of John Watson, arrangements have been made with the United States Fidelity & Guarantee Co., of Baltimore, through their New York office. Any member of the American Association of Nurserymen is now entitled to subscribe to the service of this company through Secretary Sizemore's office. The fees for collections will be the same as have been previously charged under the arrangement with Mr. Smith. The credit reporting feature offers nurserymen the opportunity to secure in advance credit reports of any customer about whom they are in doubt. The service will also include collection letters, proper forms of draft and a list of attorneys who are secured by bond of the United States Fidelity & Guarantee Co.

The United States Fidelity & Guarantee Co. protects the association and any members subscribing to the service by a bond of $10,000, with a limit of $2,500 on any one attorney. This bond will for the present be deposited with President Moon. Under the new plan each member can subscribe to a service which would, if purchased separately, cost him from $15 to $20 per annum, while through the association he can secure this for $5 per annum, which covers the cost of the list of guaranteed attorneys and the quarterly supplement thereto.

Nurserymen having claims with Curtis Nye Smith will withdraw them and be given an opportunity to subscribe to this new service to further prosecute their claims.

Committee Appointments.

Vice-president Lloyd Stark paid a visit to President Moon August 19, at which time a number of matters important to the association were discussed and the committee appointments considered.

Committee appointments already decided upon include C. H. Perkins II, vice-president of Jackson & Perkins Co., Newark, N. J., as chairman of the legislative committee. William Pitkin, of Chase Bros. Co., Rochester, N. Y., who long served as chairman of this committee, has consented to be a member of it, that the committee may have the benefit of his experience. The rest of this committee it is Mr. Moon's idea to select from the legislative committees of the state and sectional associations.

It is also decided that the duties formerly performed by the tariff committee will be merged with the legislative committee, which will hereafter bear the title legislative and tariff committee.

The market development committee will have John Watson, of Princeton, N. J., as chairman. The entire membership of this committee has not yet been announced.

E. P. Bernardin, Parsons, Kan., and George W. Holsinger, Rosedale, Kan., have consented to serve as a committee to edit and publish the annual report of the proceedings of the convention recently held in Chicago.

A. M. Augustine, of Augustine & Co., Normal, Ill., is chairman of the committee to secure accommodations for the convention to be held in Chicago in 1920 and to be generally in charge of that convention. Thomas B. Meehan, of Thomas B. Meehan & Son, of Dresher, Pa., is chairman of the committee on relations with landscape architects.

SERVICE BUREAU AT WORK.

The program for market development discussed at the convention in Chicago is being put into operation as rapidly as incoming funds will allow. A call has been made for the remaining seventy-five per cent of the first year's subscription.

A call will soon be made on the members of the A. A. N. who have not yet contributed to the market development fund, urging them to do their share for this current year, in accordance with the resolutions passed at Chicago.

The meeting of the New Jersey Association of Nurserymen held at the Princeton Nurseries August 22 was devoted largely to a discussion of market development.

The meeting was addressed by Robert Pyle, of West Grove, Pa., who pointed out the advantages to members of trade associations in joining the national association, and went into some details concerning the work of organization and standardization which the association is now planning to undertake.

F. F. Rockwell, secretary of the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau, also talked on the plans made for the coming year, discussing the Delineator prize competition, the syndicated articles, illustrated lectures and other features.

Mr. Rockwell is endeavoring to get the department of parks of New York city to put in a complete small suburban planting, making a model place at Bryant park, or some other centrally located park in the city. The demonstration vegetable gardens which Mr. Rockwell inaugurated in New York three years ago have been quite successful, and are to be continued as a permanent feature. What has been done to show people how to succeed in vegetable gardening could also be done in showing them how to plant a small area and how to care for the shrubs, flowers and trees in it. If a demonstration planting of this kind can be arranged in New York, it is probable that other cities will take up the idea.

At the Own Your Own Home exposition, to be held in one of the biggest armories in New York early in September, the Nurserymen's National Service Bureau will have a model planting around a small home, and distribute the booklets on home beautifying and the home orchard. The trees, plants and flowers for this planting have been furnished by Isaac Hicks & Sons, Westbury, L. I.

Mr. Rockwell is still calling on nurserymen who have not yet responded to the opportunity they have to send in a list of newspapers in the territory in which they sell, so that these papers can be supplied with the series of syndicated articles to be sent out this fall and next spring.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

Horticultural Show.

Gladioli were largely exhibited at the show of the New Bedford Horticultural Society August 20. Seedling dahlias were perhaps the most interesting flowers exhibited and there was an unusually large collection. Joseph A. Nolet was the largest exhibitor. Charles W. Young and James Garthley were the judges. The silver cup for the best eighteen vases of gladioli, named varieties, was awarded to Thomas H. Hughes. The silver medal for the best vase of gladioli was awarded to Joseph A. Nolet. W. K. Smith was second. Special awards of merit were given to George H. Reynolds for gaillardias and Mrs. R. Manning Gibbs for hybrid tea roses.

The officers of the association are: President, Leonard J. Hathaway, Jr.; vice-president, Joseph A. Nolet; financial secretary, Walter K. Smith; secretary, Jeremiah M. Taber; treasurer, Walter A. Luce. W. H. M.

Shelbyville, Ind.—Cossairt & Sons have purchased a lot 22x92 on West Broadway and have started operations on a modern store building. A conservatory will be erected in the rear of the store. S. P. Cossairt and his sons, W. H. Cossairt and Fred Cossairt, compose the firm.

The Market.

Business is fair, but it is not strong enough to take up all the receipts in this market readily. All good and fancy stock finds a ready market. The shorter grades move rather slowly.

The supply of roses is fair. The good gladioli sell well, but the poor grades move slowly. But few fancy asters are coming into the wholesale houses. These move quickly and more would be used if they were available. The short and medium grades have a poor market. Some rubrum lilies may be had and water lilies sell fairly well. A limited amount of snapdragon is coming into the wholesale houses. Greens of all kinds are selling pretty well for this time of the year.

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

DANGER IN MINERS' DEMANDS.

The spread of radical demands among the workers of coal fields in all sections of the country is creating no little apprehension in the fuel industry. Beginning in an attempt in Illinois to overthrow the conservative element of the United Mine Workers, who wished to abide by their contract with the operators, the spirit of rebellion within the labor organization has traveled to Indiana, where twenty-three mines were shut down last week, and has made its appearance in other coal regions.

The exorbitant demands of the strikers, the disturbance they cause and the consequent disorganization of production are reasons for immediate anxiety. But there is cause for greater apprehension in the requests of the miners, which are to be considered by a conference of operators and workers September 25. These include a 5-day week, a 6-hour day, a sixty per cent increase in pay, time and a half for overtime and double time for all day labor Sunday. Such demands, if allowed, would result in a decrease in the coal output of twenty-five per cent, say fuel experts, to say nothing of the tremendous increase in prices which they would necessitate.

At a time when the low production is already giving concern to the users of coal, the addition of the miners' demands and disturbances to the other causes of a probable fuel famine creates a danger that is alarming to consumers as well as producers.

HINES SAYS CAN'T HAUL COAL.

In the report demanded by the United States Senate on the subject of coal cars and the transportation of coal, Walker D. Hines, director general of the United States Railroad Administration, declares that the railroads will be unable to handle enough coal this fall to meet the demand expected. He attributes the difficulty not so much to the shortage of coal cars as to the fact that the buying public has delayed making its purchases and so forced the roads to handle the season's requirements within a concentrated period of a few months. Mr. Hines stated:

"If 500,000,000 tons of coal shall be needed in 1919, the prospects are that its transportation will be accompanied by difficulties and, especially in view of the heavy business expected this fall, it will be exceedingly difficult to transport the amount required.

"These difficulties will not be due, primarily or principally, to the car shortage, but rather to the fact that an abnormal demand for coal will be concentrated into an unusually short period

Expressions From Men Who Know Boilers

Get the Kroeschell First

Several years ago Mr. ———— corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell.

In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. ————, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."

[Signed] Mr. ————, Ohio.

No More Cast Iron Boilers

I have used several different makes of boilers but none I like as well as yours.

The Kroeschell is easier to fire, takes less coal and water circulates quicker than any other boiler.

I have used two different makes of sectional boilers—no more cast iron boilers for us.

[Signed] Mr. ——, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron

The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

Help Save the "White Coal of Industry"

The boiling hot water resulting from condensation in your steam lines is worth money. You have paid for it in terms of coal. It contains valuable heat units. It is the "White Coal of Industry"—it should not be wasted.

And it need not be wasted. The Morehead Back-to-Boiler System will save it for you by returning it to the boiler at temperatures as high as 400 degrees Fahrenheit. It reduces coal consumption an average of 20%. At the same time your steam will be "drier" and more efficient; your production speeded up and profits increased.

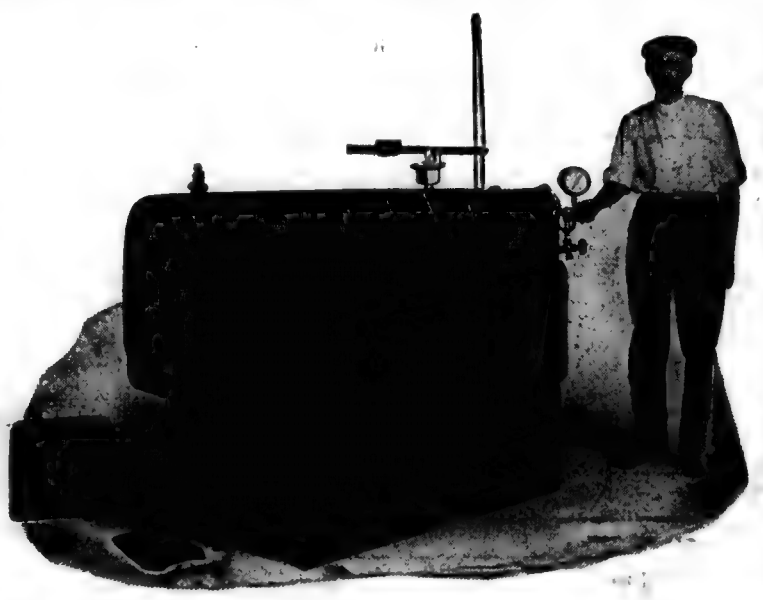
HOW MANY PIPES NEEDED?

What size and how many pipes will I require in a lean-to 9x80, to be used for propagating? I desire to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees when it is 10 degrees below zero outside. The lean-to is six feet high at the top and three and one-half feet at the eaves.

L. V.—Kan.

We would suggest running a 2½-inch flow pipe on the back wall one foot below the glass. At the farther end drop it down and connect it with return coils under each of the benches. In order to provide for bottom heat for propagating purposes, three 2½-inch returns will be needed under each bench; otherwise three under the outer bench and two below the bench on the inside of the house will answer.



In case there is a door in the farther end of the house, or if for any other reason the flow pipe cannot be carried across the end of the house, a 2-inch flow pipe may be carried on each wall plate and used to supply the coils on the respective sides.

HEATING WITHOUT BOILER PIT.

I have a greenhouse, 25x100, on a low piece of ground and am unable to plan any way of heating it with hot water. I cannot have a cellar or pit, because the water level is only about two feet under the surface of the ground. Could I use steam heat to any advantage for a house of this size? The walls are about four feet high, double boarded, with a single row of 16-inch glass underneath the gutters. The ridge is ten feet high. I wish to carry about 55 degrees in zero weather. I have on hand enough 2-inch pipe to make two runs the length of the house, and also a large amount of good 2¼-inch pipe, which could be used for the returns. Would a steam trap have to be used?

A. D.—Mich.

If steam heat is installed, a steam trap will be needed, because in a gravity system the water level in the boiler should be two feet or more below the lowest part of the returns. With a boiler set two feet below the surface, it is often possible to carry the returns high enough to enable one to use hot water with an open-tank system. The house can be heated to 55 degrees by running four 2¼-inch overhead flow pipes and eight returns. A fairly good circulation may be obtained if the lowest part of the returns is eighteen to twenty-four inches above the grate. The use of one

"FARNSWORTH EQUIPPED" FLORISTS MAY FIGURE ON COAL AT $5.00 A TON

This is a conservative estimate of the money actually saved florists in the majority of installations of the Farnsworth Closed System for handling condensation. A saving of 20 per cent of the coal pile by the use of the Farnsworth machines is not unusual. Florists soon pay for the installation with the money saved—then they earn dividends. You are taking no chance with the Farnsworth System, for every machine sold leaves our factory under the Farnsworth guarantee to give service and satisfaction—in fact, to do all that we have claimed for it.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder—front view of 3-inch machine, showing duplex receiving and delivery check valves.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder—rear view of 3-inch machine, showing steam and vent connections, controlling alternate chambers. While one side is discharging the condensation under pressure, the other side is filling. It works with a continuous automatic flow.

Buy the Quality Boiler Feeder—The Duplex Pump

Hundreds of letters telling of splendid Farnsworth service in plants all over the country, are testimonials from others to prove every statement we make concerning our successful installations to be true. of the pressure systems would still further improve the circulation.

While a boiler pit is not generally advisable, if the water level drops or if the flow of the water can be controlled, it is possible to build a concrete pit which will keep out the water when there is only a small head. The bottom should be at least four inches thick and the sides may be built up either with special wooden forms or with concrete building blocks. One side, and preferably both sides, should be plastered with a mixture of one part Portland cement and two parts sharp sand. It is advisable to give this a wash of neat Portland cement.

While pipes as large as 2¼-inch may be used as returns for a steam plant, it is preferable to have them not larger than 1½-inch for a range 100 feet in length.

The Market.

Conditions continue much the same, with the exception that there are a few better asters coming into the market than before. Some exceptionally good dahlias are making their appearance and calendulas are arriving in a little better quality. Zinnias have been arriving in good quality and have cleaned up nicely. Few good sweet peas have been coming in, but swainsona is helping out a little. Florists seem to experience trouble in filling wedding orders, as white roses have been scarce and other flowers, such as valley, are not obtainable. Gladioli are still being received in good quality and quantity with the exception of yellow, which seems to be rather hard to get.

Various Notes.

The Market.

Normal conditions continue in this city and vicinity, with supply and demand well balanced. The growers have their benchings well advanced and everybody is getting ready for the reopening of the busy season. Carnations are scarce and poor, but are well replaced by the asters, which are in abundance and of better quality. They range from $1 to $2.50 per hundred. Gladioli are especially fine and the lighter colors command ready sale. Prices are holding at $2 to $4 per hundred. There are a few good roses at $2 to $8 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Samuel Saules, of M. J. Leach & Sons, Pawtucket, has returned from several months' service overseas.

Walter Sword, of Valley Falls, is having a concrete cellar built at his place and will erect an office building later.

Elmer E. King, of Attleboro, has recently purchased an automobile.

Lawrence Hay has completed the installation of benches throughout his range of houses at East Providence Center.

Swan Peterson, of East Providence, has completed the erection of a couple of potting and propagating sheds.

Alexander H. Johnson has been appointed one of the members of the New England speakers' bureau of the American Legion in the canvass for new members.

O'Connor the Florist, 195 Mineral Spring avenue, reports a large amount of landscape work.

Edmund G. Brooke, Alexander Macrae and Frederick S. Davis furnished automobiles for the use of the Providence Chamber of Commerce on the occasion of the annual outing for the inmates of the orphanages and homes for aged last week.

Joseph B. Black is now owner of the business at 25 Washington street, conducted under the style of Smith the Florist. W. H. M.

The Market.

Business was comparatively quiet the first of last week, but a spurt of funeral work the latter part of the week kept all hands busy. Gladioli are of the best quality seen this season. Asters showed improvement, both in quality of flower and length of stem. Roses are showing up well, although most of the stock is short-stemmed, coming from young plants. Columbia easily holds first place and Premier and Russell are close seconds. Auratum lilies are in great demand and rubrums and albums are cleaned up daily.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hagenburger, of West Mentor, O., called on the members of the trade here the latter part of last week on their way home from Detroit.

Miss Marguerite Flick, of the Flick Floral Co., went from Detroit August 20 by boat for Buffalo, Niagara Falls and other eastern cities.

Judge and Mrs. W. J. Vesey are taking a pleasure trip on return from the convention.

Richard Blossom and Mrs. Ruth Flick Blossom spent the remainder of last week as guests of Miss Helen Patten at her summer home, on Lake Erie, near Toledo, O., on their way home from the S. A. F. convention.

Fred Helgren, rose grower for W. J. & M. S. Vesey, returned home last week from his two weeks' vacation, which he spent at Buffalo, N. Y., and Niagara Falls.

Wedding orders for September are coming into the store of Ed Wenninghoff, who reports a brisk call for funeral flowers. Some fine aster plants attracted attention at his store.

I. M. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was a visitor last week, en route to Philadelphia, from the convention city. R. F.

BETTER THAN PUTTY

—and Why?

Federal Greenhouse Cements are proving so wonderfully efficient because they possess to a superlative degree just those essentials which provide the greatest service to the greenhouse owner.

A greenhouse cement, first of all, must be absolutely watertight and airtight; it must work readily with glass and metal or wood, adhering tenaciously under all weather conditions; it must possess enough elasticity to take up all strains, due to windstorms, etc., as well as the normal contraction and expansion of the glass, wood or metal; it must possess resistance against sudden blows, such as hailstones; it must, above all, possess endurance, that quality which makes it last over a period of years without deterioration.

Federal Greenhouse Cements perform these functions, as well as many others, better than any materials you have ever used; if you once try them you will never be satisfied with any other brand.

We recommend the black as most efficient and, by the way, 90 % of the greenhouse owners use our Federal Greenhouse Cement No. 2, which is the black in a consistency suitable for use in the putty bulb.

The reason we recommend the black is because it is possible for us to use it as the primary base to certain pitches and gums, which possess marked elasticity and waterproofing qualities. Combining these gums and pitches, as we do, with suitable oils and reducing agents, and with high-grade asbestos fiber, produces cements which have an inherent strength absolutely defying weather and other conditions.

In making colored and white cements, which are more expensive than the blacks, it is necessary to use as pigments such materials as white lead, zinc, lithopone, barytes and similar materials. These pigments in themselves possess no waterproofing or other value except as metal and wood protectives. Cements made from them depend for their efficiency as greenhouse cements solely on the oils and other materials combined with them. Now, the oils which we use, together with asbestos fiber, which is a part of every one of our cements, enable us to make white and colored cements which are far better than the putties and other materials which you have hitherto used, and a good many of the greenhouse owners use them in preference to the black cement. We, however, urge you to use the black.

For repairing broken lights, no matter how badly they may be broken, we recommend our black paste Federal Elastic Cement. For roofing work and for covering the brick work of boiler settings we also recommend the paste consistency. In fact, the paste consistency is most advisable except where a thinner material is required in order to do work quickly and effectively.

Federal Greenhouse Cements are sold at very reasonable prices. Their great success has brought numerous imitations on the market.

Now is the time to start using Federal Greenhouse Cements. Glass is high and every other essential has risen to a degree making economies and conservation not only desirable but necessary. The use of Federal Greenhouse Cements will prove a step in the right direction and in a short time you will express your approval, as so many hundreds of others have done.

Write us for our free advice on your glazing problems—today.

About Insectonos

Insectonos (pronounced In-sec-tō′-nos) is a contact insecticide for the destruction of White Fly, Rose Leaf Roller and Chrysanthemum Leaf Tyer. Numerous growers have been using it for several months—and are so well pleased their recommendation by word of mouth already has caused many other growers to try Insectonos. Ask about it.

Mr. Pearce wrote:

Chicago, Ill., August 1, 1919.

You would certainly be surprised to see my place, as you know that when you were here in June and we syringed the Mums, the air was brown with millers; now the millers are mighty few and far between and consequently the same with Leaf Tyers. Insectonos did all that you claimed for it.

SAM J. PEARCE.

The Market.

Conditions on the market have been exceedingly slow during last week. Stock of all kinds has piled up and can be had at a low figure. This is not surprising at this time of year, but it is reported that such a slow week has not been experienced for some time. As an average, the summer's business so far has been entirely satisfactory at all shops and most of the trade report that it has been better than ever. Prices have been good and the supply has kept pace with the demand, so it is felt that a week's depression should not be discouraging.

Various Notes.

Everyone who attended the S. A. F. convention returned all covered with smiles. Most of them concluded that whether they ordered stock or not, prices are advancing, and one remarked, "It's not a matter of supply and demand, but the less you buy the more you have to pay for it."

The Ridge Lawn Greenhouses are supplying the market with an excellent cut of Sunburst and Maryland roses.

Edward Stroh has arrived from the greenhouses to take charge of the store while his sisters are on their vacation.

It is said that the scarcity of palms is causing dealers to ship before the plants are established in their tubs.

Charles Felton has installed a new refrigerator in his store on Grant street.

The Market.

There was a lull in business last week. So far this season the summer demand has been above par and only the last few days has there been a slump. Stock has been hard to procure, but this condition is easing and prospects are brighter.

Roses have been in abundance and are of fair quality, ranging from $2 to $10 per hundred. Inferior asters are crowding the market, but good ones remain scarce. Short asters can be bought at the buyer's price. Gladioli are more plentiful and are of good quality. These are available at $4 to $8 per hundred.

Lilies of any and all varieties are exceedingly short and are hardly quoted at all. Statice and baby's breath are practically gone.

A few fall offerings are appearing. Dahlias, usually so numerous at this time, have not been a success this summer and are only seen occasionally. A limited number of short-stemmed carnations are in the market.

Garden flowers, including snapdragons, hydrangeas, zinnias, marigolds and a few straggling delphiniums, are to be seen.

Various Notes.

A Glazing Putty of Real Value

In all our experience and investigation we had never found a preparation for bulbing over the outside of a greenhouse that was quite satisfactory, until we ran across PERMANITE. This was about four years ago. At that time we set about investigating the merits of PERMANITE and proceeded to watch the results of its application to greenhouse roofs.

Last year we were entirely convinced of its high quality and durability, and accepted the western agency for the sale of these goods.

We applied PERMANITE to hundreds of greenhouse roofs, over almost every part of the United States.

The results obtained were highly satisfactory indeed. Glass roofs of all kinds, both old and new, were made water-tight and air-tight, saving thousands of plants from being spoiled by water dripping on them and saving many hundreds of tons of coal by making the roofs proof against the wind and storms of winter.

We give PERMANITE our unqualified endorsement and recommend it highly for all kinds of glazing.

We have a very large stock on hand in our warehouse and can ship immediately.

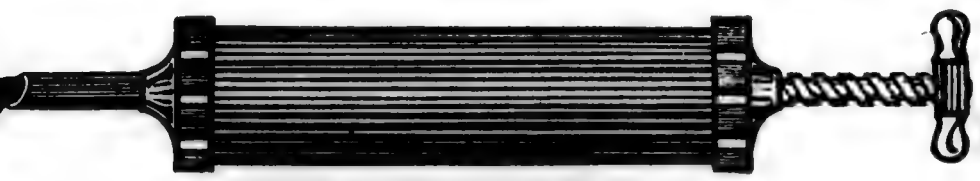
Permanite

Ever-Elastic—Never Hardens

When we say Permanite remains ever-elastic, we mean just this—that Permanite will form a protective, air-tight and water-proof glaze joint over the sash-bar, but does not harden all the way through, which means that Permanite can give with the expansion and contraction of the Greenhouse without checking, cracking or falling off.



Think of how Putty would act under like conditions and you will realize how vastly superior Permanite is to putty—or any other glazing cement for that matter.

On the other hand—Permanite hardens just about sufficiently to prevent running of the material in the summer time or cracking in the winter time; regardless of any changes in the temperature, Permanite makes an absolutely air-tight, water-tight and thoroughly dependable job—the kind that stays put at all times.

And together with the new one-hand Permanite machine, there isn't anything on this earth that can beat this combination because both the Permanite and the gun are the results of years of experience and an earnest desire to give the Greenhouse Trade a Glazing Cement worth their while.

A wise business man figures costs by the year, right down the line, and especially so if his business has to do with greenhouses. He knows, either by experience or from a close study of the subject, that the only businesslike method of determining material costs in greenhouse building is by the year—first cost and up-keep cost.

CYPRESS, "the wood eternal" for greenhouse construction, is positively the cheapest wood to use, figured by its years on the job, without repairs or replacements.

All good constructors in these days are insisting on genuine "Tide-Water" Cypress, "The Wood Eternal"—every board and bundle bearing the famous Cypress Trade-mark.

Vol. 3, CYPRESS Pocket Library, is a little book filled with a big bunch of facts and figures about greenhouse construction—profitable reading. There are 48 books in the "Library," all of which give useful facts and plans about HOW, WHEN and WHERE to use CYPRESS, "The Wood Eternal," AND WHY. Which one shall we send you?

Horticultural Society.

At the last meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society plans were completed for the annual fall show, which is to be staged September 3 and 4 at Newport beach. As the annual ball of the society occurs on the last evening, a committee, consisting of Frederick P. Webber, Howard G. Ward, Herbert Bliss, Andrew J. Dorwood, Arthur Potter, Jr., and Bruce Butterton, was appointed to make the necessary arrangements.

There was an unusual display on the exhibition table, including a new peony-flowered dahlia, a seedling, shown by James Robertson. The general characteristics of form and color are the same as Geisha, although the seedling is considered an improvement. It was awarded the society's silver medal.

Various Notes.

James P. O'Connell has been appointed a member of the Newport park commission for a term of five years, succeeding William Shepley, who had been a member since 1901.

An entire carload of floral tributes was sent to the funeral of Mrs. Charles Sargeant at Emmanuel church, Boston, last week in charge of Manager Clifford, of Joseph G. Leikens.

Stewart Ritchie furnished gladioli and other flowers for the annual fair conducted last week by the St. Columbia Guild at the Berkeley Memorial parish at Middletown.

C. Oscar Schultz is a member of the drill team of Washington Commandery Knights Templar that will compete for a prize during the coming triennial encampment at Philadelphia. W. H. M.

"Oh Boy" Automatic GLAZING Gun

The last word in one-handed guns for the application of

EVERTITE
GLAZING CEMENT

Use Evertite for all your glazing—for your new work, for tightening leaky roofs and for repairing broken glass.

Evertite Glazing Cement is made from pure rock asbestos, non-drying adhesive oils and Gilsonite—it will not check, crack, run or harden under the extremes of temperature—but will always remain in a plastic, rubber-like condition.

Evertite Glazing Cement because of its composition—will contract and expand under the stress of vibration in wind storms—but will not crack.

Evertite flows from our "Oh Boy" Gun (which we give you gratis) in a thick pencil-like stream and stays where you put it, never gathering in puddles.

Go over your glass once with Evertite Glazing Cement and then forget your glass for a long time—Saving not only the money—but also the labor. In fact, if putty were furnished you gratis—Evertite would still save you money—because of lessened labor cost.

Evertite Glazing Cement is inexpensive—It is sold for less than competing articles on the market.

It can be had in barrels, half barrels and kegs.

Write us and we will give you further information

CARNATIONS

"LADDIE." You will remember what a scramble there was for rooted cuttings of the variety last season, and how often letters were returned marked "sold out." I have made arrangements with one of the leading Carnation specialists in this country, who has a large stock of this variety, and I have had reserved for me a quantity for January, February and March delivery, 1920, and if you are in the market for this variety, would advise you to place order at once, as I could get reservation of only about one-third of quantity I wanted, and these will be sold up in a very short while. Price, $8.50 per 100, $75.00 per 1000. Terms, one-third cash deposit with order, balance just before shipment is made. No field plants this season. Will also be in position to supply other varieties.

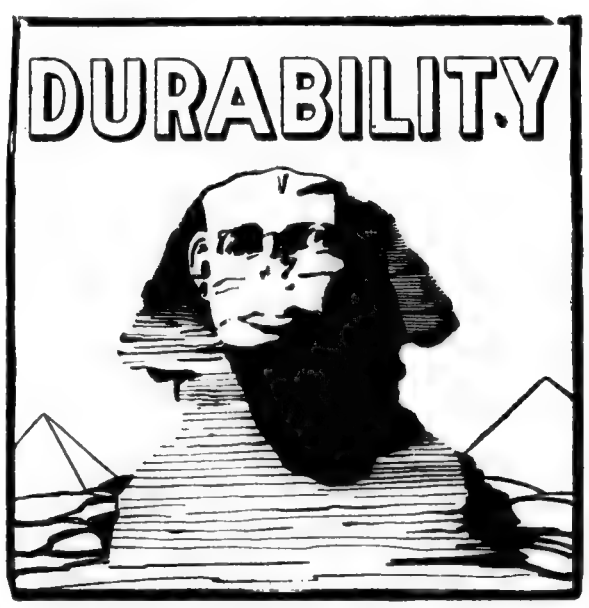
Let us explain why you should equip your Greenhouse with Advance Sash Operating Device and Greenhouse Fittings

OUR SASH OPERATING DEVICE is absolutely safe at all times, for it is a self-locking mechanism and absolutely correct in every detail. It is made of the best materials and will last forever. Besides these features, it is easy to operate and very easy to install.

It must be absolutely O. K. in every detail and respect or we would not be getting reorders from our customers.

OUR GREENHOUSE FITTINGS are all cleverly designed and are exceptionally neat and strong. You should use them for the best results.



OUR CATALOGUE thoroughly illustrates and describes our entire line of materials and we suggest that you write for one of these catalogues today. It will be mailed to you promptly and upon arrival look it over carefully, noting especially the finer points in design and construction.

Remember that we do business on the single-price basis to each and every customer. This method assures you of a fair and square transaction and we guarantee dollar for dollar values. Our co-operation with our customers is of value, and we suggest that you write us today, explaining your troubles and ideas on permanently fixing the difficulties. Remember, just a card brings our catalogue.

ADVANCE CO., Richmond, Indiana

—yes, the Egyptians used wheels, too, but they didn't have pneumatic rubber tires with demountable rims and non-skid attachments, but they were round, and wheels are still round. All the improvements from the heavy, crude wooden wheels of the ancients to the latest developments on automobile row are simply variants of the original. The principle is the same—it can't be wiped out and it can't be changed.

So too with greenhouse construction. We haven't evolved any new principles, we've simply applied world-old principles in new ways. That's why keen greenhouse men exclaim when looking over an AGMCO house:

"Why, there's nothing intricate or mysterious about the way you build a house. It's simply common sense. I wonder someone hadn't thought of it long ago."

That's just it!

Every startling invention of the age is simply the application of a principle old as time itself.

If you have an AGMCO catalogue look it over again and see how we apply some of these principles to advance your welfare. If you haven't one, send for one now.

Remember, this present moment is the only one of which you are complete master. Use it well!

INDEX TO ADVERTISEMENTS AND TABLE OF CONTENTS—PAGES TWO AND THREE

How the Burnham would look cut through at the side. Note the gases going up through the side flue openings between EACH SECTION.

Note the chalk mark. That's how the hot gases travel in the boilers that have only back flue openings.

Burnham Boiler Side Flue Openings Prevent Back-Section "Gas-Scooting"

CONSIDER what happens in a boiler that has no side flue openings.

The only way the gases can get up into the "upper story," where the fire travel starts, is at the back. The draft pulling on the hot gases, draws them away from the front, against the back sections. They follow about the course that our friend above has indicated with his chalk line.

The back sections are over heated. The front sections under heated.

Such uneven heating is not efficient heating.

That's why the Burnham has side flue openings on each side of the boiler, between each section in the Burnham.

The oval illustration at the left shows how the hot gases are led up into the "upper story," between each section, equally heating each.

No scooting of the gases to a single flue opening at the back. No heating the rear sections at the expense of the front ones. There are hard-headed common sense reasons back of every point in the Burnham's construction.

Our catalogue points out 99 more of the "reasons." Send for it.

"You Can Get It At RANDALL'S"

We want it understood that no matter what a Florist wants, be he. grower, jobber or retailer, he can get it at Randall's. Here, awaiting your order, is a really and truly complete stock of Retailers' Accessories and Greenhouse Supplies. Florists who visited the famous came away with some conception of the wonderful variety and great size of Randall's stock of Florists' Supplies, but we want to make it strong—at Randall's you can get everything used in the Florists' business.

Randall Room at the Convention

The best way to know the resources of this establishment is to visit the Chicago Market. There are many other things which may be done with pleasure and profit in the Chicago Market, but it will pay every florist to spend a day every now and then at Randall's.

It takes more than a day to see Randall's samples and go through Randall's factory.

Randall's is first hands. Randall's actually manufactures in its own factories a large variety of merchandise, is distributor for other factories and is direct importer from Europe on such lines as cannot be better made at home. (Our Buyer sailed for France, Italy and England, April 5, the first to go over after the war and our importations have been arriving for months.) Randall's stock is so large, so varied, that its inspection never fails to afford new ideas of business possibilities for the Retail Florist or Jobber, and the prices are so close they are seldom equaled and never beaten by anyone selling at a profit.

The Randall Supply business has become the largest in America, but it would be still larger if more buyers came personally to market and saw the opportunities here afforded them.

It is high time orders were being placed for Autumn and Winter. The Florist who gets his goods now will pay no more, if as much, and next winter he will be pushing his selling when the other fellow is spending his time hunting for merchandise or waiting for it to come.

The Randall salesman in your territory will serve you well, but there is inspiration in a visit to Chicago, the Great Central Market.

Dreer's Choice Double Herbaceous Peonies

With the present quarantine in force against the importation of nearly all kinds of bulbs, roots and plants, it will only be a short time when there will be a shortage of this class of stock and prices will naturally advance.

We are fortunate in having this season the largest stock of Peonies that we have yet produced, all in the finest commercial varieties, which we offer in strong divisions of three to five eyes each and in stock that is true to name. Ready for delivery after September 25th.

Peterson's Perfect Peonies

As I Grow Festiva Maxima

An Announcement

SO long as the puny, often diseased and wrongly-named, foreign-grown Peony roots were dumped on our market, I contented myself for the past fifteen years in having the biggest and highest grade direct-to-planter Peony business in this country.

Now that a new, and, I am sure, better era is opening for American floriculture, I am going to make a bid for a share of the best trade business as well.

The Peony has been a hobby of mine for twenty-five years and for the past fifteen years my time, the year round, has been devoted exclusively to this flower and the Rose.

I like to deal with particular and appreciative people, as I am particular myself to almost "fussiness." And it's just this particularness that has brought my Peonies to such a state of perfection that a careful, daily examination last June showed that we did not have more than one mixture or misnamed Peony to every 20,000 plants.

Three European nurserymen who visited my fields last June expressed amazement at the uniformly strong, clean growth of my plants, as well as the size and abundance of bloom. They frankly told me that they had never, anywhere in this country or abroad, seen the Peony grown on a large scale to such a degree of perfection.

For the past fifteen years I have published annually the leading exclusive Peony catalog. The edition for this Fall is now ready and will be sent on request, together with a trade price-list if you will but mention this publication.

My divisions this fall will be taken exclusively from two-year and three-year-old clumps. These were propagated and planted while wages were still nearly normal. In consequence, our prices are lower this Fall than they probably will be in many years.

Now—this Fall—is the time to plant.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

TIME TO REVIVE STEAMER TRADE

Every steamship bound for Europe is booked full one to two months before sailing. Tourist travel will be permitted October 1. The public is buying flowers freely. Telegraph orders are increasingly popular. Surely the time to revive the tremendous pre-war steamer trade is now.

FIRST of the blows struck the florists' trade by the war was the loss of the orders for bon voyage tokens to be delivered on board vessels bound for foreign ports. Tourists to Europe created the largest part of this trade, and when they were forced to stay at home, the retailers in the eastern ports lost a tremendous business and the florists all over the country who had been wiring the orders to those ports suffered a reduction in telegraph business. In the course of five years the florists' trade has become used to the absence of the steamer orders, particularly since business in other lines has been extraordinarily good. But the development of the trade to greater levels demands the encouragement of all forms of flower buying. Now, when ocean travel is so strong that it crowds all the boats sailing, when the ban on tourists is about to be lifted by the government, when flower buying is liberal and wire orders are popular, never was a better time to urge the public to resume its former custom of sending flowers to departing voyagers.

Pre-War Trade.

Before the war the average number of passengers per day leaving for foreign ports from New York was about 500 persons. These were all cabin passengers. At the height of the tourist season the average per day approached 1,000 persons. Sometimes the figure ran as high as 5,000 for a single day. These figures, it must be remembered, are only for New York. Approximately half a million cabin passengers left this country each year bound for foreign ports, some for pleasure, others on business. And it may be said without equivocation that the large majority of these half million tourists were patrons of the retail florist in their home town.

Flowers Said "Bon Voyage."

April was the starting month of the steamer trade and enough people left New York each week to populate a small town. Saturday, the favorite day of sailing, the steamer lists of cabin passengers ran well into the thousands. The tourists came from all parts of the United States and flowers were the accepted token of "bon voyage." Steamer sailings were published weekly in The Review, which enabled the florists to keep their patrons, as well as themselves, posted on the departure of the various ocean liners. As a result, the retailers in the ocean ports had a steamer business during these months as important as any other department of their trade. In fact, in some cases it was of more importance.

It was not an uncommon sight to see several truck loads of flowers drive up to the docks just before sailing time. Steamship officials were soon forced to make special provisions for the delivery of flowers. The retailers exerted great care in making up the orders and constantly devised novel ways of preparing the floral tokens. Little touches were added that attracted the recipient's attention and inevitably led to greater business.

Then came the great war, that snuffed out the steamer trade. Tourist travel was completely cut off. Now the problem confronts the florist of building up the trade again. The fact that hundreds of thousands, yes millions, of young men went abroad without any bon voyage tokens and that hundreds of government officials went to European countries minus the cheering atmosphere of flowers counts not at all. Bon voyage flowers are chiefly for feminine travelers, rarely for masculine, and now that business men may take their wives and tourists go with their families the old habit should be regained quickly.

Hundreds of Baskets Like This Used to be Delivered on Outgoing Steamers.

"The fact that many people went to Europe for the government and on other important businesses when no permission was granted to send flowers on board ship," says Max Schling, the New York retailer, "gave the public the idea that their friends also could go abroad without flowers. This impression is far more damaging to the florists' business than the loss in money.

Must Tell Public.

"The steamers are now running quite regularly and the companies are permitting us to deliver to their passengers any friendly gift that may make their first days on the steamer more pleasant. What we florists have to do is to draw the attention of our patrons to this fact and tell them what we believe ourselves, namely, that there is nothing which will give a traveler so much cheer and help in his or her first lonesome hours on an outgoing boat as the thoughts which their dear ones may express in sending flowers. The best way to overcome the difficulty is to advertise 'Send Flowers to Your Friends on Board Ship' in every possible way.

"The steamship companies themselves are only too glad if their passengers are cheered up with flowers. In former years any change on the steamer schedule was arranged without the florists being recognized as worthy enough to be notified of these changes. However, several of the larger companies are now mailing regular notices advising us of sailings. Before the importance of the steamer trade was recognized we had only printed matter to assure us of the sailing hours of the various liners and we were unable to get much information over the telephone. Now the steamship companies will help us all they can."

Flower Buying Liberal.

Abnormal times and war-time restrictions are rapidly being forgotten and everybody is looking forward to the future. More money is being spent now than ever before. Wages are higher and luxuries are demanded by everybody. Never before has there been such a demand for automobiles. Many manufacturers are unable to fill orders for three months. The floors of the salesrooms are bare, and cars are driven away as soon as they arrive.

The florists' business is prospering too. But the demand should be increased. The automobile manufacturers have done it by means of advertising. The florists can do likewise, especially in regard to the steamer trade. If patrons have forgotten the custom of sending steamer flowers, the trade can remind them of it.

The steamship lines are resuming a regular schedule. Although tourist travel has been restricted by government regulations, boats leaving New York and other ocean ports are filled to their capacity. The French Line established a record in the matter of transporting passengers from New York to France, four ships clearing from New York the week of July 28 carrying more than 5,000 passengers. The Cunard Line is completely filled up and has a waiting list, while the International Mercantile Marine Line is booked for five weeks in advance.

Passage at Premium.

"At the present time there is a great demand for passage to virtually all corners of the globe," stated the Journal of Commerce last week. "The Cunard New York line is booked through October, while the same conditions exist at the International Mercantile Marine. From England reports have come that premiums of £50 are being offered for any kind of accommodations to the United States. The French Line is experiencing the same demand for passage to America and from New York to Havre.

"The Lamport & Holt line to South America announced some time ago that it was booked through the October sailings both on the southward and northward voyage."

Four steamers left the harbor of New York August 30 and were filled to their capacity. If the average number of passengers per boat was 500, excluding steerage, a total of 2,000 people left for Europe that day. Yet the number of flowers delivered to the boats were few.

The time is ripe for action. Steamer travel is on the increase and steamer flowers should keep pace with it. If the public neglects sending flowers to outgoing boats, the trade must take steps to recall this once popular custom, and one that will become as popular again. And it will become as profitable to the trade again, to the retailers at the ports and to the retailers who wire the orders from inland cities.

Steamer Sailings.

The following sailing list, displayed in a conspicuous place in the window or store or used in advertising matter with the information that you have facilities for filling bon voyage orders on short notice, will help in reviving the steamer trade:

BARNES NOW AT BINGHAMTON.

Stanley G. Barnes, formerly connected with the Flower Shop, at Pittsfield, Mass., opened a store, also under the name of the Flower Shop, at Binghamton, N. Y., August 23. The store is located in the center of the shopping district, in the building of the Binghamton Chamber of Commerce. Harry Knaust, a former business associate of Mr. Barnes, is assisting in the management of the store.

One feature of the shop is the display window, which Mr. Barnes believes is exceptionally fine, being within a wide range of vision. The appearance of this attraction on the opening day is shown by the accompanying illustration. The shop is equipped with a McCray refrigerator and counter of up-to-date type and is furnished with willow furniture. The prevailing color in decoration and finish is a delicate green. The visitors' opening day exceeded the expectations of Mr. Barnes, and their favor gives him anticipation of excellent business. To that end, he has joined the F. T. D.

DUDLEY HEIRS BUY STORE.

By a recently arranged transaction the store of the J. W. Dudley Sons Co. at Huntington, W. Va., became the property September 1 of Mrs. Laurane B. McClure and T. Harold Coffman. Mrs. McClure and Mr. Coffman are the grandchildren of the late J. W. Dudley, the founder of the business.

Mrs. McClure has been the manager of the store since it was started ten years ago. Mr. Coffman has been located in Parkersburg, Clarksburg and Huntington at different times in the interest of the J. W. Dudley Sons Co., which operates stores in these towns and in Marietta, O., also. He recently was discharged from the army, with which he served eighteen months in France.

The new proprietors will retain the location at 913 Fourth avenue. They are already negotiating for an extensive acreage on which to build greenhouses and cultivate flowers. The consideration involved has not been disclosed. The business was started in 1910 by C. P. and B. J. Dudley under the name of Dudley Bros. It was sold in 1913 to J. W. Dudley Sons Co.

THE GAIN OF GETTING TOGETHER

TO BRING the matter of coöperation right home, may I ask, have we yet begun to realize and appreciate, at even its face value, the spirit of sane comradeship that may mean so much? Is there between employer and employee that loyalty which is the only guarantee of good service? Is there between retailer and retailer, grower and distributor, buyer and seller an "esprit de corps" which we try to make ourselves believe is part of our business creed? Might there not be an element of truth in the assertion that in the years behind us the watchword has been, "Every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost." But we are growing wiser.

Where are we with reference to the problem of labor? The employer has a right to expect fair work for fair pay. Has the worker an equal right to expect fair pay for fair work? The employer can reasonably expect his workers to be physically fit. A washed out automaton is a bore, and while I would not concede the employer the right to control his help after hours, he can assume that, everything else being equal, he will have a man to do a man's job. Now, then, may the worker look for conditions that shall make it possible for his best to be given? May he fairly expect that his labor shall not altogether deprive him of either the time or the vim for real living? Is he fanatical when he says that sixty hours a week and something on Sundays is unfair to himself, his family and the community? I leave the answer. All kinds of suggestions are being made to meet the restless conditions, all steps in the right direction, even though they are sometimes taken in a panic, but I venture an appeal for a breadth of outlook, a sympathy of understanding, a frank recognition of that community of interest, without which all the others are mere makeshifts.

Wholesaler and Retailer.

Coöperation between wholesaler and retailer. I know what I venture when I mention this branch of my subject and I realize that I am on thin ice, but a frank statement of the case may do no harm. We are told that the growers plan only for high prices and holiday demand. They grade low, charge high, do not regulate output, and outside their regular trade supply cut-rate dealers, drug and department stores at prices far below the rates charged their regular trade.

It is said that at this season you can go on the market of any large-sized Ontario town and buy from hucksters stock shipped in from the larger growers at prices far too close to the prices on their wholesale quotations. We further hear the complaint that, even though it is recognized there must sometimes be a surplus, the regular trade does not get any advantage offered it. Still another grumble is heard that the wholesaler too often dabbles at the legitimate retail business. This is denied, I know, but one has occasionally heard of retail and wholesale shipments of flowers being put on the same train to the same town from the same shipper. These are a few of the complaints we hear.

Now for the other side. A fair question to ask is, is there on the part of the retailer any real desire to link up with the grower that shortages and surpluses may as far as possible be avoided? Does the average retailer ask too much when he expects to secure stock just as if it were hardware or dry goods? Does he begin to realize the nature of the large grower's business and the perishable nature of the stock he handles, and does he seek by any method or foresight or business acumen to so calculate his wants that the producer has half a chance to find a steady output for his production? Is it fair to the grower that with only a day's notice standing orders should be canceled, thus throwing back on him the surplus stock which has to be marketed somewhere or go to the garbage pile? Has he when he has helped to put the grower in this position any right to complain about the latter's method of turning his stock into dollars and cents? Perhaps if retailers generally would add some knowledge of the science of flower production to their knowledge of the art of flower manipulation, there would be a better understanding of the situation.

What are the remedies suggested? May I apply my principle? Could not some reasonable system be formulated whereby the grower and the retailer could get together and at least discuss the vital matters affecting both. They are each entitled to a decent living with something left over, and if instead of pulling in two or three directions some united effort could be made, that long pull, strong pull, and pull all together would help tremendously the daily life of all concerned. The alleged hold-ups on the one hand and the inconsiderate action on the other would soon be things of the past, and safer, sounder, simpler methods would take their place.

Retailer and Retailer.

Would closer coöperation between retailer and retailer be an advantage? In the minds of thinking men there can hardly be a shadow of doubt that there is everything to gain and nothing to lose in a close association of those who are retail florists. This is already being brought about, but there is still a long way to go. Florists' clubs are doing really good work in this connection, caring for many of the things that easily allow for combined action. Could not this be extended so that the work done would be educational as well as social? Is it too much a dream to imagine the larger florists giving the less accomplished members of the craft more of the benefit of their experience and training? Those of us who dwell in the small towns seldom have any means of bringing our ideas and methods up to date excepting through the pages of the trade papers, and the best men do not always write. Let the big fellows join the little ones more often in combined advertising whereby the latter get a share of publicity, impossible under any other arrangement. Could we not more often have combined advertisements covering all the florists in a town or city or even district?

May I make an appeal here for a much broader interpretation of the F. T. D. idea? I want to suggest that if the telegraph idea is ever going to grow as it should, we have to think larger and act with more vision than has yet been done. The scheme is only yet in its advertising stage, and until it passes that, if ever it does, advertising should be constantly in the minds of those who are members, with a clearer conception of what the F. T. D. might become. Might it not be well if we were so saturated with the idea that to express an order which could by any chance be given a fellow florist would be considered not playing the game? Would I be risking much in the assertion that three-fourths of the flower buying public in this country does not yet know that the organization exists, and might I not add they never will until we grow bigger in our methods?

Coöperation in reference to hours of business, methods of business (covering such details as deliveries, etc.) and prices are each so controlled by geography that general rules are impossible. Often in the same city one man can live on half the profit the next has to secure to pay expenses. An arbitrary rule here is of course unwise, but these matters might well come under discussion and perhaps sensible decision. Coöperative purchasing is a large subject that I only just mention. In these days of soaring prices, anything in this direction that could properly be done to lessen expenses would certainly increase sales and profits, and it does seem possible to Educating Flower Buyers.

Coöperation with the great carrying companies for the sake of better packing and better distribution I only mention in passing to a word on coöperation with the public. Earlier in these notes I mentioned community as one of the elements that go to the making up of good trade. There is here a field for endless opportunity. The buyer is not a person to be swindled, but one to whom the best service and the best information should be honestly given. The buying public is more and more seeking to learn horticulture from every angle, and the best seller in the long run is the one who knows and appreciates at its real value the article he is selling.

Flower buyers need educating in their buying more than we sometimes think, and a whole-hearted coöperation with them is after all only good business. By teaching his patrons something of the language of flowers, by showing how much is possible in the providing of real expression by means of flowers, by using his best efforts to stimulate the freer intelligent interchange of flowers, he is consciously or unconsciously forming an association with the buyer that is bound to be helpful to both. I seriously commend to your thought this aspect of the subject.

We are producers and distributors in one of the noblest professions on earth. The day is past for even thinking of our business as nonessential; we came through the years of war better than we thought and now, with heads erect and hopes high, are building for the reign of peace. May I quote Henry Penn, the prince of publicity? Speaking of the ending of the war, he says: "Out of all this will come happiness, progress and a spirit of friendship over all the world that will make this sphere a better and happier one for those having lived in it through such a period, by each one doing his part toward his fellow-man so that we may all share in the blessings to follow."

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

MINIMUM ON F. T. D. ORDERS.

I have noted with interest the discussion relative to a minimum on F. T. D. orders. No doubt it would be a fine thing to have a $4 or $5 minimum, but it would cut down the F. T. D. business to a large extent. We make every effort to get the orders above that amount, but there are many times when it is impossible to do so. With a minimum established, these orders would be lost.

An idea that might possibly help is to have the trade papers give the average selling price on the different flowers in the different sections of the country. If a customer comes in and wants a dozen roses for Memphis, Tenn., or Houston, Tex., and they are $5 a dozen there while we are selling them at $3 here, we could show him the price list in the trade paper and he would not think we were getting $2 extra for telegraphing the order. The country might be divided into sections, namely, New England states, middle Atlantic, southern, western, etc. I know that the wholesale price lists are published and also quotations from different cities scattered throughout the country, but it would help us a great deal if the retail prices were gathered together on one or two pages so that they could be shown to customers. G. T. Ryan.

SUNDAY CLOSING.

We believe the tendency of the times is in favor of Sunday closing and believe the majority of the florists of this country will eventually come to it. Of course, there may be times, such as during the holidays, on Mothers' day and Easter, when it is advisable to open, but in the majority of cases it is not necessary. The public generally knows in time if a funeral is to be held on Sunday and can order just as well on Saturday. The undertakers in cities of 100,000 or less will eventually come to it, as in one big southern city the undertakers agreed among themselves not to bury anyone on Sunday except in case of a contagious disease.

Following is the text of one of the advertisements which we placed in local papers when we began the practice of closing Sunday:

FLORAL SERVICE AND SUNDAY CLOSING ARE A HOBBY WITH US.

Tradition is now being broken in all the large cities of the country by florists who now close on Sunday.

There has never been any good or sound reason as to why a flower shop should remain open on Sunday. The public now know they cannot obtain gasoline, have a car repaired, buy meat, groceries, postage stamps or get a shave on Sunday.

Even the United Cigar Stores have recently ordered their stores in every city in the country closed on Sunday.

Beginning today, our flower shop will be closed on Sunday. We believe our employes as well as ourselves are entitled to a rest.

We ask the coöperation of the public, to buy early Saturday.

No phones answered, no orders taken, no order filled for Sunday delivery after 8 p. m. Saturday night.

Green the Florist.

HIGH BULB PRICES.

I have read with interest the bulb reports in The Review. It appears to me that the French and Dutch think that there is too much money in America and that they should have it. In the early part of the year French bulbs were scarce and the price advanced, but now there are plenty of Paper Whites. Dutch bulbs are reported scarce and accordingly the prices are advanced. Would it not be a good thing if all the florists of America told the Hollanders to reduce the prices and guarantee sound bulbs on arrival, or else eat them? We take chances enough with them when they are sound, without buying f. o. b. Holland. No matter how poor the bulbs are on arrival, we have to pay for them as in the Ebeling suit, reported in The Review of August 7. Hydrangeas take the place of azaleas. Other plants will be taking the place of hyacinths, etc., until the Hollanders become more reasonable.

WOES OF A FLORIST'S WIFE.

I start in cleaning up my house;
It takes me an hour or two,
Because, in every way I turn,
I have to pick up a Florists' Review.

And I wonder if other florists' wives
Have the same thing to contend with, too;
I wonder if their husbands, like mine,
Just swear by The Florists' Review.

If there's anything he wants to know
About growing anything new,
He knows exactly where to find it—
It's in The Florists' Review.

When we first became subscribers
I used to be interested, too,
But, now, do you wonder I'm disgusted
At the sight of a Florists' Review?

But I'm sending in the renewal;
There's nothing else for me to do,
Because, if all florists' wives feel as I,
What would become of The Florists' Review?

Mrs. Tom O'Connor.

THAT LARGE SEEDLESS VERBENA.

In The Review for August 14, G. H., Ia., asks about a "beautiful pink verbena, considerably larger than any seedling verbena, a profuse bloomer, which never seeds, but is propagated by runners." This undoubtedly is the variety known as Henderson or Oxford, the names being synonymous. I had stock of it many years ago, but let it get away from me, although it always was a good seller. In the same issue that carried the inquiry of G. H. there was an advertisement of the variety by the Calvert Floral Co., Lake Forest, Ill., offering it as Queen of Oxford. I also have seen offers of it in The Review by Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, who have a good strain. August Jurgens.

VERBENA BEAUTY OF OXFORD.

Answering G. H., Ia., whose query was on page 22 of The Review for August 14, the verbena probably is Beauty of Oxford. Joseph M. Smely.

BANK ADVERTISES FLOWERS.

In a recent edition of a Pittsburgh daily newspaper an advertisement of the Union Trust Co. appeared which appealed to the florists of the Smoky City. In a space a little over 4x5 inches, the bank reproduced a sketch of the canopy over its entrance, laden with vines. Under the heading, "A Touch of Nature," appeared the following paragraph:

"Years ago the Union Trust Co. started the pleasing little custom of adorning its windows and canopy with ferns and trailing vines—all summer long they add a touch of attractiveness to the banking house, bringing freshness to a prosaic business street."

PLANT PEONIES NOW.

Now is the time to plant peonies and irises if good blooms are expected next year. A common mistake is made by those who wait until spring before securing the plants. The plants have exceedingly thick storage roots, which send out numerous small feeding roots during the fall. When transplanted these roots must be destroyed and a new set allowed to grow. Therefore those who intend planting peonies and irises should do so now and they will produce excellent blooms next year.

THE SPEECH OF SENTIMENT

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS."

Best Conveyers of Sentiment.

Flowers carry the greatest message into all conditions of our lives, in a more direct manner than any other agency on earth. They carry messages of sympathy, love, friendship, congratulation, in fact all the most desirable sentiments, and are received in each instance by an appreciation which is incalculable when compared with the value of more materialistic commodities. If a person near and dear suffers a great bereavement, there is no way to assuage the loss and convey our sympathy better than sending a token of flowers in some form. The message is concise and complete, and on such an occasion the flowers seem to blend with the surroundings and they seem to droop their heads and try to look their best as if to spread what cheer and comfort they can.

Consider a wedding, how incomplete such a function would be without the house or church being decorated with plants and flowers, and who in their wildest imagination can think of a bride in all her wedding finery without a shower bouquet? On such an occasion flowers are almost as necessary as the bride herself.

Help at a Needful Time.

A lovesick swain has fallen head over heels in love with "the only girl in the world"; he makes a call, his little speech is all ready, because he has rehearsed it numerous times, but when the "zero hour" arrives, the inevitable lump comes into his throat, he is extremely nervous, and his courage fails. The next day, as they say in the movies, his mind is whirling like an electric fan on a hot day, and he is trying to devise a plan whereby he can let her know the depth of his infatuation. At last the weight is off his mind, the fog has lifted, and the world looks bright once more. He visits a florist, procures a dozen of the best roses; they are daintily packed in a box, accompanied by his card, and delivered to the object of his affections. When he calls again, if the roses are occupying a prominent place in the parlor, that message implies that he has made a hit, and if she should show her appreciation with a kiss—well, that would be a home run. If she acts indifferently, that is significant enough and our hero acts accordingly. Not a word need be said; the roses have done all the talking.

Their Message is Various.

What is there on God's footstool that breathes the breath of life in a sick room in such a tender manner as a flowering plant or a bunch of fragrant flowers? At such a time the patient needs all the mental food procurable, and what comfort and happiness the afflicted one must gain by having them near by where she can pass the dreary hours in watching each flower as it develops and the sweet memories that they leave after they have faded and gone!

A young lady is graduating or making her debut. Just think what it means at that important event in her life to be the recipient of a bouquet of some sort. How proudly she carries it! She is all smiles as she shows it to all her acquaintances, and usually she gives them all a smell so that they can share it with her.

From time immemorial we have heard of hubby being out with congenial friends. He anticipates the icy glances that will be his on his return. What does he do in such a contingency? Why, he takes home a box of flowers for wifey. The icy stare changes to a smile and all is serene, and again the flowers do the necessary talking.

Forlorn indeed and forgotten looks the grave on Memorial day that has not been embellished with plants or flowers, and it is well to note in this connection that natural flowers convey a message that artificial ones do not. The latter do not fit into the order of things, for they give too much of a material effect.

At Christmas and Easter, in fact, all during the winter, when all outdoors is bare and brown, how acceptable and appropriate is a gift of a plant in bloom, or cut flowers!

Satisfy a Normal Want.

Every normal human being is a lover of flowers by instinct. Children who live in cities, when taken for a day's outing in the country, are overwhelmed by the loveliness of nature; invariably they begin picking wild flowers and consider they have found a treasure garden. At "the end of a perfect day" the little ones turn homeward again, tired but happy, still clutching their precious bouquets to keep until they wither and die, but leaving a message of the most tender memories that linger in the minds of most children during their entire lives.

Take a trip along a country road and see a farmhouse. Isolated though it is, there is an old-fashioned flower garden with its blaze of color, the whole picture conveying a message of peace, tranquillity and confidence.

We could well attempt to cultivate the indomitable spirit of every member of the floral kingdom. In their wild state flowers are trampled on and uprooted, but given the least encouragement they will start all over again and in due time be in full flower, swaying in the wind and acting as though adversity had never come their way. They fill a much larger sphere in our lives than we realize, and we come to look upon them in a commonplace, matter-of-fact manner, but just the same this world would be a dreary place without them. And the wonder of it all is, what

TATE'S TIPS

KEEP ABREAST OF THE TIMES.

What a Trade Journal Does.

One of the principal missions of any good trade journal is to educate its readers along the lines of the particular trade they are engaged in. This it is able to do by maintaining a staff of experienced correspondents in every city of this country and Canada, whose duty it is to watch the market each week in their particular location and report conditions. This is not a matter of telling the trade what the existing prices of stock may be, for in many cases this will be known before it is possible for the paper to reach them. The main duty of these correspondents is to find out what stock is selling best at a certain season, what stock there is a glut of, the varieties of certain stock most sought after, the best means of handling stock, and, in fact, anything that may be of interest to the grower. The same thing holds good with the retailer. As these men go from store to store, all over the country, and report innovations used by florists who are progressive, it is but natural that they will give other florists ideas. Often the readers can improve on the original ideas. It is nothing but many ideas worked out that makes the successful business.

Never in all my experience had I any idea that so much poor stock was grown, until I took up the work of reporting. When I say this, it is not to be construed to mean that it was because of poor cultural methods. In my opinion the great trouble seems to lie in the men who are not progressive and fail to keep abreast of the times.

Two Kinds of Stock.

A large shipment of gladioli was shown to me recently in one of our commission houses. If the grower of these got enough out of them to pay express charges, to say nothing of his trouble, he was lucky. Yet, on the adjoining table were some of these same flowers selling readily for $4, $6 and $8 per hundred. The trouble is that there are a number of growers, particularly small growers, who fail to keep in touch with the only medium that will keep them enlightened.

To illustrate, it is my yearly custom at this season to make a pilgrimage to one of the largest dahlia farms in this country. At this place a trial ground is maintained where every new variety on the market is planted, where it can be kept under the watchful eye of one of the firm, who studies its habit, color, growth, foliage, stems, how it stands wet and dry weather, etc., and if any particular variety does not come up to requirements, it is soon discarded. But should a variety prove good, a note is made of it and you may be sure stock of this particular variety is increased.

For instance, two years ago when I made my visit I saw for the first time King of Autumn. At that time there was just one row of about 150 plants in all, but the man in charge was loud in his praise of the merits of this variety. On my last visit I was shown about two acres of this variety in full bloom and a finer sight I have never seen. They had just begun to cut from this patch the day before, when 1,600 had been sent to market, and as I stood and admired them, it would have been an easy matter to cut 2,000.

Small Grower Has Opportunity.

I can hear some of my readers say this is all right for a large establishment like this; my reply is that this is how the establishment became so large. Any man can do the same thing (and remember it is to the small grower I am talking in particular; the larger ones do not need to be reminded). Let any grower keep in close touch with the columns in which the merits of new varieties are discussed. It matters not whether they are roses, dahlias or gladioli, when they are put on the market they will be advertised. Get a few and try them. If it is a success, you will be in a position to get in on the ground floor and share in the large returns for your trouble. When a new variety of anything becomes popular and everyone has it, as a rule it becomes cheap. The man who is progressive usually then has something to take its place.

As I bring this article to a close I have in mind a man who started business on his own account a short time before Mr. Grant established The Review. This magazine was his only textbook, and he studied it as a lawyer would his law books, and remember, like all florists who embarked in the business in the early nineties, his start was humble. He did most of his own work, and many a night you could find him, with the light of a lantern, watching his fires, going over the columns of The Review, and not the reading columns only, but the advertisements as well. The result was that nothing new came on the market but that he was posted about it. When he died, a few years ago, he had one of the most up-to-date ranges in his city.

There never was a time in the history of the business when the small grower had the opportunities he has now to become prosperous. The secret of the whole thing is to keep up with the times, grow nothing but the best stock and by doing this eliminate waste. But after all of this is done, don't fail to see that your stock is properly packed for market.

THE CARNATION PROSPECT.

If carnations were scarce last season there seems little chance that they will be more plentiful in the one now opening. It is true that a considerable number of greenhouses which were idle last winter will be in operation this season, but it is unlikely that those planted to carnations will increase the production in any notable degree. In the first place, the aggregate season's planting can not exceed the quantity of cuttings rooted last winter, less the summer's loss. Anyone who tried to buy cuttings last spring or field-grown plants this summer knows how small the supply has been. It seems extremely doubtful if the total number of plants benched in the country as a whole, for 1919-20 flowers, equals the number benched a year ago. Then there is the question of quality. As a rule the plants are not so good as a year ago. In the east the stock in the fields suffered from excessive rains and benching was delayed, while around Chicago, the country's chief shipping point for flowers, the season was too dry and the plants are not so good as last year. Poor plants mean a late cut. It will be well along in the season before full production is reached.

It seems quite certain that October, November and December will see a demand for carnations exceeding the supply, with prices again profitable to all branches of the trade.

CUTTING BACK CARNATIONS.

Can old carnation plants be cut back to make up for a shortage of new plants? F. J. H.—Utah.

Carnation plants can be carried over to the second season and may produce enough flowers to make them profitable. In order to do this they require special treatment during the summer months. I doubt whether old plants cut back at this time of the year will produce enough flowers to make it worth while to hold the bench for them, instead of utilizing the space for some other plants.

M. P.

SOIL FOR CARNATION PLANTS.

Please inform me as to the value of the following formula for sterilizing soil for carnations: Dissolve one ounce of sodium cyanide in eight gallons of water. Saturate the soil well and allow it to become dry before planting. Would this help old soil? A. O. C.—N. Y.

I have never heard of anyone using sodium cyanide for sterilizing soil. I have never known of anything that will put old soil into fit condition for planting carnations except to spread it out on the field and sow it in grass or some similar crop, allowing it to lie for a period of several years. I have seen and heard of many attempts at growing carnations in old soil, but have seen exceedingly few successes and my advice to you is to use new soil each year.

STEEL SITUATION CLEARER.

Greenhousemen who have been disturbed in their calculations regarding the erection of new glass by the difficulties in the steel industry will find signs of relief in the following excerpt from a leading journal's report of the steel situation:

"The labor situation which has been hanging like a fog over the steel and iron industry for some weeks shows hopeful signs of clearing. The action of the workers' organization in postponing action from time to time and the fact that the vote taken by the men on the strike has not been announced, give evidence that the strength of the agitators had been overestimated, and now the feeling is general that there will be no strike. The United States Steel Corporation made its determination plain in the correspondence passing between the labor leaders and the chairman of the board of directors, that in no circumstances would they treat with the union as such. Nothing remains now but to wait developments and the temper of the majority of the men is believed not to be favorable to a strike. The stability of the market has not been shaken by the possibility of serious labor trouble, and now that prospects are for harmony the undertone has been considerably strengthened."

BUSINESS BOOMING.

There never has been a time when the demand for stock of all kinds was stronger than now, as witness the following extracts from letters received at the office of The Review last week:

We sold out our 20,000 carnation plants in short order through our last week's ad.—The Brown Floral Co., Canton, O., August 19, 1919.

We appreciate the rush of business which is coming to us through our ad in The Review.—Los Angeles Geranium Co., August 13, 1919.

We sold all our carnation plants on telegraph orders before we received The Review that contained the ad.—John Eitel & Son, Greencastle, Ind., August 18, 1919.

The Review certainly brings the buyers. I have returned over $2,000 worth of orders for chrysanthemums and carnation plants in the last two weeks. Enclosed find check for bill of $7.74.—William H. Ford, Marshalltown, Ia., August 18, 1919.

We are oversold as a result of the classified ads and are busy returning money sent us for carnation plants and geraniums.—Truitt's Greenhouses, Chanute, Kan., August 20, 1919.

If you hear a florist complain of the cost of advertising you may be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

THRIPS ON ASTERS.

Will you kindly tell me how to destroy thrips on asters grown in greenhouses?

W. L. E.—Ky.

The most effective remedy that I know for destroying thrips on any kind of plants is Hammond's Thrip Juice No. 2, made by Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y.

Follow out the directions given with the juice, being sure to spray all parts of the plant thoroughly. It should be applied through a fine nozzle, so as to make a misty spray that will reach both sides of the leaves. After the first spraying, according to directions, it is a good plan to reduce the strength of the solution slightly. Spray regularly about once a week. The thrips are most active during the hottest part of the day, but there is danger of burning some of the foliage if the spraying is done at that time. Therefore it is best to do it in the cool of the evening. M. P.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

H. E. MEADER.

THE new president of the American Gladiolus Society is a New Hampshire man, coming of rugged New England stock, and is not yet 40 years of age. For over a decade he has specialized in gladioli, of late years devoting most of his ground to the newer and choicer varieties. Some time ago he purchased for $3,000 the main stock of A. E. Kunderd's Lily White, perhaps the finest commercial white yet seen, for which he received numerous orders at the Detroit convention. Mr. Meader has been vice-president of the American Gladiolus Society for two years and is a member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and other organizations. He has won many prizes and medals at gladiolus shows in Boston, New York and other cities. He has just opened a fine flower store in his home city of Dover, N. H., and will undoubtedly succeed as well in this as in his other lines of activity.

DES MOINES, IA.

State Fair.

The Iowa state fair, just closed, was one of the most successful fairs ever held here, both in point of attendance and in number and excellence of exhibits.

In the flower department the plant exhibits were especially large and fine. There were four exhibitors in this class, the Alpha Floral Co., the Wilson Floral Co., the Iowa Seed Co., and the Kirkwood Floral Co. Out of twenty-six exhibits in this class, the Iowa Seed Co. won sixteen first prizes, the other ten first prizes being divided among the other three exhibitors.

There was little competition in the cut flower classes. The prizes were divided between the Wilson Floral Co. and the Alpha Floral Co.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

G. E. L., Pa.—The culture has been described many times in The Review. We will send a page if you will supply your name and address.

H. S. V. H., S. D.—The war is over. Why change names of German varieties at this late day?

McK. F. S., Tex.—Plant calla bulbs directly in bench or start in pots and shift. Freesias can be flowered in approximately the same time as Paper Whites.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The demand in the market last week did not, by any means, equal the supply. While this was the case at every place I inquired, nevertheless I was also told the sales were equal to or greater than those of other summers. It is just a case of too much stock at this time of the year.

There is one thing about the market last week that everyone was glad to see: Stock is gradually becoming of better quality. This is especially noticeable in roses; they are of a better color, larger, and have better stems. It seems that most of the growers have replanted this year and for a while the cut from the young stock was poor. Another item that shows a big improvement is asters. These are mostly from indoors and are a big improvement over the field-grown stock. Gladioli, which were so plentiful a short time ago, have eased up considerably and those coming on the market are of good quality. There is plenty of miscellaneous stock of all kinds to be had.

Getting Together.

The Baltimore correspondent of The Review has completed arrangements with John J. Perry, of the S. S. Pennock Co., and James P. Towner, of the Baltimore Wholesale Florist & Supply Co., to take subscriptions and renewals for The Review. The reason for this is that on several occasions the writer has been informed that someone's subscription has run out and they have forgotten to renew it. There will be something in each of these places to remind you, and I have come to find out that wherever a few florists are congregated it is not long before The Review is referred to by someone. The object of the writer is to have every florist who does business on the Baltimore market a reader of The Review.

Various Notes.

Lohr & Fritze think well of Premier and are going into this new rose quite extensively this season. They have a fine stock of young plants that promise well. They are well stocked up with Double White Killarney, which this firm grows to perfection, also Maryland, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty. Wherever florists meet and talk over the outlook for the coming season you will always find that the consensus is it will be harder to get first-class stock than orders. If everyone will do his bit like Lohr & Fritze, this will not be the case.

Jesse P. King, of Mount Airy, intends taking a flyer in Hadley and Columbia this season and has several houses well under way with fine young stock. This is Mr. King's first experience with these two roses, but when we think of his Radiance, Ophelia and Killarney we know it will be only a matter of time until orders coming in will specify King's Columbia and King's Hadley.

I. H. Moss is another who has been keeping a close watch on Columbia and it will be found among his cut this season. Mr. Moss has always been a great admirer of both Radiance and Red Radiance and is sticking to them this season, but no one is quicker to tell you of the good points of Ophelia, so he has his usual crop of it this season. His carnations, which are all benched, certainly promise great things.

I have been writing from time to time this summer about the poor varieties of gladioli which some of the growers persist in growing. W. E. Milburn, of Middle River, will allow nothing but the best on his place. His idea is that to grow any flower well takes lots of work and care and, this being the case, he prefers to spend both on varieties which will insure the best returns when settling day comes around. A new one to me is Peace. Imagine a stem nearly four feet long and a spike of twelve open blooms and nine buds, but the best part of all is the color—white, with a pale pink throat. Then he has America, Panama and Augusta. The glut has to be large when any of Mr. Milburn's go to waste.

Another old friend who is back in the business again to full capacity is James Hamilton, of Mount Washington. The entire Hamilton range will be in operation this winter. Mr. Hamilton thinks well of both Premier and Columbia and among his other breadwinners he intends to have these two varieties. Two houses of sweet peas he intends to have on the market for Thanksgiving.

C. E. Akehurst, the carnation specialist, is ready for another season. His entire stock is benched and is in the pink of condition. His leading varieties this year are Enchantress and his own white seedling, which he depends on entirely for white. Mr. Akehurst, who has had all sorts of experience in carnations, says it is the best on the market and he is not a man given to sentiment. Another seedling which has a prominent place in this range is his deep pink, Mrs. C. E. Akehurst. Then there are several other varieties, but the above are depended on to uphold the traditions of the Akehurst range.

L. H. A. Klein, of Towson, is sending in as fine asters as it ever has been my pleasure to look at.

Erdman & Ulrich, who were formerly in the habit of wholesaling at the range, are now sending their entire cut to the S. S. Pennock Co. This firm has a promising outlook for the coming season.

James Glass has a fine lot of snapdragons coming on, among which is his famous pink seedling. There are no better carnations about the city than those found at the Glass range.

R. E. Faust, secretary and treasurer of the S. S. Pennock Co., was in town one day last week, looking things over. Mr. Faust can see nothing in sight but the biggest season in the history of the business.

M. I. Brewer, a retailer of Hagerstown, Md., with a branch in Martinsburg, W. Va., was in town last week to visit his friend, John J. Perry, and to make arrangements for his season's supply of stock. Mrs. Cook, of Easton, Md., was also here on the same errand.

Tate.

Del Rio, Tex.—Mrs. Francis Dorland has started in the florists' business and intends to handle pot plants and cut flowers.

Memphis, Tenn.—Johnson's Greenhouses is putting up another rose house, 35x200, using material supplied by the Foley Mfg. Co., Chicago.

Muskogee, Okla.—George W. Marshall has moved his flower store from the Beatty drug store annex to 108 North Grand avenue. He has increased his equipment.

Chattanooga, Tenn.—Joseph S. Mitchell and L. J. Spence have purchased the Johnson Floral Co., which has a store at 17 East Eighth street and greenhouses at 500 East Thirty-third street.

Manhattan, Kan.—Mr. and Mrs. K. Kimble, who conducted a flower shop in the Manhattan Furniture Store, moved August 2 into their new location. They now occupy one-half of the Baum cigar store. Their business has progressed rapidly and necessitated moving into larger quarters.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The Foster Floral Co. will remodel two stores at the corner of First street and North Robinson avenue, providing elaborate quarters for the company. Approximately $10,000 will be spent in the operation. A ladies' rest room will be maintained at this store.

Miami, Fla.—H. W. Johnson, who was formerly connected with the Johnson Floral Co., of Chattanooga, Tenn., recently opened a store in this city.

Marshall, Tex.—George Witherspoon will operate one of the most modern and up-to-date florists' establishments in the state when his greenhouses are completed. The firm will be known as the Beatrice Floral Co.

Fort Smith, Ark.—Burley Johnson will erect a greenhouse at the corner of North Eleventh and A streets. The cost is estimated at $7,000. Mr. Johnson is owner of the Quality Floral Shop, on North Ninth street.

Houston, Tex.—Walter W. Westgate, 2610 Washington avenue, is preparing to retire from active business. He is 53 years old and, as he says, has been working hard ever since he was 8 years old. Mr. Westgate has been in business here for many years. In 1917 he conducted the Roselynn Nursery & Floral Co., of this city.

Savannah, Ga.—A. C. Oelschig & Sons, once nationally famous for their output of rubber plants, this season have discarded Ficus elastica as no longer profitable. They say the slow rate of propagation and the high cost of skilled labor made the young stock cost so much there was nothing in it at the prices the trade was willing to pay.

ROCHESTER EXPOSITION.

Flower Display Excellent.

The Rochester Victory exposition and flower show opened its gates as the park band played the national anthem on Labor day, September 1. The day was one of brilliant sunshine and enormous crowds visited the show.

The florists and the park department contributed strongly to the floral exhibit, which was held in the same building as in previous years. The hall had been decorated with evergreens and the two doorways were made to look quite attractive with flower boxes and evergreens, under the direction of Charles H. Vick and Frank Mahoney.

Considering the poor season, excellent displays were made. It was a wonder where such a choice selection of cut flowers could come from, for heavy rains had done quite serious damage to flowers in and around Rochester during the few days before Labor day.

Fine Crotons Shown.

George T. Boucher occupied the whole length of the north side of the hall, with a choice selection of palms, ferns, crotons and gladioli. The exhibit was divided at intervals with white lattice and between various sections excellent specimens of crotons of the following varieties were seen: Andreanum, Queen Victoria, fasciatum, Philip Geduldig, Thos. Roland, Paul Weber and Ed Ronsdale.

N. Harold Cottam & Son, of Wappingers Falls, N. Y., had a gorgeous display of dahlias, ranging from midget to mammoth sizes. Over 200 varieties were exhibited and it is acknowledged to be the finest collection ever shown here. Among the newer varieties were Marguerite Bouchon, King of the Autumn, Attraction, Yellow King, Creation, Aurora, Sir Douglas Haig, Union Jack, Gracchus and Schneewitchen. Herbert G. Cottam was in charge.

F. Schlegel's Sons were represented by several good window baskets of ferns and asters, baskets of annuals and a good collection of helichrysum arrangements made up for the holiday. James Sproat was in charge.

Big Gladiolus Bed.

Hart & Vick, Inc., Rochester, had a large table, on which were splendid vases of cut stock, including montbretias, zinnias, larkspur, cosmos, dahlias, gladioli, asters, gypsophilas, gaillardias, tobacco plants, palms and twenty vases of pansies. A splendid showing of new bulbs was a great attraction to visitors. Opposite the exhibit was a huge bed of gladioli, about ten feet in diameter, containing about 500 blooms. Around the outside of the bed were fine coleus and a rockery. The exhibit was in charge of Miss M. Rodell, Charles H. Vick and Cecil Lester.

N. A. Hallauer, of Ontario, N. Y., had a splendid display of gladioli of between thirty and forty of the newest varieties. Among the newer ones were Giant White, Herada, Rochester White, Master Weitze, Love's Fire and Ashtabula. His collection of dahlias was also good.

Walter L. Wright, of Shortsville, N. Y., had a good basket of gladioli, Peace and War.

Charles W. Curtis, of Irondequoit, N. Y., had his usual fine showing of asters and gladioli, staged artistically in vases and baskets.

Arthur M. Newborn had a display of dried flowers, made up in artistic arrangements. A beautiful birch bark basket of Fireball helichrysum attracted much attention.

L. J. Bryant, of Newark, N. Y., staged an excellent display of gladioli and dahlias.

Jacob Thomann & Sons had a splendid exhibit of ferns and baskets of gladioli and tritomas. They included several new varieties, as well as large baskets of Rochester White, of which they are the originators.

Big Aster Display.

James Vick's Sons contributed a fine collection of annuals and perennials and a large aster display, in which Heart of France was the most popular. Ed Weibens, George Case and E. Price were in charge.

The park exhibit consisted of palms, ferns, crotons, Rex and tuberous-rooted begonias and vases of gladioli.

The Rochester Rose Society, which has recently been formed, was represented by a large table of roses. At present the society boasts of 150 members; John Dunbar is president.

Excellent bird baths, benches, sundials and garden globes from the Norristone Co. were displayed through the grounds. H. J. H.

LOWELL, MASS.

The Market.

There seems to be no scarcity of some varieties of cut flowers in this market. Really good asters are plentiful, as are gladioli also. The recent rains and cool weather have helped the late asters. Many really good blooms are to be had.

Weddings have been numerous, and there has been a great deal of funeral work. The florists all appear well satisfied with business conditions, especially for this season of the year.

The new crop of carnations is now arriving, with fairly good blooms on stems of medium length.

Various Notes.

R. A. Griffiths, 31 Bridge street, has retired from the musical profession. He was an accomplished player on various instruments and a band leader and an organizer. He has been in the florists' trade for a great number of years and is doing a prosperous business. Just now he has large quantities of fine gladioli and is cleaning them up well.

Morse & Beals are having an enormous amount of funeral work. They are getting in fine roses.

Kenny, Florist, 185 Central street, was kept busy last week on a large funeral order. Frank Marshall and Mr. Kenny constructed a chair about four feet high of white asters and had thirteen other designs for the same funeral. This firm has for several weeks been making special Saturday sales of asters.

The Frank P. Putnam Co. has 110 varieties of single chrysanthemums of its own raising. It planted nearly 30,000 carnation plants this year. The cut flowers are shipped to New York. The firm also runs a high-class tailoring and department store in Lowell. Barry Putnam recently returned from Washington state, where he was with the aviation section of the Signal Corps.

Mrs. J. J. McManmon has been busy of late with a number of weddings of prominent people. She has orders for a large quantity of bouquets to be carried in a parade, given by local French people in honor of the boys returning from the war. J. J. McManmon is now in Great Britain, where he has gone to visit some of the principal florists and nurserymen. He will be gone six months or more. This firm has a large quantity of fine late asters. They have finished planting five houses of carnations.

Mr. Pilotte, of the J. J. McManmon store, has returned from a three weeks' vacation in Montreal, Canada. J. B. Halley, formerly in business for himself in Lawrence, is again at this store.

Tom McManus, of J. J. McManmon's greenhouses, was in a collision on the night of August 30 between two electric cars, having his arm broken and receiving other minor injuries. E. E. R.

OBITUARY

Andrew McAdams.

Andrew McAdams, in business in Chicago since the days of the Civil war, died at St. Luke's hospital, August 26. He was suffering from internal troubles and was operated upon August 11. For a time recovery seemed possible, but his condition took a turn for the worse.

Mr. McAdams was born at Londonderry, Ireland, in 1849, and was but 18 years of age when he came to Chicago. At the age of 20 he entered business with the late John Goode, his brother-in-law. Upon Mr. Goode's retirement Mr. McAdams became the sole proprietor of the business. The business has been exceedingly successful ever since its beginning. Owing to ill health, Mr. McAdams devoted little time to the store at Fifty-third street and Kimbark avenue in late years, spending most of his time in Florida, where he had a farm at Melbourne. He was constantly active in trade affairs and was an ex-president of the Chicago Florists' Club.

He is survived by Miss May McAdams, well known as a landscape gardener. Mrs. McAdams, his second wife, died three years ago. The funeral was held August 29 from the residence, 5315 Ellis avenue.

Seaman Smith.

Seaman Smith, descendant of the Smith family that settled Smithtown, L. I., died August 20 in the hospital at Flushing. He was 65 years of age and for many years had conducted nurseries on Long Island.

He was born in Smithtown, L. I., and at the time of his death was living at 28 Madison avenue, New York city. He is survived by his wife, two daughters and three sons.

Patrick Shields.

Patrick Shields, for many years employed by various florists of Providence, R. I., shot and killed his wife, Katherine Shields, and committed suicide by shooting himself through the mouth, August 29. He was 70 years of age and was said to have been suffering from mental troubles. The couple are survived by four daughters, two sons and four grandchildren. W. H. M.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

INCOME taxes are due by September 15.

GIVEN an early frost and a fairly tight market for flowers is in immediate prospect.

How can a florist make other than spasmodic sales effort until he has a properly organized office staff?

PACIFIC coast shipments have been resumed, as the railroad strike which tied up transportation has been ended.

STRIKE threats in the steel industry are bad news at a time when as much greenhouse building is contemplated as now.

THE new rules of the American Railway Express Co. covering packing requirements will not affect florists, who have been using the corrugated board containers now advocated by the express company for all shipments.

NOTE that the price of coal is higher now than during the war and likely soon to advance again. The Fuel Administration is entitled to credit for keeping fuel within the reach of florists even if it did curtail our supply.

INTERPRETATION of regulation 14 of Quarantine No. 37, under which plants may be imported in limited quantities, is given in the article headed "Loopholes in Quarantine 37," which appears in the Nursery Trade department this week.

LABOR day never did mean much to florists, especially growers, and now that labor no longer marches it seems to mean nothing at all to any class of workers, except the small number whose pay is not affected by a holiday. So why not cut it out?

SEVERAL communications have reached The Review as a result of the article describing A. Rasmussen's profit-sharing plan, representing other growers' employees' point of view, but, unfortunately, they are not signed and therefore can not be published.

F. M. JOHNSON says the one limitation on the florists' trade lies in the restricted number of items of resale merchandise handled in flower stores. He comments that if the average florist could overcome his prejudice against selling other things than flowers, it would be possible to find other lines of goods in harmony which would add materially to the profits.

IT costs as little as $2.25 per thousand florists reached to put a full-page advertisement in The Review. Is it any wonder so many do it?

THERE is no danger of overproduction as long as present labor conditions last. With workers drawing high wages and spending them before the next pay day, business will be good.

IT is said that the Joy Floral Co., of Nashville, is pulling new business at the rate of $25 to $50 per day by means of a system of reminding individuals of the birthday, wedding and other anniversaries of their relatives and friends.

THE size of the railroad problem is indicated by the number of solutions advocated—a total of thirty different plans. Only two, however, receive wide consideration, that of the National Chamber of Commerce and that of Mr. Plumb.

CORRESPONDENTS WANTED.

The Review wishes to receive a regular weekly news-letter from the following cities:

Washington, D. C	Hartford, Conn.
Minneapolis.	Portland, Me.
St. Paul.	Omaha, Neb.
Louisville, Ky.	Salt Lake City.

Florists or their employees who are in touch with the trade in their city and wish to act as correspondent for The Review are urged to write to the editor. Correspondents in other cities not now represented are also desired.

THE PINK PART.

In order to make space for those who wish to use it, it has become necessary to increase the Pink Part to twenty-four pages each issue.

It is not yet three years since the Pink Part became a weekly feature of The Review and its success has been beyond all expectations. It has, indeed, caused indications that imitators might turn green with envy. It was apparent that the use of pink paper for the telegraph delivery cards, with a special index by towns, made them so easy to find and to consult, no matter what mass of matter the florist had on his desk, that they were practically sure to be the first resort of practically every florist, no matter what other reference lists he might have at hand. Consequently, the growth of the Pink Part has kept pace with the increase in interest in means for the telegraph delivery of flowers. Beginning with a scant dozen pages, twice that number now are well filled and it is apparent that the volume of telegraph orders exchanged between members of the trade this season also will break all records.

HESITATING PRICES TEMPORARY.

That the check in the advancing prices of commodities is only a temporary halt, due chiefly to the increased supplies, and that shortages will hold up quotations in most lines is indicated by Dun's review of trade, which says:

"There has been a check this week in the steady advance in the prices of commodities, marking a change from the tendency which has prevailed almost continuously since the moderate drop of last winter. The concessions, which are slight, are most noticeable in foods and some lines of textiles, and may indicate a halt rather than a turning point. In foods, particularly meats and grains, increased supplies operate for the time being to relieve the situation, but this cannot be said of dry goods, for there is as great a shortage as ever.

"The approach of a crucial stage of the negotiations between employers and workers in the steel and railroad fields of industry has accentuated this hesitating inclination. The effect is felt mostly in wholesale business, where, however, the volume is still well ahead of the large figures of last year. Retail distribution of merchandise is not diminished.

"Building activity, as indicated by permits issued and contracts awarded in the central states, is surprisingly great, and but for the lockout of the trades in Chicago would be unprecedented. Transportation conditions are improved, and there is less complaint about deliveries."

NO SLOWING UP IN DEMAND.

Reports from those who use classified ads in The Riview indicate that there is no slowing up in the demand for plants—everything sells briskly. Like this:

The ad in The Review sold the plants and we are busy returning money to those who were too late.—Schmaus Bros., Paducah, Ky., August 26, 1919.

And the display ads, necessary to those who want to flag the attention of those not consciously seeking some certain article, also are doing their part in trade prosperity. Like this:

Will say that the orders for Insectonos are coming in good and I am entirely satisfied with the results of the ad.—Earl L. Hempstead, Bloomington, Ill., August 27, 1919.

If you hear a florist complain of the cost of advertising you may be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Labor day is like the Fourth of July in business value to the trade—absolutely worthless—but there is this difference: Whereas the Fourth ushers in the summer, the day Labor doesn't make even a pretense marks the summer's close. We are accustomed to speak of summer as though it were a thing, in a business way, to be endured, welcome only in its going; but this year it has been different. There has been business during both July and August; not big business, to be sure, but far different from the old days. Nearly everybody in the business has made at least a little money this summer, some of them good money. The wholesalers have had something to sell right along and have sold it at fair prices, which tells the story for the other branches of the trade; if the wholesalers are doing business, neither growers nor retailers are suffering.

August was not quite so good as July, in percentage of increased sales in most of the wholesale houses, although an exceptional one reports big gains. Where the supply of stock was somewhere nearly like that of last year, wholesalers reached last year's August record early last week and had the sales of the last three or four days of the month to chalk up as increase. The month ended well; its last week was the best of the four. Cool weather helped greatly. September started with a volume of shipping orders which kept several of the principal houses busy until nearly the usual closing hour on the holiday, although the wholesalers who depend principally on local trade closed at noon.

Short roses have constituted the principal problem for several days. The rose is the most abundant flower on the list and the quality includes some fine stock. The short stems, however, far outnumber the other grades. As the demand is for the best, the longer stock has been bringing good prices, with the short stuff selling low by comparison. The leaders are Columbia, Russell and Premier, in about the order mentioned.

The asters are the best of the season. Really good stock is coming from northern growers. A few California asters have found their way here, splendid flowers on long stems just a little too weak. Some sample shipments of California chrysanthemums also have come, but the prices charged, with express and waste, have been such that reorders have not been numerous. There are small daily supplies of home-grown Golden Glow.

The local crops of gladioli are becoming quite well cut out, but there are northern shippers who will be able to keep up the supply until frost. They are selling well because the quality is good. Valley, lilies and cattleyas are the scarce items. Carnations have reappeared, but not in quantity. Miscellaneous items, like tritomas, marigolds, zinnias, celosia, etc., cut little figure. Rubrum lilies are seen occasionally, but are only useful for funeral work. There are enough greens.

August Weather.

August was not a bad month for stock under glass, but was hard on the growers of field stock. The mean temperature of 73 degrees was 2.2 degrees below normal, but the rainfall of scarcely more than an inch was only a little more than one-third the usual amount. We are three inches of rain short for the year to date. August's percentage of possible sunshine was eighty-one; normal is sixty-nine.

The Kenwood Floral Co., 1117 East Forty-seventh place, is the establishment of Henry Hilmers, one of the veterans. He has been located there, and the family has lived next door, for nineteen years. Back of the store and residence there are several greenhouses, used only for pot plants and propagating, and quite a space for hotbeds and outdoor stock. The place is surrounded by apartment houses and the outlook from their windows on the florists' grounds must be one of the advantages of living there. One of the features is a 30-foot brick chimney completely covered with Ampelopsis Veitchii. The Paul Weiss Branching Out.

Henry and Daniel Weinberg have sold their interest in the Batavia Greenhouse Co., Batavia and Chicago, to a coterie of investors headed by Paul Weiss, of Weiss & Meyer Co., Maywood. new location is about as near Michigan avenue as the old one was to Wabash, but that one block makes a surprising difference in the class of trade. Mr. Lange states that the average sale is almost ten times the average sale at the old place. Herbert Stone, who is Mr. Lange's manager, points out that the facilities are adequate for handling more customers than could be waited on at the old stand, so that the chance for growth is great. In addition to the store and workroom on the street floor, there is a big shipping, storage and working space in the basement.

Mr. Lange returned last week from a vacation at Mount Clemens. Mrs. Lange and their son, Homer, remained for a few days longer.

Briefs from Randall's.

It is stated that the August billings in the supply department are 200 per cent ahead of a year ago. They exceed by a large margin any other month in the history of the A. L. Randall Co.

The company's import orders for Paper Whites this season total 1,250,000. It is expected delivery will fall short about 300,000.

In the cut flower department the chrysanthemum season opened August 29.

F. M. Johnson returned last week from a business trip of 1,200 miles by automobile in Michigan. One of his visits was to the refrigerator factory of the Randall-Johnson Co., at Traverse City. They expect to make close to 30,000 refrigerators there in the next year. At the S. A. F. convention a sample automobile refrigerator was shown and sold to W. F. Gude for $12; it pleased Mr. Johnson to find that Albert Pochelon had one like it, from the same factory before it came under the Randall management, for which he had paid $15.

A. L. Randall has had a busy summer. He started on his vacation September 2, with his family in the Cadillac, intending to drive to Mackinac Island.

several months and her condition does not improve as rapidly as had been hoped, which is the principal reason Mr. Wienhoeber does not come in every day from their home at Highland Park.

William A. Hansen, assistant to C. J. Michelsen, manager for the E. C. Amling Co., is on an eastern trip, covering principal growing centers.

Lieut. Hilmer V. Swenson, back from the war, opened an office to supply retail florists with advertising materials, the business he was engaged in before he was drafted. After being out of touch with the business for nearly two years, he says he finds a wonderful difference on his return. Florists who formerly had to be urged to go after business now are keen for anything in the advertising line and are deeply interested in business systems.

On his recent trip to the Dakotas, C. J. Michelsen drove the new Packard 3,300 miles in less than three weeks.

Word has come from Los Angeles of the safe arrival there of C. S. Stewart and wife. Mr. Stewart, who had spent many years in the trade here, sold his store at 3323 West North avenue a few weeks ago to K. Peterson, a former employee, and with Mrs. Stewart started for the coast by automobile. They sold the car on the road, however, and made the final part of the journey by train, because of Mrs. Stewart's health.

not been active since he sold out to W. J. La Grotta and few members of the trade had seen him in the last five years, but there was a large attendance of the older generation of florists, principally retailers, at the funeral, August 29.

Harold Amling will return to Culver Military Academy September 16.

Charles McCauley and Frank Oechslin are Paul Klingsporn's latest recruits for the life membership list of the S. A. F.

C. H. Fisk recently returned from a six weeks' motor trip to California, where he hopes some day to live. He drove a new Franklin 6,100 miles.

F. A. Parkmire, 1429 Morse avenue, has installed a Buchbinder icebox, 4x12 feet, and a refrigerating machine. He has found a way to save coal, by fastening his hotbed sashes on the side walls of the houses. They are held in place by two screws and may be removed or put on in a few moments. The side walls are thus made double and the sashes are ready for spring use, all glazed and in good order.

A. Henderson & Co., after distributing a car of Paper Whites last week, had two more cars awaiting release by the state inspector. They have found that the operation of the new quarantine regulations mean several days' delay in delivery of the bulbs.

The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. is in line for government citation as one of the companies that, without exception, have reëmployed every man who left to answer the call to the colors.

Frank Oechslin now operates his place on a 9-hour day.

Visitors.

Among last week's visitors were H. G. Berning and wife, of St. Louis. They had been away from home for about three weeks, during which they attended the convention at Detroit. Mrs. Berning was secretary of the Ladies' S. A. F. and was much pleased that the organization has progressed so fast. At Detroit forty new annual and four new life members were received.

J. J. Karins, of Dreer's, was here over the week end, with some excellent sample kentias at the store of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

J. F. Ammann, president of the S. A. F., is visiting his daughter, who lives in Chicago. The family are here, having motored from Edwardsville, and they expect to remain until about September 15. Mr. Ammann is visiting many points of trade interest and planning S. A. F. work.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Little variety in stock, slight change in prices and fairly good business marked last week. As a whole the month has been satisfactory and the feeling prevails that the coming season will be unprecedented in the amount of business.

Gladioli at $8 per hundred, roses from $12 to $15 and home-grown asters at $1.50 and western asters at $4 complete the list of available flowers.

Various Notes.

When the employees of the William L. Rock Flower Co. arrived at the store August 27 they found a large part of the stock on the sidewalk in front of the store. The night before a pipe in the refrigerating plant in the basement sprung a leak and filled the place with ammonia fumes. L. O. Monson, who is on duty each night until 12 o'clock, detected the fumes and promptly started to carry out the plants. He also carried to safety between fifty and sixty canaries and finches and half a dozen young ducks that had been used for window display. He reached one or two other clerks by telephone and, as they had been in the army, they brought their gas masks and were able to make their way to the basement, where the valve from the ammonia tank was turned off. Owing to Mr. Monson's efforts, little damage resulted from the leak. A few plants in the window were burned up, two or

T. J. Noll & Co. are getting in a fine lot of western asters, which the trade eagerly buys. They are also stocking up on fall supplies earlier than ever. Goods that are ordinarily received about the middle of October are now in the house. The uncertain railroad situation makes it imperative to have stocks on hand.

Kansas City had six inches of rain the night of August 27 and the following day, the third heaviest deluge since the establishment of the local weather bureau thirty-two years ago, resulting in damage amounting to about $100,000. Street car service, electric lights and telephones were put out of commission for a time and it will be a week before all the telephone service will be normal. Parts of the city were flooded for a time. None of the florists suffered any great loss, although some of the boiler rooms were flooded. The South Side Floral Co. had several feet of water in the boiler room and O. Longnickel, of Argentine, suffered slight damage by an overflow of water from ground near by. J. E. K.

The Market.

With the exception of wedding and funeral orders, business has been exceptionally quiet during the last week. This is probably due to a great extent to the fact that a number of factories have been closed by strike. It has been about all some families could do to live; consequently it has been impossible for them to buy flowers. However, the strikes are about over now and we hope for more settled conditions and a better run of general business.

The gladiolus crop has been exceptionally good this year, but it is now decreasing in quantity. Roses are of better quality than at the last writing. Asters are plentiful and large dahlias are to be obtained. Marigolds, zinnias, snapdragons, rubrum lilies, delphiniums, cosmos and hydrangeas help to make variety.

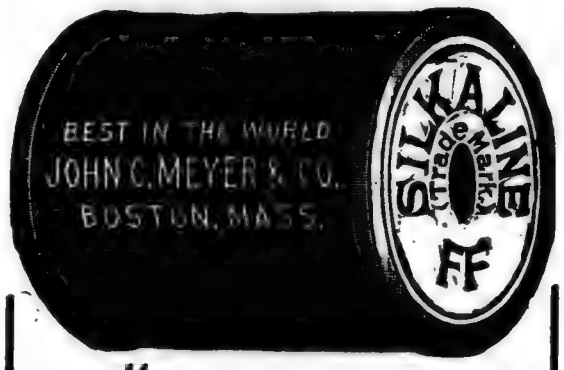
The growers report that carnations are all planted and coming along nicely. Mums are also in splendid shape.

Various Notes.

Victor Carwardine says that counter trade is good for this time of year. Funeral orders are abundant and keep the surplus flowers cleaned up.

Robert Hawkins has been rushed with funeral work for the last few days. He designed a number of pieces for the funeral of Mrs. Wheeler, wife of Judge Wheeler.



James E. Beach also had a number of floral designs for the Wheeler funeral, the principal one being a casket blanket of pink roses. Mr. Beach is spending his vacation at Walnut Beach. The asters and gladioli are off crop at these greenhouses at the present time. Carnations are all planted and doing well and mums are coming along in good shape. The pansy crop is planted.

Joe Ventrilla, who has been one of Mr. Beach's head growers for some time, intends to sail for Italy September 10. He has invested in property in Italy and intends to start in the florists' business for himself when he reaches there. One of the other growers will accompany him.

George Pflomm has a splendid crop of album lilies on hand at the present time. His gladioli are also in good shape.

John Reck & Son are preparing for the fall trade by having their new store on Main street decorated. Mr. Reck returned recently from Detroit, where he attended the S. A. F. convention. The party in which Mr. Reck traveled consisted of Mr. Carlson, head gardener at the estate of Miss Anna Jennings, Fairfield; Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Taylor, of Greens Farms, and George B. Cannon, of Stamford.

James Horan & Son have been busy filling wedding orders during the last week. They have averaged a wedding a day. They furnished a wedding bouquet of white roses for the wedding of a Rus-

GREENHOUSE-GROWN ASTERS

OF EXCEPTIONALLY FINE QUALITY

The supply of good Asters has increased considerably, and from now on they will be ample until the end of the season. A few weeks ago we had a quantity; now Quality is more in evidence, and the latter is the more desirable. The Best Asters are the indoor-grown stock. You will find them exceptionally fine.

Gladioli

You are obliged to carry some stock during the summer months, and you have less risk of loss in Gladioli than any other flowers you can buy. We have all the standard varieties, especially Augusta, America, Halley, Francis King, Schwaben, Pendleton, etc.

journeyed to Bretton Woods in the White mountains and are there at the present time. I. L. B.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Business was poor during the last week of August, so poor that the few buyers interested in flowers could pick and choose and drive hard bargains, confident that refusal to meet their terms would only add to the waste. As usual in a dull market, the good flowers were sold because prices were moderate, while the medium grades and the shorts were allowed to waste their beauty unseen. It was a discouraging week, especially so for asters. There were lots of asters, many, many more than were wanted, and the sales of all but the fancy grade were fearfully disappointing.

Roses fared a little better than most of the other flowers, because there were few of them and there always is a little demand for them. Columbia is developing into the leading summer pink rose. It is a marvelous grower and possesses fine points in its glowing color, strong stem and healthy foliage. Premier is splendid, but is not yet so plentiful. Russell is not in crop at present. Maryland is mostly offered in short lengths.

Easter lilies have reappeared. Gladioli are in good supply. The first double cosmos has come.

A Thrilling Tale.

Harry W. Jones, manager for the Bellevue-Stratford flower store of J. J. Habermehl's Sons, was returning home the other evening when he remembered that the key of his apartment was not in its accustomed place in his trousers' pocket. This was awkward, because Mrs. Jones was at the shore. Being a man of resource, Mr. Jones decided that his best chance of gaining entrance to his abode lay in opening the cellar window. He successfully accomplished this feat and all would have gone well had not a passer-by seen a pair of legs disappearing through the window and notified the sergeant at the Twelfth and Pine street police station that a burglar was entering a house near by. Several cops rushed around and found Mr. Jones with a light in the cellar. Explanations were unavailing, despite the fact that Mr. Jones' appearance is calculated to inspire confidence even under such trying circumstances. They marched him to the station house and would not release him until he sent for a friend who could identify him.

The New House at Roelofs.

Much interest is felt in the new greenhouse now being erected by the Joseph Heacock Co., at Roelofs. Any greenhouse that is being built this year is interesting. This one is especially so because it is well known that it was the ambition of Joseph Heacock to have four of those large greenhouses at Roelofs. Two he built during his lifetime. This is the third. It proves that the son is carrying out the aim of his father.

Hitchings & Co., the builders, plan completing this greenhouse by September 15. It is 70x600 feet, the same length as the others, but two feet narrower. It is even-span, with top and side ventilation. It will house something like 22,000 rose plants. The idea in building in summer is to utilize the fall and winter months for the concrete work and to plant early in the spring. One-half of the house will be run this winter in order to grow the young stock.

James W. Heacock, president of the Joseph Heacock Co., said that the varieties to be planted in the new house had not yet been determined. He added that while in Detroit he had placed an order with Wallace R. Pierson for 5,000 Crusader and 5,000 Pilgrim.

The Scarcity of Carnation Plants.

It was anticipated early in the season that carnation plants would be scarce, but nothing like the shortage now existing has ever been experienced here. Many carnation growers do not propagate themselves, preferring to depend on others for their stock each year. These growers are having a hard time getting young plants. One dealer alone said that he could have sold a half million more plants if he could have got them. A number of explanations are offered for this shortage—the low prices formerly paid for young stock, the fuel shortage, the labor shortage, and so on. While the carnation growers who raised their own plants are, generally speaking, well provided with good plants, it is estimated that the number of carnations benched this season will be smaller than the number benched one year ago.

An 84-Day Season.

With a real social season almost assured, a glance at the calendar is worth while. The debutante teas will start social activity in October and continue through November. The season proper begins on Thanksgiving day, which falls this year on November 27, the last Thursday in the month. Thursday will also be the day of the week on which Christmas and New Year come. St. Valentine's day comes on Saturday, February 14, 1920, while Lent commences four days later. Nobody minds Lent much now, but it is curious to note that, owing to leap year, February will have five Sundays. Easter Sunday will be April 4. Memorial day will also come on a Sunday, so it will be transferred to Monday, May 31, in all likelihood.

including wagons, harness, farming implements, etc., and twenty-five tons of newly stored hay. The gray mare, so familiar to Mr. Westcott's summer visitors, lost her life, but the bay horse was got out in time. The other live stock fortunately happened to be out in the fields when the fire started. The loss on the buildings and contents is estimated at $5,000 and we regret to say the place carried no insurance. The dwelling house and its surroundings on the farm escaped injury, as the wind was from the northwest.

Frank M. Ross has torn down his store at 136 South Fifty-second street and is rebuilding it. The business is being temporarily carried on at another of Mr. Ross' stores, at 113 South Sixtieth street.

Edwin J. Fancourt returned from Detroit August 29, after stopping at Cleveland and Pittsburgh. Mr. Fancourt thinks that high prices and short supplies are the obstacles to excellent business.

Charles E. Meehan was in town August 30 looking over the field for the coming season.

Henry Bauer returned to the city September 1.

M. J. Callahan has found business unusually active through the summer. The usual hours off had to be cut down.

Charles Berger laid down his grip filled with samples while purchasing his ticket for Kennett at the Broad street station early the other morning. Another would-be passenger put a grip beside Mr. Berger's and then grabbed the wrong one and disappeared. The trip to Kennett was postponed.

Martin Samtman has been successful in the midsummer rooting of a fine lot of rose cuttings.

Leo Niessen announces the arrival of double cosmos.

William A. Leonard is at Lavallette, N. J. Meanwhile his roses keep right on coming into the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Robert Scott & Son expect to send out their new rose, of a bridesmaid pink color, next spring.

The opening meeting of the fall season was held by the Florists' Club in the green room of the Hotel Adelphia Tuesday evening, September 2. The Detroit convention was discussed by Edmund A. Harvey, Charles H. Grakelow, James W. Heacock and Arthur A. Niessen. Officers were nominated for the coming year. Phil.

TORONTO.

The Market.

The visit of the Prince of Wales and the return of Sir Arthur Currie, the commander of the Canadian forces in France, have been occasions of considerable decoration. The demand for flowers for the receptions was divided among a number of the florists, and some beautiful baskets and bouquets were designed. The house decorations for the various receptions were beautiful. Various presentations of flowers were made to General Sir Arthur Currie, Mrs. Currie and Miss Church, sister of Mayor Church.

Various Notes.

One of the most beautiful floral presentations seen here for some time was a bouquet of eighty American Beauty roses. These were presented by some friends to Chief Police Magistrate Geo. T. Denison, on the occasion of his eightieth birthday.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Association has resumed its monthly meetings. These will be held regularly every third Wednesday in St. George's hall.

The first meeting of the season of the Retail Florists' Club will be held at the club rooms, 12 Adelaide street, west, September 8. The chief business will be the election of officers for the ensuing year.

Archibald Gilchrist, 424 Runnymede road, has produced a new gladiolus, which he has named General Currie.

The officers of the new Canadian Retail Florists' Association are making a call for the support of the florists of the Dominion. The executives intend having an early meeting to map out the work for the coming winter. With the coöperation of all the florists, it is expected that they will be able to secure greater benefits for a united organization than the Toronto Club. This is saying a great deal. The Toronto Club has done much towards increasing the sale of flowers in the city and has made working conditions better. It has shown what can be accomplished by coöperation and will prove to outside dealers the benefits of organization.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Market conditions are not materially changed. There is plenty of everything seasonable, although some lines are not in as heavy supply as they have been. There is another flood of asters and clearances are somewhat bothersome. Dahlias, too, are arriving in large quantities, but the quality generally is poor. Growers are still carrying too many varieties which do not sell. Really good varieties, properly packed for shipment, sell fairly well. It is interesting to note that the American Dahlia Society is offering prizes to commercial growers for the best packed boxes of dahlias exhibited at its show to open in the Engineering building, September 23. Gladioli are coming into the market in great numbers and the best bring as much as $6 per hundred, inferior grades as low as 50 cents per hundred or even less.

White roses are exceedingly scarce and many more could be used. American Beauty is a little more plentiful and prices in consequence are weaker. Specials move at as low a price as $6 per hundred, with superior grades as high as $35. Hybrid teas in colored varieties are a little firmer in price, but not scarce by any means.

The market is still bare of longiflorum lilies and lily of the valley is short in supply, bringing from $15 to $20 per hundred. Rubrum lilies are plentiful, bringing $2 to $3 per hundred. The quality on the whole is good. Lilium auratum is in fairly good supply and is being used largely in funeral work at prices from $5 to $8, according to quality, which at best is only fair.

Cattleyas are in much better supply. The labiata variety is coming in and the scarcity which has of late existed is passing. The best flowers bring as much as $1.50, other grades various prices down to 40 cents for culls.

Arrivals in the miscellaneous class continue heavy, with great variety for choice. Hydrangeas, delphiniums, tritomas, montbretias, platycodons, heleniums, coreopsis, gypsophila, buddleia, bouvardia and calendulas are prominent among the offerings.

Various Notes.

made to the Untermeyer establishment at Greyston, Yonkers. Two plant houses are to be erected, with three peach houses, grape houses and service buildings. The aggregate expenditure is estimated to be between $50,000 and $75,000 and the work will be in the hands of the Lord & Burnham Co.

Thieves recently visited the greenhouse property of John A. Leach, Astoria, L. I., and stole a quantity of iron pipe. Mr. Leach is first deputy police commissioner.

T. N. P. Daniels, 212 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn, where he has been established for the last fourteen years, is opening a branch store at the corner of Fifth avenue and Union street, which will be one of the largest retail flower stores in the borough.

Visitors last week were B. Hammond Tracy, Wenham, Mass., and Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass. J. H. P.

A dahlia exhibition will be held Saturday and Sunday, September 20 and 21, in the Museum building, New York Botanical Garden. Schedules are ready for distribution and will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York. In this connection attention is called to the large collection of dahlias located along the west border, just north of the Harlem railroad plaza at the New York Botanical Garden. A space over 400 feet long and twelve feet wide is devoted to this collection, which comprises about 360 kinds and something over 600 plants, representing all the types of this increasingly popular flower. The plants of each type are grouped together, so that a comparative study is readily made.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Seattle, Wash.—The annual dahlia show was held September 3 and 4, according to President Richard Buttle, president of the American Dahlia Society. Many growers in Washington and Oregon had planned to send exhibits. About 1,000 entries were expected.

Astoria, Ore.—At the convention of the Oregon State Horticultural Society the election of officers resulted as follows: President, J. O. Holt, Eugene; vice-president, J. B. Pilkington, Portland; secretary and treasurer, C. D. Minton, Portland; chairman auditing committee, H. C. Atwell, Forest Grove. Next year's meeting will be at Eugene, Ore.

CORRESPONDENTS WANTED.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The ending of the railroad strike September 2 restored conditions to normal and enabled the wholesalers to make shipments again.

During the railroad strike, which for the last week has held everything up here, the retailers had a distinct advantage over the shippers. Most of the stock was brought to the market by automobile and consequently there was no shortage in the usual supply. As the shippers were not buying anything but what had been contracted for, the retailers bought at their own price and charged it also. The Japanese growers, with characteristic shrewdness, sold from points on the boulevards near their growing grounds and thus saved a little from the wreck. The wholesale houses might as well have closed for all the business they could do, as only a few nearby towns could be reached by auto and the demand from these was not great. It was the worst situation that has ever occurred in the history of the wholesale trade here.

Various Notes.

The Pasadena show is scheduled for October 23 to 25 and W. W. Felgate, who has again been appointed manager, is of the opinion that it will be an unusually good one. Big prizes are offered and interest among the local growers runs high.

Eddie MacMahon, of San Francisco, and a party of friends have been here this week on a vacation trip, having driven down from the northern city.

Captain Grey, the dean of floriculture in this city and formerly head of the Ingleside Floral Co., still gets some good work and has been busy this week with a church and home decoration on the west side.

William Clark, who made so good a record for himself overseas, is joining C. Groen at Montebello. Mr. Clark was nursery foreman for the Germain Seed & Plant Co. before going to the war and has been with the same firm at its Main street store since returning.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The flower market has been in an uncertain state on account of interference with shipping business by the railroad strike. No shipments were made to the south last week and later no shipments were sent out in any direction. This threw a surplus of stock on the market and had a tendency to cause a fluctuation in prices, some growers holding up values to previous quotations, while others were inclined to let their offerings go at any price to effect a clearance. Asters and chrysanthemums were affected the most, but unstable conditions were reflected to a considerable extent on other items. Meanwhile, telegraphic orders were piling up in the wholesale district and the shippers were helpless when it came to filling them.

Fortunately, the supply of flowers reaching this market is not particularly heavy just now, aside from asters. Roses and carnations are off crop and chrysanthemums have not reached the height of their season. While there is plenty of miscellaneous stock to fill all requirements, the daily aggregate can be taken care of nicely. Orchids continue extremely scarce and few gardenias are in evidence. Should shipping be held up any length of time the situation would probably become more acute than it is at present, as the supply of chrysanthemums will increase at a rapid rate in the next two or three weeks. Asters will continue plentiful for a while and there will be a heavy cut of roses

WHERE SHALL I TRADE NEXT YEAR?

With ARMACOST & CO., of course!

Easy to answer that if you have visited our plant and have become acquainted with us. If you haven't we will try to tell you in this space some of the reasons that have caused Armacost & Co., Los Angeles, to come to be recognized as the best and most dependable wholesale house on the Pacific Coast.

Reason No. 8

We give you to-day a final reason why you should trade with Walter Armacost & Co. Because you will make money if you do. All of our customers make money. We know that unless they do they won't have any to pay us and we want to make money too.

Many of the largest and most successful firms buy their flowers, plants and supplies exclusively from us. Small dealers are treated exactly the same as big ones. That is how they get big. You can be assured of courteous treatment with us as well as honest treatment.

Trading with us will be pleasant as well as profitable.

We will be in our new building now being erected for us at 321 East Fourth Street by October 1st.

Our new greenhouses are now completed and we are now cutting roses from them.

We will have the stock and the facilities for handling it. We are all ready for a big year's business. Let's go! Let's go together.

For other reasons, see previous issues.

POINSETTIAS

Thousands of my one quarter million blooms will be ready in October. Buy them direct at the field, Hacienda Park, Hollywood, Los Angeles. This is the place to get daily fresh flowers that never were short on water. How to get them: First, come with your truck; or, Second, send the real cash order weeks ahead; or, Third, on short notice, the only sure way, telegraph the cash. Your cash ahead in my hands must show me how much money I have to spend ahead to make the whole rush business go smooth. There is no other way for me and for you to become masters of the situation, and to have the flowers cut, shipped and in your store on the day you want them. Cash is king and gives you here the explanation for my strict low prices in our present time when the dollar is worth only 50 cents. All this is what has been learned from long and bitter lessons.

Samples not less than ½ dozen at $1.50 prepaid and only when ordered at the beginning of the season. Large orders are better than samples even. The grades vary during the season even with my best customers who take the whole season just No. 1.

One price for the whole season: 9c, 12c, 15c, and 18c apiece. No charges for boxes or packing. F. O. B. Los Angeles.

As I hardly can afford to make trips this fall to Northern California, I ask all my old customers to send me orders, best for the whole season, now. He who has changed his address please mark this special.

Note the new prices on truck loads from the field, 25 per cent less. Telegraph ahead. Telephone 579222.

in about two weeks. These are three of the most important shipping articles.

New varieties of chrysanthemums are appearing rapidly. Last week some of the earlier varieties gave way to Crystal Gem, Chrysolora and Unaka. Prices ranged from 50 cents to $2.50 per dozen.

Rubrum lilies put in an appearance last week, showing good quality for the first of the season. It is understood the crop this year will be light. They bring around $3 per dozen.

A limited amount of cut cyclamen is also arriving and is well taken care of. The stems are rather short, but the blooms are all that can be desired.

The meager supply of violets, grown for local needs, finds a ready market. The shipping varieties will not be ready until the middle of October or a little later.

before were finer blooms seen at the local shops.

Various Notes.

Preparations are complete for the dahlia show in the Palace hotel, September 4 to 6. Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., has been appointed manager and will be assisted by James Radford. Mr. Rossi is enthusiastic over the prospects for a fine exhibit. The flowers are in excellent condition, he says, and the attendance will undoubtedly surpass former records, on account of the large number of visitors who will be in the city for Fleet week. Besides, local interest in the event is keener this year than ever before, the membership of the society having now reached 250 persons. The showing of seedlings promises to be exceptionally fine.

The annual picnic of florists and growers of the San Francisco bay district, given under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, will be held September 7, at Madrone park, a pretty place on the Oakland, Antioch & Eastern railroad, out of Oakland. Indications point to a large attendance and nothing is being left undone in preparation for a general good time.

At 461 Bush street, J. A. Axell has a large ground-floor space in addition to spacious quarters in the basement. Though he has large quarters to start with, he is already negotiating for more space, his aim being to get the entire floor of the building in which he is located at the earliest possible date. Associated with Mr. Axell is his brother-in-law, P. B. Norton, formerly district railroad passenger agent at Fresno, Cal., for a good many years. The latter will have charge of the office work and business details, while Mr. Axell will personally supervise the packing and shipping of stock. The firm has contracts with seven large growers, which assures flowers from about 500,000 feet of glass. For instance, the entire crop of Ferrari Bros. has been secured, which alone represents 200,000 feet of glass. The M. Rice Co. line of florists' supplies will be carried.

The E. W. McLellan Co. will have a fine cut of roses in about two weeks. Manager Henry Avansino is enthusiastic over the outlook for a big supply of first-class stock and good business this fall. The company has eight more houses in roses this year than last. More space is devoted to Russell than any other one variety, but there are three houses of Columbia and a house of the new rose, Premier, which is getting a good foothold in this section. In another season it is likely more space will be devoted to it.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, Cal., was in town for about a week, accompanied by Mrs. Ebel.

G. Restano, of the San Francisco Floral Co., was a visitor from Stockton, Cal., reporting business good in that city.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have leased their building on Powell street to a shoe concern, which forestalls rumors that they might use the location for their own needs. Mr. Rossi is one of the special reception committee of five appointed by the mayor to serve during the fleet celebration. They will act as a special escort of Secretary Daniels. With the dahlia show and the fleet festivities both on hand, Mr. Rossi will probably be a busy man. His firm has booked several nice decorations for this week and he looks for a brisk demand for flowers generally. They had a fine decoration at the Palace hotel recently for General Liggett and his wife, and the mayor's golden anniversary caused a rush at this establishment.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Portland florists are experiencing a rather quiet time at present. Aside from funeral work there is not much doing. Many are taking advantage of the conditions and are spending a few days in the mountains and at the seashore. The weather is hot and dry and outdoor stock shows it, but in spite of that there are some good gladioli and asters coming in. These are the main offerings at present. Gladioli are becoming more popular each year as the new varieties are shown and placed on the market.

Various Notes.

The Portland Floral Society met August 25 with a fairly good attendance and had an interesting meeting. It was decided to attend the state fair in a body September 25. A committee was named to secure badges and railroad tickets and make arrangements for the trip.

James Forbes is confined to his home on account of sickness.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, R. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

S. F. LEONARD was 67 years of age September 4. He was born in Chicago and has been in the seed business since 1884.

CURTIS NYE SMITH, counsel for the American Seed Trade Association, no longer serves the nurserymen in that capacity.

INTERPRETATION of regulation 14 of Quarantine No. 37, under which seeds and bulbs may be imported in limited quantities, is given in the article headed "Loopholes in Quarantine 37," which appears in the Nursery Trade department this week.

THOSE who have not contracted for 1920 catalogues are advised to do so without delay. Paper is certain not to fall and may rise, while wages in the printing trades are due for another boost, which will add fifteen to twenty per cent to printers' estimates.

APPROXIMATELY 600 acres of cabbage seed are being grown this year in the neighborhood of La Conner, Wash., the fields ranging from five to sixty acres, report specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. As the season has been favorable for the crop, growers are prophesying high yields.

W. H. BOFFERDING has retired from the W. H. Bofferding Co., Minneapolis. This company will be conducted by Carroll W. Armstrong and F. H. Virtue. Mr. Bofferding has purchased the mail order seed business of Emma V. White and will conduct it under the name of the Emma V. White Co., at 3010 Aldrich avenue, south.

THAT ninety per cent of the acreage of California devoted to vegetable seed is now in the hands of Japanese farmers is the estimate of the office of State Market Director Harris Weinstock. The Japanese Agricultural Association, acting for the great mass of Japanese farmers in the state, has made application for the organization of the Japanese vegetable seed growers. The Japanese have, either as tenants or lessees of agricultural lands, developed an industry which is said to virtually control the sugar beet, carrot, onion, tomato and beet seed output of California.

INSPECTING THE BULBS.

The regulations with regard to inspecting bulb imports are making a lot of extra work for the seed houses and bulb dealers, as well as causing considerable delay in the delivery of the stock. In some cases the regulations have not been lived up to, because they were not understood, but the importers are doing their best to meet the requirements of the inspection authorities, even to notifying them, on the duplicate forms provided, of the distribution of retail orders shipped, even dozen lots! At this first application of the new regulations the inspectors, naturally, are zealous, as was expected, but it was hoped that a little experience of the task of inspecting several thousands of cases of bulbs at one time would result in accepting the foreign certificate. It now seems likely, however, that such an idea is premature, because the inspectors are finding things on the bulbs! It develops that the reason there are no Romans this season is that the French author-

New Early-flowering or Winter-blooming

GIANT PANSIES

An entirely new and distinct strain of Pansies. The main advantage of these new Pansies over all hitherto existing Pansies is the extreme earliness of flowering and the unusual hardiness, which enables them to withstand quite severe Winters, and to bloom right on into the summer. Sown at the same time as other Pansies, they begin flowering the early part of March or as soon as the snow is off the ground, many times having four or five large flowers to a plant, when all other Pansies are only showing buds. The flowers are large, well formed and fragrant. They are highly recommended for Autumn planting on graves, and for very early bedding, as well as for early cut flowers.

14. WINTER SUN. Golden Yellow, with dark eye.
15. ICE KING. Silvery white, with dark blue eye.
16. CELESTIAL QUEEN. Light or sky blue.
17. CHARM OF MARCH. Dark velvety blue.
18. MIXED. The above four colors with other shades and variations.

Each Color Separate or Mixed

500 Seeds, 25c; 1000 Seeds, 40c; ⅛ oz., $1.10; ¼ oz., $2.00; 1 oz., $7.50

12. KENILWORTH GIANT PRIZE is undoubtedly the largest flower and longest stemmed Pansy in the world. The enormous flowers are of perfect form and of great substance. Petals overlapped and undulating. The rich colorings and markings are widely varied, some flowers being almost self-colored. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

10. KENILWORTH GIANT EXHIBITION is the very finest complete mixture ever sent out. Seeds carefully saved only from marked plants of the best varieties, with the largest and best shaped flowers and richest coloring. It is impossible to convey an adequate idea of the delightful variations in color and markings of this unrivaled mixture. 500 seeds, 30c; 1000 seeds, 50c; ⅛ oz., $1.35; ¼ oz., $2.50; oz., $10.00.

ities could not certificate them under the rigid requirements of the American regulations, and even the certificated Paper Whites are turning out to be infested with a mite, too small to be seen with an ordinary microscope, while the Formosa lily bulbs in sterilized soil carry a mite that almost can be detected with the naked eye. When this was discovered at Chicago it resulted in holding up some of the most beautiful lily bulbs any grower ever saw. After a little deliberation over the latter stranger it was decided that it was not necessary to confiscate and destroy the bulbs, but its presence was noted on the certificate issued, which probably means that inspection officials in every state in the Union will sit in judgment. What the result will be no one can foretell, because when a man goes into the bugology business it seems to become an obsession; it gets on his nerves and he begins to see things, always terrifying—to him.

What the bulb trade wants is to get the procedure so systematized that one inspection will suffice, no matter how many times bulbs are moved before they are planted.

RESALE PRICE MAY BE FIXED.

The best of judicial authority is given to seed houses doing a packet business who attempt to maintain a uniform price for the sale of their packets at retail. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Fourth Circuit, reversed the decision of the Federal District court, at Baltimore, in the case of Frey & Son, Inc., vs. Cudahy Packing Co., upholding the latter concern in its refusal to sell to firms which did not maintain the resale prices on Old Dutch Cleanser which the manufacturer suggested.

Inasmuch as this decision holds that there was no violation of either the Clayton act or the Sherman act, it is considered of greater importance than the recent Colgate case, which involved only the Sherman act. The Cudahy case is the first in which the manufacturer has been upheld in a suit for damages brought by a price-cutter.

In his opinion, Judge Woods said: "The vital question is whether defendant's method of business coupled with the acquiescence of its customers therein by observing its requests or demands to maintain prices was such coöperation between seller and purchasers as amounted to a combination in restraint of trade within the rule laid down in Dr. Miles Medical Co. vs. Park & Sons Co., 220 U. S. 373, and other following cases. We are obliged to hold that the question has been clearly answered in the negative by the Supreme Court in United States of America vs. Colgate & Co., decided June 2, 1919. The court expressly held that the announcement in advance that customers were expected to charge a price fixed by the seller, and that the penalty for refusal to maintain prices would be refusal to sell to the offending customer, observance of the request to maintain prices by customers generally, and the actual enforcement of the penalty by refusal to sell to such customers as failed to maintain the price did not constitute a violation of the trust statute. Nothing more was done by the defendant and its customers in this case.

"Since the defendant, under the Colgate case, merely exercised the right reserved by the Clayton act to dealers of 'selecting their own customers in bona fide transactions and not in restraint of trade,' the plaintiff cannot recover under its charge of unlawful discrimination in price."

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Beckert's Seed Store, Pittsburgh, Pa.—"Beckert's Fall Guide to Spring Flower Gardens," a well illustrated catalogue of bulbs, seeds and plants for fall use; twenty-four pages, in a neat cream-colored cover. The seeds comprise "vegetable seeds for late summer and fall sowing, flower seeds for the greenhouse and coldframe," grass and clover seeds. Mushroom spawn, fertilizers, tools and miscellaneous supplies also are listed.

The John Henry Co., Lansing, Mich.—"A catalogue of florists' cards and envelopes, special cards for every occasion, gummed labels, tags and stickers, florists' printing of all kinds, embossing machines"; forty-eight pages, handsomely printed in several colors of ink; freely and finely illustrated; bound in a neat and strong blue cover. An artistic and persuasive sort of catalogue.

Fisher Governor Co., Marshalltown, Ia.—"The Fisher Trap," an especially attractive, well arranged, convincing sort of catalogue; twenty-four pages, with a tasteful cover in two shades of brown. The illustrations are artistic and are at the same time so instructive that the company seems to be justified in saying of them, "We believe that a careful study of them, without making a single reference to the reading matter, will convey an excellent idea of the merits of our trap."

Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, Pa.—Autumn wholesale catalogue of bulbs, plants, shrubs, seeds and sundries; illustrated, forty-eight pages and cover. On account of the impossibility of importing French Roman hyacinths this season, the company suggests that its patrons substitute Dutch miniature hyacinths and freesias. Prices seem to be quoted on nearly all items of bulbous stock that are listed, but with more than usual emphasis on "the right to advance prices without notice."

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

LOOPHOLES IN QUARANTINE 37.

Explanation of the method of securing limited quantities of otherwise prohibited stock under Quarantine No. 37 is given in the following communication from C. L. Marlatt, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board:

"Regulation 14 of the regulations relative to the importation of nursery stock and other plants and seeds has been revised and reissued. In its new form it is essentially an interpretation of the old regulation 14 rather than an enlargement of powers under the quarantine, inasmuch as the regulation, as worded in the quarantine as originally issued, was intended to cover exactly what is now more clearly stated in the new regulation. This regulation provides for the importation under a special permit from the Secretary of Agriculture of limited quantities of otherwise prohibited stock for the purpose of keeping the country supplied with new varieties of plants and stock for propagation purposes not available in the United States. This amendment, however, does not apply to a few plants which have been specifically prohibited entry under other quarantines, as, for example, pines, ribes and grossularia from certain countries, and citrus, banana and bamboo stock.

"The following explanations of regulation 14 are given to indicate the limitations under this regulation and the procedure to be followed in making importations of the two classes of plants specified, namely, new varieties and necessary propagating stock:

"The expression 'new varieties' is understood to mean plant novelties; that is, new horticultural or floricultural creations or new discoveries.

"'Necessary propagating stock' is understood to mean stock of old or standard varieties imported for the multiplication of the plants in question as a nursery or florist's enterprise as distinguished from importations for immediate or ultimate sale of the stocks actually imported, and such importations will be restricted to stocks which are not available in this country in adequate quantities.

"The expression 'limited quantities' used in regulation 14 is understood to mean, with respect both to new varieties and to standard stocks, such quantities as will supply reasonable needs for the establishment of reproduction plantings which may be thereafter independent of foreign supplies.

"There is no limitation as to the number of permits for different plants or classes of plants under regulation 14 which an individual may request, but the applications will all be passed upon both as to necessity for the particular importation and as to the quantity adequate for the purpose intended, by experts of the department, for the information of the board prior to the issuance of the permits.

"All importations under regulation 14 must be made under special permits through the office of foreign seed and plant introduction of the Department of Agriculture, but for the use of the individual importer. The importer will be required to meet all entry, transportation and freight handling charges. The department will make no charge for inspection and supervision. The necessary procedure for making such importations is as follows:

"1. The Federal Horticultural Board will supply, on request, an application blank upon which request may be made for a special permit to import. This application embodies an agreement on the part of the importer that if the imported material is found on examination by an inspector of the Department of Agriculture to be so infested or infected with insects or disease that it cannot be adequately safeguarded, it may be destroyed and such destruction will not be made the basis of a claim against the Department of Agriculture for damages. The application must be accompanied by a statement certifying that the plants to be imported are novelties or, if standard varieties of foreign plants, that stocks in adequate quantities for their propagation are not available in this country, and that in either case they are to be imported for the establishment of reproduction plantings and not for immediate or ultimate sale of the stocks actually imported. In exceptional cases the importation of novelties may be made for personal use, but not for sale. The application must also give the name and address of the exporter, country and locality where the stock was grown, the name and address of the importer and the name and address of the nursery or other establishment where the plants are to be planted and grown for propagation purposes on release.

"2. If the permit is issued, the applicant will be furnished shipping instructions and shipping tags to be forwarded with his order to the exporter. The plants will, in consequence, be addressed in bond to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Plant Industry, Washington, D. C., United States of America, and indorsed 'Foreign Seed and Plant Introduction, for (insert name of importer)', and arrangements must be made with some responsible agency in Washington for the clearance of the plants when received through the custom house at Georgetown, D. C., together with the payment of all charges involved.

"3. Upon clearance through the Georgetown custom house the material will be turned over to the office of foreign seed and plant introduction by the authorized agent of the importer, and in the specially equipped inspection houses and under expert care as to the welfare of the plants, be carefully examined by inspectors of the Federal Horticultural Board. If found free from dangerous insects or diseases, the shipment will be immediately and carefully repacked and forwarded by express or freight, charges collect, to the importer.

"4. Should importers request permits covering the importation of larger quantities of propagating or other stock under regulation 14 than can be housed and cared for in the inspection houses of this department, and should such request be approved, such importers may be required to provide local storage in Washington for such material during the period of detention for examination and, if necessary, disinfection. Where possible the original containers will be employed for repacking the material, but the importer will be required to meet the cost of such repacking and of new containers when such are necessary. Small shipments which can be easily handled will be repacked without charge. For the present the board will undertake on request to provide for such storage and repacking, but reserves the right to require the importer to provide for such work through his own agents.

"5. Cleaning and disinfection will occur for slight infestation, but should the material be found to be so infected or infested with either disease or insects that it cannot be so adequately safeguarded, it will either be destroyed, or, when possible and desirable, returned to the point of origin."

ful,'' suggested by Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, was adopted by the association. The exhibit of the Davey Tree Expert Co., of Kent, O., showing diseases and pests that infest trees, attracted considerable attention.

Luncheon Speeches.

The luncheon tendered by Congressman M. L. Davey, of Kent, O., on the last day of the convention, was an illustration of the get-together spirit advocated by the host. Mr. Davey in his speech carefully pointed out the necessity of elevating the profession, getting into closer touch with the employer, offering inducements to young men to take up the trade and follow in the footsteps of the veterans who created and brought the calling to its present high position, and of coöperating with the trade in its demand for the moderation of Quarantine No. 37. Assuring his hearers of early success, if persistent steps were taken, Mr. Davey also advocated that the association be used as a clearing house, so to speak, where gardeners and owners of estates would be brought in direct contact with each other.

Superintendent of Schools J. H. Francis, of Columbus, O., in a stirring talk, showed the vital importance of educating the young in the practical ethics of gardening and demonstrated how the profession could be of the greatest assistance.

The address of Sydney R. Wilson, vice-president of the Advertising Club of the World, was listened to with the greatest attention. The main theme of his speech was advertising. The point was taken that the gardener could advertise his profession to his employer and the public at large.

Washington, D. C.—Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, has introduced a bill in Congress for the extension of the National Botanic Garden, to take in the park areas and also unimproved land to the west and south of the present site.

Norwalk, O.—E. J. Peat has sold his greenhouse business to B. F. Farring, who will continue it. After resting a short time, Mr. Peat will look up a new location, for he says he cannot keep away from greenhouses after thirty-five years in them.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Market conditions have changed for the better as the cooler weather brings up the quality of stock. With the exception of gladioli, all flowers have cleared well during the last week.

American Beauties are good for the season. The demand is fair; if they are not picked up the first day, they are the next. As there are no other choice long-stemmed roses to speak of, American Beauties are much appreciated.

Short and medium-stemmed highly colored Ophelias are in the market, and they are quickly picked up by the buyers. Other varieties that are good are Maryland, Killarney, Columbia, Sunburst and Russell. Premiers arrive in a bruised condition, but they, too, are quickly disposed of.

Carnations are too short-stemmed to count for much, but in a week or two they will be in great demand.

Gladioli are overabundant. Only the best find a buyer. Asters are plentiful, as a whole, the demand being below ordinary. The usual garden flowers are to be had, such as snapdragon, cosmos, zinnia, marigold, celosia and delphinium.

Various Notes.

Most elaborate funeral pieces were sent to the funeral of Mrs. R. A. Alger, wife of the former secretary of war, General Alger. The casket cover was made by John Breitmeyer's Sons. It was a large casket cross of solid lilies of the valley on a black velvet velour cover.

A meeting of the Detroit Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Statler Friday, August 29. The annual election of officers took place. J. F. Sullivan was reëlected president; M. Bloy, vice-president; J. Stock, treasurer, and Harry Taylor, secretary. Many letters were read from out-of-town visitors complimenting the Detroit Florists' Club on the satisfactory way the S. A. F. convention was taken care of.

Adam Bezemer is back on the job, having recently returned from overseas. He is at E. A. Fetters' Adams avenue store. H. T.

Jamestown, N. Y.—Geo. A. Heelas is giving the store a thorough overhauling, which includes putting in a full single window and a green and white tiled floor.

The Market.

Business is fairly good, but only the good and fancy stock is selling readily. The short stock and the culls hardly move at all. The good offerings bring a good price for this time of the year, while the poor grades that do sell move only at the lowest prices.

Roses are fairly plentiful, but a great many of them are short-stemmed. Carnations are in the market again. They are the cut from the new stock. Few Easter lilies are available. Some rubrum lilies are coming into the market. Blooms from New York have been added to the aster receipts during the last fortnight. As a whole they are fairly good and prove a welcome addition to the offerings. Gladioli are in good supply. Dahlias are coming into the market regularly and are excellent in quality. Greens are meeting with a good demand.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell returned from the convention August 30. After he departed from Detroit he went to Cleveland, Buffalo and other points before returning home. He found that during his absence his force had sold more wild smilax than he had ever sold before at this time of the year.

Miss Laura Murphy returned from her vacation August 30. Miss Murphy, together with some friends from Alabama, drove from here to Chicago, took the boat for Mackinac, spent a fortnight at the Murphy cottage at Les Cheneaux, went to Detroit for the convention and wound up the vacation by spending a week at Cedar Point.

L. H. Kyrk, on his return from the convention, drove to Portland, Ind., with Mr. Frank and spent several days there. Then he and Mr. Frank came through to this city, Mr. Kyrk to return home and the latter to go on to Butler, Ky., where his wife had been visiting. Mr. Kyrk received his first dahlias of the season from Geo. Klotter August 24.

Among recent visitors were Harry Papworth, New Orleans, La.; J. T. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia., and Sam F. Purllant, Winchester, Ky. C. H. H.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Results from Detroit Convention.

With the enthusiasm expressed at the Detroit convention of the society over the excellent results forthcoming from the publicity campaign, the promotion of the fund of $100,000 should take on new life. Nobody now has any doubt as to the efficiency of the campaign, and the collection of the fund simmers down to a florist's own conscientious thought as to how much he shall give. Our workers fully believe that every florist intends to pay his way into this marvelous project for the stimulation of his business, and if you, Mr. Reader, have not already subscribed, rest assured that your subscription is expected.

Your secretary was delighted a day or two after his return to New York from the convention to receive the following letter from one of the "bright lights" in the trade: "Philadelphia, August 26, 1919. Mr. John Young, Secretary, 1170 Broadway, New York City. My dear sir: Making good my promise of a year or so ago of contributing to the publicity campaign, I am sending you a check for $500 for the publicity committee. You are surely doing good work, and I admire your zeal. Cordially yours, H. H. Battles."

The florist who is wondering what amount he should subscribe need not hesitate. If he thinks later that he has undersubscribed he can easily make an additional subscription. Such additional aid is weekly to be noted in the list which our good friends, the trade papers, publish in practically every one of their issues.

Community Effort.

We have more than once called attention to the value of community effort in raising subscriptions to the fund. It is only fitting that we should give an instance of what a little effort can produce in this direction: J. W. Grandy, the Norfolk, Va., retail florist, was a little piqued over the small showing made in our published subscription list by the florists in his state, and made it his duty to stir things up a bit, with the result that he increased the 4-year subscriptions about $1,000. There are many of us in other communities who could do the same. No longer need there be the feeling that our money is buying "a pig in a poke," for we are overwhelmed with assurances that the campaign benefits are directly felt.

The publicity committees are now called upon to vote large appropriations for publicity which will be greatly needed in the coming season. It is to the best interests of the trade to see that the money for all this is forthcoming.

Billboards at $50.

Your promotion bureau would like to hear from florists having sites where could be located big billboard signs carrying the slogan, "Say It with Flowers." Many florists are located along railroads and much traveled highways where such signs could be advantageously displayed. Arrangements have been made whereby such a sign can be provided for about $50, made of metal, in knock-down form, and as handsome as a skilled artist can make it. It is seven and one-half feet wide by twenty feet in length, and decidedly ornamental. Your committees will furnish one for the price named, but, of course, cannot father any other expense attaching to it. Many have already made request for a sign, and our committees have felt warranted in entering into a contract which will allow of the supply of signs at the low price mentioned. The secretary will be pleased to furnish any further information on this subject which may be desired.

THE DETROIT CONVENTION.

Trade Exhibits Awards.

The report of the judges of sections C and D of the trade exhibition, including boilers, heating apparatus and greenhouse structures, at the S. A. F. convention at Detroit, is as follows:

American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, Ill.—McKee boilers, improvements on sectional boilers, honorable mention. Agmco circulator, highly commended.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, Ill.—New and improved water tube and steam boiler, certificate of merit. Refrigerating system, highly commended.

Jacob K. Nielsen, Box 312, Elyria, O.—Tile bench for greenhouses, honorable mention.

Spokane Concrete Flower Pot Machine Co., Spokane, Wash.—Cement pot manufacturing machine, certificate of merit.

Fred L. Gunton, Elyria, O.—New patent ventilator arm, honorable mention.

Earl L. Hempstead, Bloomington, Ill.—Insectonos, honorable mention.

Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago, Ill.—Improvements on sectional boiler and smoke pipe, highly commended.

Judges: E. Allan Peirce, F. H. Traendly, F. R. Pierson.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

During the last week the wholesale markets were in pretty good condition, with a good supply of everything seasonable, but the demand was not strong. The quality of the stock is not of the best, as the extra fancy grade is limited to a few hundred blooms.

The retailers say that all through the summer trade has been fairly good, the bulk of the work having been for funerals, and that outside of this things were dull.

The opening of the schools last week and the return of the wealthy tourists should make business more active this month.

The growers are putting in busy days housing their plants and preparing for the fall and winter season. There are plenty of good roses coming in now, but the great bulk of them are short-stemmed and are selling as low as $10 per thousand in big lots. Ophelia seems the best of any coming in at present. A good supply from our local growers is expected the coming season.

Last week saw more carnations than any other time this summer. They were fairly good blooms, but short-stemmed. The top prices were about $2 per hundred.

PROMPTNESS WITH CARE

Eastern New York and Western Mass.

Gladioli are nearing the end and not so many are coming in as formerly.

Tuberose stalks are arriving in good condition. The usual glut in these was not noticed this season, as the market generally cleaned up daily. There are also plenty of asters from both local and outside shippers and these, too, clean up well. Little of anything else is coming in from outdoors.

In greens the market is well supplied every day and the big demand clears this stock daily.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting September 11. The place will be decided upon at an officers' meeting September 4, at the home of Vice-President Beneke. Several invitations have been extended and all members will be notified of the place of meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Berning, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Weber, Mrs. Bruenig, Miss Stamm, Mrs. E. E. Windler, Mrs. Pelletier and Mrs. Diemer arrived home the latter part of last week from their trip made since the close of the S. A. F. convention. They report a most enjoyable time.

The Bergstermann Floral Co. is installing a National refrigerator of handsome design. When this is in place, the improvements will be about complete.

Philip Rahn, who has been in charge of Miss M. S. Newman's place, 3720 Olive street, reports that Miss Newman, who has been ill at Green Mountain Falls, Col., is much improved and will return with Miss Armstrong September 15.

W. F. Thomas, who represented the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, in St. Louis during the last year, has closed his office and resigned to accept a position with the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., traveling through the eastern states.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association has announced that the annual picnic will be held at Creve Coeur lake, September 11. The committee in charge invites everyone in the trade to attend. The date will conflict somewhat with the Florists' Club, which holds its meeting the same day.

The employees of Grimm & Gorly enjoyed a trolley party August 23 in the parlor car Kinloch. A band furnished music and plenty of refreshments were served. All reported a jolly good time. Wednesday evening, August 27, thirty employees held a meeting and organized a welfare society, of which only employees are members. Henry Durenberg was elected president and Miss A. Herring secretary. The new society will hold monthly meetings. The object of

The Market.

The week just closed will go on record as the poorest of the present season. There was a light demand and prices on nearly all flowers were low. The market August 30 was poor because of so many people going away over Labor day and practically no flowers were sold. Gladioli sold at absurd prices, the bulk not bringing over 50 cents per hundred; many sold much lower and few went beyond the dollar mark. Asters have been a perfect drug the last few days, the bulk going at $2.50 to $5 per thousand, with some fancies at $10 per thousand. Apart from these two flowers, there is a marked lack of variety just now. Roses are somewhat scarce and are realizing higher prices than for several months, whites being in especial demand, but Ophelia, Miller, Maryland and Francis Scott Key have all realized excellent prices. Some Lilium speciosum are seen and small lots of auratum and longiflorum.

There are some nice gardenias offered at $4 per dozen, cattleyas from $9 to $15 per dozen and small lots of bouvardia. Dahlias are coming in from several growers. Sweet peas are scarce. Golden Glow mums come in small lots, but people do not crave chrysanthemums until asters are more on the wane. Salpiglossis, cosmos and other annuals are not of good quality, owing to the frequent rain storms we have had of late.

At Horticultural Hall.

The show of flowers and vegetables from children's gardens at Horticultural hall August 30 and 31 was a splendid one. Competition was keen, there being as many as forty-five collections in one class and seventy-five to 100 entries in some individual classes. The quality was of a higher standard than ever and would have done credit to professional growers. The keen interest taken by the children in the judging was pleasing and a happy augury for the future of horticulture.

Raymond W. Sweet showed vases of his handsome gladiolus, Beacon, which was awarded a first-class certificate in 1918. Eugene N. Fischer received a certificate of merit for Priscilla, a handsome rich orange primulinus hybrid, and honorable mention for Miss A. Nelson.

It has been decided to hold the annual dahlia show September 13 and 14 in lieu of September 11 to 14, and to postpone the big fruit and vegetable show until September 25 to 28. The trustees have at last voted to accept the offer of $1,000 from Miss M. R. Case, of Weston, for additional exhibitions in 1920 and four more shows will be held in addition to the six already announced. This insures a fine series of shows in 1920, with about $8,500 in premiums.

Club Field Day at Lexington.

Glorious weather favored the club field day at the Breck-Robinson Nurseries, Lexington, August 28. The skies were cloudless and the temperature comfortable for such an outing. The attendance was unusually large, over 125 being present, including a score or more of ladies. Herbaceous perennials in beds and long borders, with grass walks between them, were a source of great interest to visitors, as were the fields of gladioli, dahlias, cannas and other plants. About 100 acres are devoted to nursery stock and they looked clean and thrifty right through. The pond and Dutch garden came in for much praise and another feature not on the program, viz., a tractor demonstration, interested the men greatly.

After an inspection of the nurseries, refreshments were served at the Dutch tea house and before the party dispersed President Rogers voiced the thanks of the company for courtesies extended and called for three cheers for the Breck-Robinson Co., which were heartily given. Albert E. Robinson, in reply, hoped the club members would make an annual pilgrimage to the nurseries, where they would always be welcome. Short addresses were made by A. P. Calder, Sr., W. N. Craig and Herman H. Bartsch, the last named giving an interesting account of his trip to and from the convention and his experiences. All united in classing the field day as a delightful and profitable one.

There will be vacation and convention experiences told at the meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club September 16. Professor Jack's lecture on "Flowers and Fruits of Our Native Trees and Shrubs," which will be illus-

Various Notes.

A new company, named the A. Leuthy Co., has been formed to take over the business of A. Leuthy & Co., of Roslindale. The personnel of the new firm, in addition to A. Leuthy, is William Rosenthal, of the Boston Cut Flower Co., and John T. Slayter, Louis Nelson and Martin J. Cunniff, all for merly with the W. W. Edgar Co., Waverley, Mass. Mr. Leuthy has just returned from a trip to New York, New Jersey, Philadelphia and other points and has secured several carloads of palms and other plants. The houses are all well stocked with excellent material for the coming season's trade.

Janiten & Kunan, of Arlington, have about 10,000 good cyclamens coming on for the Thanksgiving and Christmas trade. In addition they have large lots of poinsettias and other winter-blooming plants and two houses of chrysanthemums. They will soon start to cut Golden Glow and Early Frost.

We were delighted to see an old friend, John W. Duncan, of Spokane, August 30. Mr. Duncan moved there from Boston nearly ten years ago, but he still has a warm spot in many of our hearts. He attended the park superintendents' convention at Hartford, Conn., last week.

We continue to get frequent heavy rains, which damage outdoor flowers and have made it somewhat disagreeable for those sojourning at beach and mountain resorts. Stay-at-homes have had all the best of it in July and August this year. August proved colder and wetter than normal. The highest temperature was 90 degrees and the lowest 53 degrees.

Among visitors last week were Charles Sandiford and wife, Buffalo, N. Y.; James Brown and A. J. Dorward, Newport, R. I., and T. C. Green, Providence, R. I. Mr. Green sailed for Europe on the S. S. Baltic August 30 for a visit to Great Britain, France and Holland and will come home via Rotterdam.

The Association of Entomologists of the United States held a hastily called meeting at the state house August 28, with representatives of twenty-five states present. After viewing much of the devastated corn areas in New York, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, they passed resolutions petitioning Congress to appropriate $2,000,000 immediately to wage the fight on the European corn borer. The principal speaker was Charles McCaffree, of Pierre, S. D. The delegates were unanimously of the opinion that unless the federal government takes prompt steps to exterminate the pest, it will spread from coast to coast and destroy the corn crops. It is of some solace to know that even the F. H. B. does not claim that this pest came in on nursery stock or bulbs, but most probably on hemp or jute, neither of which useful and necessary commodities is yet classed as dangerous.

S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, is already getting a nice pick of carnations, all of which, as yet, are called for by his increasing retail trade. He is much pleased with Dorner's new rose, Rose Marie.

Herman H. Bartsch and wife came home from the convention by boat to Cleveland and from there with friends in a new Buick automobile. They had perfect weather all the time they were away until a few miles from Boston, when they ran into a violent thunderstorm and got wet. Mr. Bartsch enjoyed the convention immensely, as well as the journey going and returning.

Axel Magnuson, of Manchester, is sending in some good Golden Glow mums. He has a large planting of retarded Gladiolus primulinus for late flowering.

The fine new flower store which opened last week in the Little building, on Boylston street, to be operated by H. S. Rogers, will go under the name of Hamlin, Florist, there being several other florists named Rogers in the city.

Among other flowers noted in store windows last week, in addition to those usually met with, were allamandas, Stretlitzia Reginæ, anthuriums, Buddleia magnifica, Agapanthus umbellatus and Campanula pyramidalis.

Commencing September 6, the wholesale flower markets will close Saturdays at 5 o'clock instead of noon. The various seed houses plan to close at 1 o'clock the balance of the year.

Henry Penn and wife arrived home last week from Maine, well browned and reporting most successful fishing experiences.

If the threatened government embargo of the F. H. B. against the corn borer goes into effect, it will be a serious blow to nurserymen, florists and market gardeners in this state. Both gladioli and dahlias are on the banned list and of these Massachusetts has some large growers. Geraniums, chrysanthemums, all herbaceous perennials and many of our most important vegetables will be included in the embargo if the wishes of the F. H. B. prevail.

The larvæ of the June bug or May beetle are ruining some beautiful lawns this season. We had a similar plague twelve years ago. While carbon bisulphide will suffocate them on small areas, when lawns cover acres plowing up is necessary. Chickens and birds will devour multitudes of the pests. Heavy rolling when they are near the surface kills many and a liberal dusting of lime, basic slag and nitrate of soda will also kill great numbers. Chrysanthemums, roses, cyclamens and other greenhouse plants are sometimes seriously damaged by this pest. When plants are seen wilting when the soil is moist, it is a sure sign the larvæ are present. W. N. C.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The week of August 24 to 30 was the most quiet and uneventful week in the florists' business during the year of 1919. Even funeral work failed to move the stock that arrived on the market and the retail florists were obliged to throw it on the dump or send it to the hospitals. Wedding orders were also few and far between and counter trade was absent.

The market was well supplied with a good stock of summer flowers. Roses were quite plentiful and showed an increase over the previous week in production. Columbia took the lead, in both quality and quantity, and Premier was also much in evidence. Russell has not been so plentiful of late. All of the rose stock on the market is practically from the young plants and stems are short, but the quality shows marked improvement each week.

Gladioli are still coming into this market in good quantities, but the call for them is not so heavy as it was earlier in the season. It is thought that the greenhouse gladioli have hurt the sale of the outdoor varieties somewhat, for the reason that this showy flower coming in so early in the season causes the public to tire of it before the last of the outdoor-grown flowers have gone.

Asters are selling better than any other outdoor flowers, particularly for funeral work. Carnations are still hardly to be reckoned with, although a few are coming in. Outdoor snapdragons lend variety to the flowers on the market and meet with a good call. Dahlias are coming into bloom and will be on the market before long.

There are a large number of weddings booked for early September, many for the first week of the month, and the florists prepared for a revived interest in flowers after Labor day. Auratum and rubrum lilies and hydrangeas offer variety in the large and showy cut flowers.

Various Notes.

Mr. Huddleson, on his way home from Detroit, called on the members of the trade last week in the interests of the Ove Gnatt Co., La Porte, Ind.

David Vesey spent several days last week in Cincinnati, O., on business. W. J. & M. S. Vesey are cutting some of the new rose, Premier, some fine vandas, oncidiums and a few cattleyas.

CLEVELAND, O.

The Market.

There did not seem to be any perceptible change in the market last week. Stock, with the exception of roses, was plentiful and the demand small. Gladioli and asters are still flooding the market, while other outdoor flowers are coming in fairly well, but are not cleaning up as well as might be expected. Dahlias are a little more plentiful, but mostly in the shorter grades. Asters this year do not seem to be as good as in other years, with the exception of a limited number. Calendulas are in good quality, as are also zinnias, which clean up fairly well. Some bachelor's buttons, both blue and white, and baby's breath are showing fair quality. A few strawflowers and scabiosas made their appearance last week and also some fairly good snapdragons, gaillardias and coreopsis. Fancy ferns have been rather scarce, owing to a strike of the employees picking them. They are now coming in off and on, but not regularly yet.

Various Notes.

Clarence McFarland reports his marriage to Miss Lydia Petrosky.

James McLaughlin, of the J. M. Gasser Co. wholesale store, has been spending his vacation visiting relatives in Indiana.

Chas. Bastian, of the Cleveland Plant & Flower Co., is taking another week's vacation.

A new store has been opened at 12431 Cedar road, Cleveland Heights, handling both flowers and seeds. The store is in the hands of W. J. Ferguson and Louis Brandt.

W. J. Temblett has just returned from an extended vacation. He attended the convention at Detroit and took an extensive fishing trip through Michigan.

F. A. Zenke, of the Excell Laboratories, Chicago, was a visitor, taking in the gardeners' convention.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The market has been fairly active during the last week. At the close of the week scarcely anything was seen at the wholesale house. Several large funerals in the city have kept all the florists active. The market during the last week has been overcrowded with the many varieties of gladioli, and the retail stores have appeared like flower shows, with huge baskets and vases of gladioli on display. America, Schwaben, Francis King and Augusta have held the lead, while the other varieties have been plentiful. Needless to say, under present conditions prices have been quite low. Thousands of asters are crowding the market daily and are selling at different prices, according to their quality. The best variety reaching the market at this time is without doubt Rochester, whose large, fluffy blooms are in much demand. Sweet peas are not much in evidence, and have no large demand. Zinnias are quite popular and sell fairly well. Larkspur is only in limited supply. Good hardy chrysanthemums are seen and sell well. Bachelor's buttons are seen occasionally. The market is well filled with roses, which have a good demand, the most popular at this time being Ophelia, which possibly is the best keeping rose at this time of the year. American Beauties and orchids arrive, but the demand for them during the last week was quite small.

Various Notes.

Thomas Sullivan, of George B. Hart's force, has been away on vacation during the last week.

George T. Boucher has just returned from his trip to Detroit and Chicago, having made several purchases of novelties.

Mrs. Edwin P. Wilson is spending a few weeks with her sisters in Chicago, Ill., and will return home early in September.

The Rochester Rose Society at a special meeting held at the Chamber of Commerce Monday evening, August 25, decided to exhibit some of their finest blooms at the Victory exposition to be held here during the week of September 1 to 6.

A sausage and corn roast was held by the clerks of H. E. Wilson's store Tuesday evening, August 26, to which a few friends were invited. A pleasant spot was found in Durand-Eastman park and despite a few local showers an enjoyable time was spent there. Returning to the city, the party was entertained at the home of Miss Jane Morris.

Among the visitors who called on the trade last week were a member of the firm of Pells & Shook, of Rhinebeck, N. Y.; R. Slicker, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, and A. E. Cowen, of R. L. Samilow, of New York.

George B. Hart entertained several visitors Monday, August 25, among whom were Wallace Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn.; G. E. M. Stumpp, of New York; Arthur Buckholz, of Woodside, N. Y.; William A. Rodman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. Murphy, of Lilly Dale.

Professor David Fairchild, chief of the Bureau of Foreign Seed and Plant Introductions, inspected the city park system Friday, August 29, accompanied by Calvin C. Laney, superintendent of parks, and John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks. He was much impressed with the extensive collections of crab apples, Japanese cherries, hawthorns, evergreens and many of the trees and shrubs introduced to the city parks from northwestern Asia.

The Rochester park department has just received fifty plants of a columnar Chinese juniper from the United States Bureau of Plant Industry. H. J. H.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

SENATE AIRS COAL TROUBLE.

In its investigation of the increased price of coal, a senate interstate commerce subcommittee has brought forth testimony that a shortage of cars and labor difficulties is hindering coal production, that certain elements in the miners' union are intent on nationalization of the coal mines, with the adoption of a 6-hour day and a 5-day week, plus a wage increase, and that unless problems of production are solved the country will be brought face to face with a coal famine in the coming winter.

After detailing the effects of labor difficulties and car shortage on coal production, Harry N. Taylor, president of the National Coal Association, an organization of operators, declared a bill had been prepared for submission to Congress providing for the nationalization of the mines. He added that what the miners wanted was not only that the government should own the properties but that the mines should be turned over to them for operation. He insisted that the more radical of the miners appear to be gaining control in certain districts and that there was a serious danger that these elements would make an earnest effort for the institution of something approaching Soviet methods in conducting the properties. Such radical elements are now creating difficulties by strikes in various coal fields, unauthorized by the union officials.

The car shortage has appeared so serious a matter that the coal price hearing may be converted into a railroad efficiency investigation.

RAISING THE FLUE.

How much rise shall I give a flue forty-eight feet in length, with an inside diameter of eight inches? It is fireproofed with tile and runs to a smokestack at the end of the house. Would it be better to run the flue back to the smokestack on the furnace to get a good draft? S. G. W.—Kan.

Everything else being equal, the faster the flue rises the better will be the draft. Hence, we should start the flue as low as possible and at the other end carry it as near the bottom of the bench as can be done with safety. The danger from fire will be greatly lessened if the bench bottom and all the supports are constructed of cement. We should prefer to have the flue rise at least one inch in five feet, and would make it more if possible. We should advise a rise of ten to fifteen inches in a house forty-eight feet long.

While there is some advantage in carrying the flue back to the furnace, the rise can only be one-half as much as when it leads to a chimney at the

Expressions From Men Who Know Boilers

Get the Kroeschell First

Several years ago Mr. ———— corresponded with us in regard to the Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler, but was persuaded to install two sectional cast iron boilers which were claimed to be superior to the Kroeschell.

In the meantime we placed a number of Kroeschell Boilers in the immediate vicinity of Mr. ————, and he could not help but notice their great efficiency, and last year, while at the convention, he placed his order for his first Kroeschell. The following letter speaks for itself:

"We like the Kroeschell Boiler very much. It gives entire satisfaction, and it is so easy to fire. I will trade you the two cast iron sectional boilers for another like the Kroeschell I have."

[Signed] Mr. ————, Ohio.

No More Cast Iron Boilers

I have used several different makes of boilers but none I like as well as yours.

The Kroeschell is easier to fire, takes less coal and water circulates quicker than any other boiler.

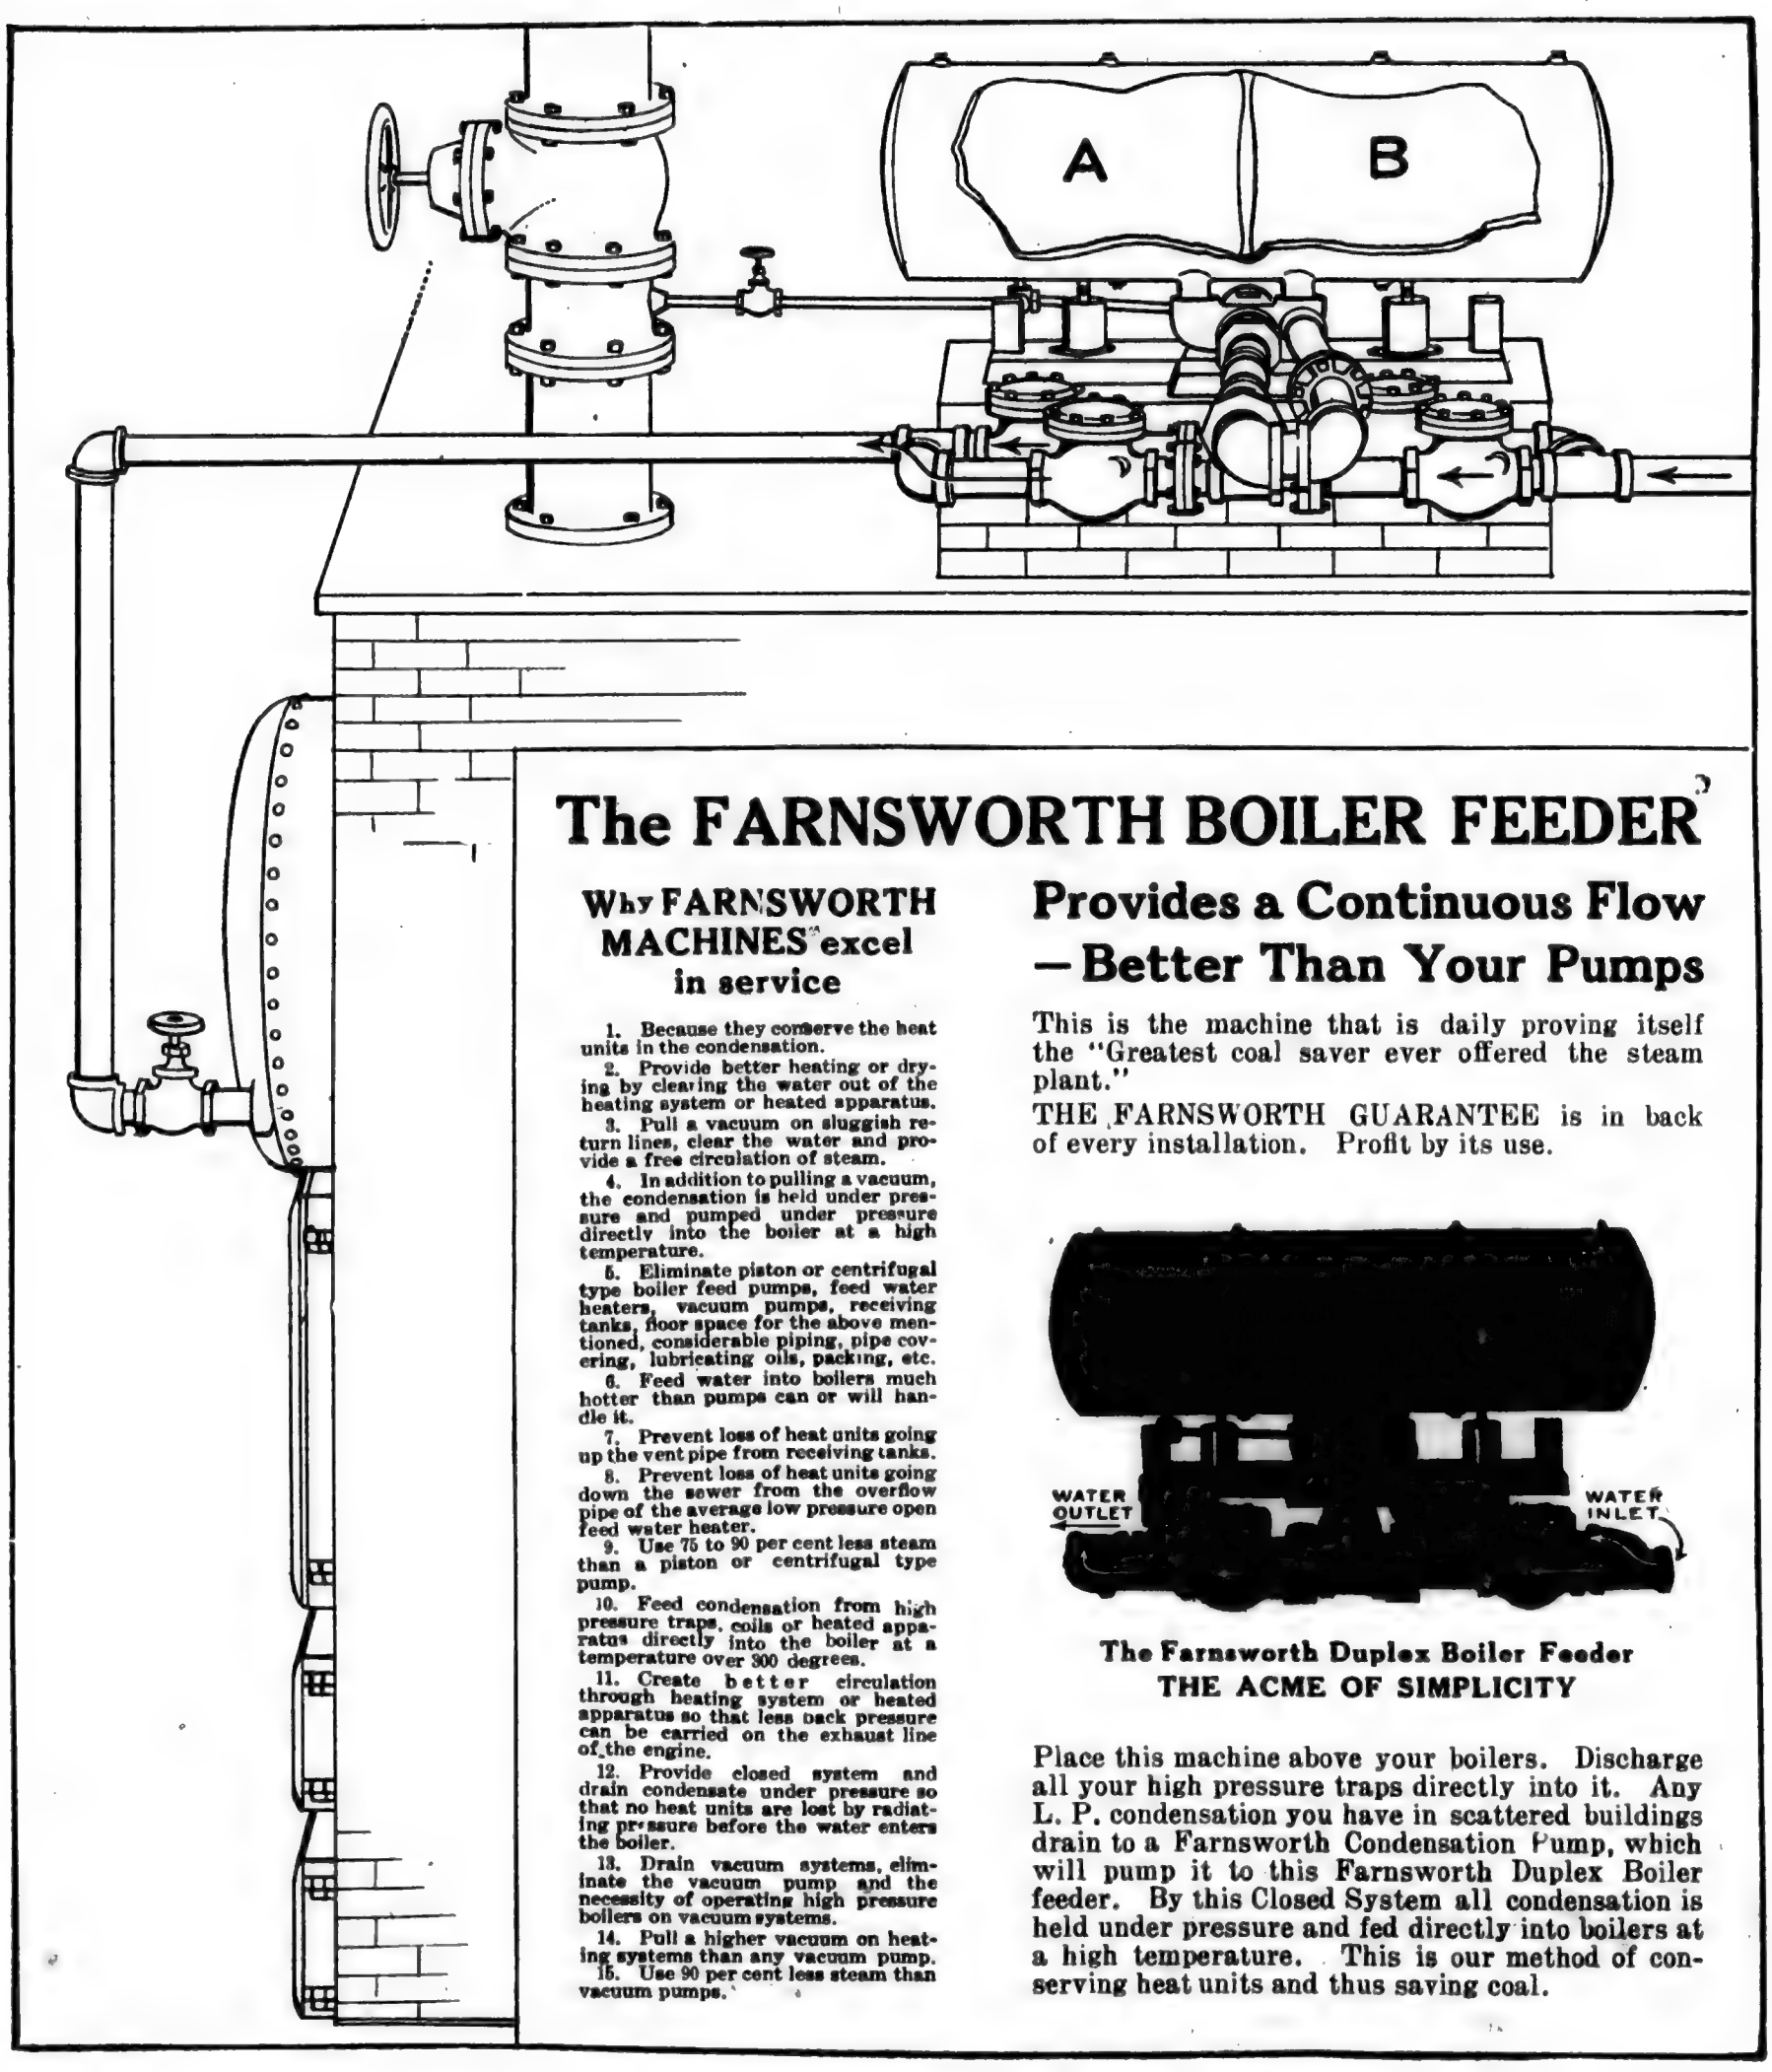
I have used two different makes of sectional boilers—no more cast iron boilers for us.

[Signed] Mr. ——, Mich.

Kroeschell Replaces Cast Iron !

The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."



[Signed] Mr. ——, N. Y.

Send the Hot Condensate Back

The FARNSWORTH BOILER FEEDER

Why FARNSWORTH MACHINES excel in service

1. Because they conserve the heat units in the condensation.
2. Provide better heating or drying by clearing the water out of the heating system or heated apparatus.
3. Pull a vacuum on sluggish return lines, clear the water and provide a free circulation of steam.
4. In addition to pulling a vacuum, the condensation is held under pressure and pumped under pressure directly into the boiler at a high temperature.
5. Eliminate piston or centrifugal type boiler feed pumps, feed water heaters, vacuum pumps, receiving tanks, floor space for the above mentioned, considerable piping, pipe covering, lubricating oils, packing, etc.
6. Feed water into boilers much hotter than pumps can or will handle it.
7. Prevent loss of heat units going up the vent pipe from receiving tanks.
8. Prevent loss of heat units going down the sewer from the overflow pipe of the average low pressure open feed water heater.
9. Use 75 to 90 per cent less steam than a piston or centrifugal type pump.
10. Feed condensation from high pressure traps, coils or heated apparatus directly into the boiler at a temperature over 300 degrees.
11. Create better circulation through heating system or heated apparatus so that less back pressure can be carried on the exhaust line of the engine.
12. Provide closed system and drain condensate under pressure so that no heat units are lost by radiating pressure before the water enters the boiler.
13. Drain vacuum systems, eliminate the vacuum pump and the necessity of operating high pressure boilers on vacuum systems.
14. Pull a higher vacuum on heating systems than any vacuum pump.
15. Use 90 per cent less steam than vacuum pumps.

Provides a Continuous Flow —Better Than Your Pumps

This is the machine that is daily proving itself the "Greatest coal saver ever offered the steam plant."

THE FARNSWORTH GUARANTEE is in back of every installation. Profit by its use.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder
THE ACME OF SIMPLICITY

Place this machine above your boilers. Discharge all your high pressure traps directly into it. Any L. P. condensation you have in scattered buildings drain to a Farnsworth Condensation Pump, which will pump it to this Farnsworth Duplex Boiler feeder. By this Closed System all condensation is held under pressure and fed directly into boilers at a high temperature. This is our method of conserving heat units and thus saving coal.

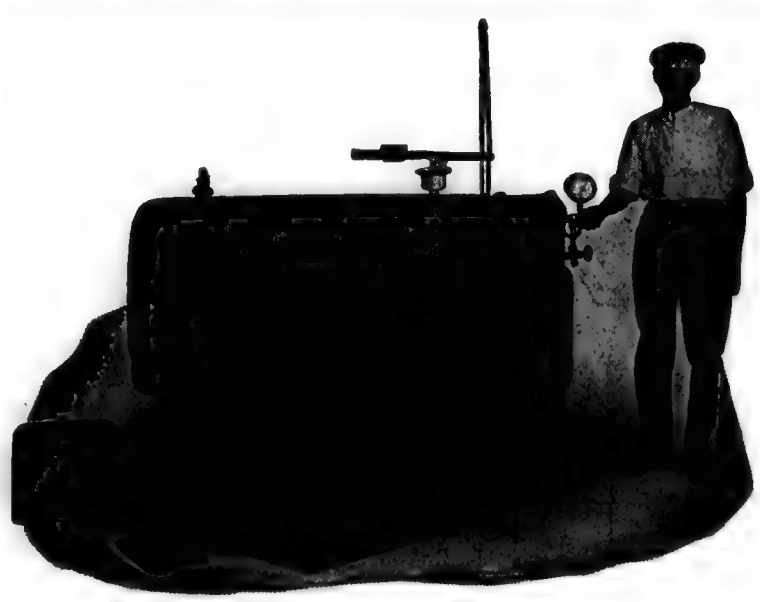
MORTAR FOR FURNACE.

How shall I mix mortar to be used for a greenhouse furnace and flue?
S. G. W.—Kan.

To make a good mortar for a furnace and flue, take one part of stone lime and Portland cement and four parts of sharp sand. Mix the sand and cement thoroughly and then add the lime after carefully slaking it. Use water enough to make a fairly thick mortar. Care should be taken only to mix a small amount at a time, as it will set quickly.



Most failures in making furnaces come from allowing the mortar to set too quickly. It is well to wet down the bricks before using them, and for ten days after the furnace and flue have been built they should be wet down whenever the mortar takes on a white color, indicating that it is setting too rapidly. The firepot of the furnace should be lined with fire brick, and it is generally advisable to use brick for the first ten feet of the flue and line with fire brick. For the mortar to be used in laying the fire brick, fire clay may be substituted for the cement.

USE HOT WATER HEAT.

I am building a small house 18x50, wall four and one-half feet high, rafters ten feet long, 18 inches of glass in the walls and glass in one-half of the gables. The house lies east and west and I have the boiler room at the east end. Which would you advise me to use, steam or hot water heat? What size of main should I use? How many and what size of returns should I use and where should they be placed? I have a 12-horsepower upright boiler. Is it large enough? How much lower should the boiler be placed to insure a good return flow?
E. E. H.—O.

For a house of the size described we would suggest the installation of a hot water heating plant. The boiler on hand will be amply large enough for heating such a house, provided the openings are of sufficient size and it can be placed so that the top of the boiler will be below the level of the returns. It will give good satisfaction if the returns are at least three feet above the level of the grate.

No mention is made of the temperature desired in the house, but if 60 de-

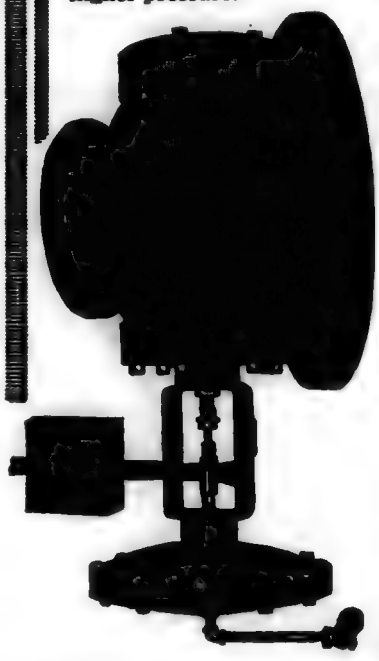
Fisher Steam Trap, Type 33



UNIFORM TEMPERATURE is one of the secrets of successful growing. Your steam plant will be more efficient if it is drained by Fisher Steam Trap, Type 33.

Condensation is bound to occur in your heating lines. If you get rid of it quickly, no harm is done. If it is permitted to remain, the steam soon grows sluggish, loses its heat energy.

Fisher Steam Trap relieves the mains of condensation instantly. It has remarkable capacity and is so simple, it is practically trouble-proof. Its positive rapid action cannot be affected by hard usage or long service.

Let us send you our new trap book telling all about it.

grees in weather 10 degrees below zero will answer, we would recommend the use of two 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns. One of the flows may be placed upon each of the side wall plates and five of the returns under each of the side benches. Provided bottom heat is desired under the middle bench, we would put in an additional flow pipe under the ridge and use three returns under each of the three benches.

If a temperature of 50 degrees will suffice, three 2-inch flows and nine 1½-inch returns may be used.

With steam heat one 2-inch flow pipe two feet under the ridge and eight 1¼-inch returns will give 60 degrees and one flow and six returns will answer for 50 degrees. We would advise running the flow pipe as well as the returns with a slight fall. In a hot water plant the expansion tank, which should hold about ten gallons, could be connected to the highest part of the system by means of a ¾-inch pipe and there will then be no occasion for using air valves. It will be well to have a shut-off valve on each of the pipes connecting the mains with the coils. The main returns from the hot water coils should be of the same size as the flows.

On steam coils there should be valves at each end, and it is often worth while to have valves on one or more of the pipes in each of the coils.

The Market.

The spurts and slacks of summer conditions continue. There is either a good demand or no demand, but, taken as a whole, the market condition is not so dull as to cause worry. The report from almost all quarters is that sales have kept up satisfactorily during August, which is far better than last year. What September will be is difficult to judge. It was during this month last year that sickness prevailed in all quarters and a wildfire demand for stock was evident. This demand is not hoped for in the coming months and so the sales for the next three months are expected to be far below last year's. The government fight on the high cost of living will no doubt do much to increase counter sales. The public mind is being set at ease somewhat and in this state it will be more apt to turn to a freer use of flowers.

Stock of the principal kinds continues to be more than plentiful, but the prices hold firm at the last three weeks' low level. These prices are better than a year ago and there is no doubt that there is less stock being dumped out. The steadiness of retail prices has much to do in keeping up the wholesale. The retailer will not make a sale on as low a margin as he did a year ago, because everything he uses, paper, boxes, ferns, etc., are items not to be lost track of. By holding stock at fair prices he finds it advantageous to buy just what he needs and pay a fair price for it.

The Market.

The florists were completely cleaned out of white roses August 30, as several small weddings and funeral work called for an unusual supply and for Yorkshire night at the British Club upwards of 3,000 were used for decorative purposes. The club is arranging to have a Lancashire night, when red roses will be the demand.

Business generally last week was above the average for this season, a larger number of small weddings and numerous funerals keeping the market well cleaned up each day. Heavy and continuous rains of the last fortnight have practically ruined the outdoor crops of asters, so that there is a shortage. Gladioli, dahlias and sweet peas are selling well.

Various Notes.

J. Ennis, of the Hampden Meadows Greenhouses, has purchased the Harry Clark greenhouse, on Laurel avenue.

Henry Patry has taken a position with Joseph Black, 25 Washington street.

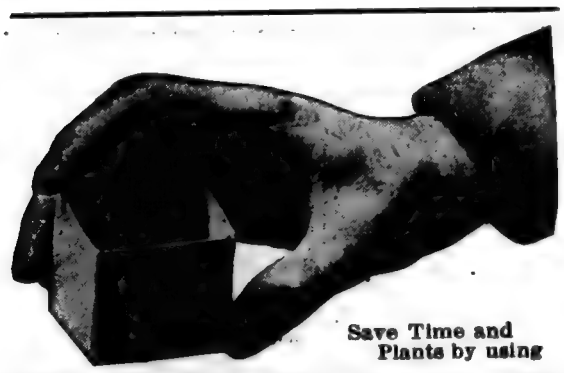
M. J. Leach, Pawtucket, has taken down two small houses and replaced them by one 100 feet long.

Samuel S. Pennock, of Philadelphia, is taking his summer sojourn with his family at Westerly.

V. J. Barardueci, of 148 Atwells avenue, is treasurer of the fund being raised for the benefit of the state sanitarium, at Wallum lake, where the Italians of this section are installing a handsome marble fountain, a sundial and several large flower urns.

Wallace Steere, manager of the What Cheer Wire Works, has gone to Onset, on Cape Cod, for a month's vacation.

Ed G. Brooke, of T. J. Johnston & Co., had a large casket blanket of roses last week for the funeral of John F. Dunn, the textile manufacturer.



Joseph Koppelman was in New York and vicinity last week.

Charles Smith, of the Eastern Wreath Co., left last week for an extended western trip of several weeks.

George L. Stillman, of Westerly, was recently knocked down by a bicyclist and severely bruised. Fortunately, no bones were broken.

The death of Patrick Shields, who shot and killed his wife and then himself August 29, is reported in this week's obituary column. W. H. M.

Moline, Ill.—Arvid Anderson has had unusual success with asters this year. He displayed some blooms at the recent meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Association at Muscatine.

A Glazing Putty of Real Value

In all our experience and investigation we had never found a preparation for bulbing over the outside of a greenhouse that was quite satisfactory, until we ran across PERMANITE. This was about four years ago. At that time we set about investigating the merits of PERMANITE and proceeded to watch the results of its application to greenhouse roofs.

Last year we were entirely convinced of its high quality and durability, and accepted the western agency for the sale of these goods.

We applied PERMANITE to hundreds of greenhouse roofs, over almost every part of the United States.

The results obtained were highly satisfactory indeed. Glass roofs of all kinds, both old and new, were made water-tight and air-tight, saving thousands of plants from being spoiled by water dripping on them and saving many hundreds of tons of coal by making the roofs proof against the wind and storms of winter.

We give PERMANITE our unqualified endorsement and recommend it highly for all kinds of glazing.

We have a very large stock on hand in our warehouse and can ship immediately.

To be Rid of Leaf Rollers and Tyers use Insectonos

Insectonos (pronounced In-sec-tō′-nos) is a contact insecticide for the destruction of White Fly, Rose Leaf Roller and Chrysanthemum Leaf Tyer. Numerous growers have been using it for several months—and are so well pleased their recommendation by word of mouth already has caused many other growers to try Insectonos. Ask about it.

Mr. Pearce wrote:

Chicago, Ill., August 1, 1919.

You would certainly be surprised to see my place, as you know that when you were here in June and we syringed the Mums, the air was brown with millers; now the millers are mighty few and far between and consequently the same with Leaf Tyers. Insectonos did all that you claimed for it.

SAM J. PEARCE.

Gullett & Sons wrote:

Lincoln, Ill., August 8, 1919.

We have been using Insectonos as a remedy for the very destructive Leaf Rollers on Roses and Chrysanthemums, and have found it to be a good remedy. It is easy to apply and has brought us excellent results.

The Market.

Business has been the best this summer that it has been in many years, the social whirl having been more general and continuous, with a great number of large functions. In consequence of the increased demand, and the fact that the prevalence of so much rainy weather has spoiled outdoor blooms, there has been a shortage. Gladioli and dahlias have had an exceptionally good season. Of the latter the cactus varieties are popular for table decorations, with the peony varieties leading for vase purposes.

Horticultural Society.

Final plans for the fall exhibition of the Newport Horticultural Society, which is to be held at Newport Beach this week, were made at the meeting of the society August 29. Arrangements for the annual ball of the society, which occurs on the closing night of the exhibition, were also made.

C. N. Bugholt, gardener for Miss Fannie Foster, exhibited a new pink gladiolus, which was awarded the society's certificate of merit. The new flower has been named Mrs. F. P. Webber, in honor of the wife of the secretary of the society.

William F. Smith, gardener for Mrs. George S. Scott, exhibited a freak ear of corn, consisting of a regular ear with nine small ears growing around the base of it.

Various Notes.

One of the big functions last week was the opening of the Casino ballroom for the first dance since 1908. The stage front was decorated with a charming arrangement of ferns hanging over the footlights and white hydrangeas and other plants and blooms. The stage was set as a forest scene. A. T. Bunyard did the work.

Frederick C. Bergmann, head clerk at A. T. Bunyard's, who was operated on for appendicitis last week, is making good progress.

Wadley & Smythe had the decorations for two large society weddings last week.

A. T. Bunyard left August 30 for Princeton, N. J., where he has charge of the decorations for a big society wedding. W. H. M.

Better Care at Less Cost

With the Ideal Tractor Lawn Mower you can give your lawn better care at less cost than is possible with hand mowers.

One man with an Ideal can cut as much grass per day as five hard-working men with hand mowers. The Ideal will do the work better at an actual dollars and cents saving.

The Ideal is a simple, trouble-proof machine—easy to operate and easy to care for. Cuts just as close to flower beds, trees and other obstacles as a hand mower. Moreover, the Ideal is a mower and roller in one and keeps the sod firm and smooth.

Sold on a guarantee of positive satisfaction. Write for catalogue and ask for details for our five day trial offer.

The Market.

The last week has seen a great influx of asters, which are now plentiful and of good quality. Dahlias are beginning to come into the market in larger quantities, though still somewhat scarce. They are of fair quality, but most of them are short-stemmed. Gladioli are plentiful. While the volume of business is not large now because of its being the regular dull summer period, it is fully up to normal for this period and the florists are generally optimistic as to the coming season.

Various Notes.

The Washington Florists, 577 Broad street, report business as good as could be expected at this time of the year.

Penek's Flower Shop, Broad street, reports that funeral work forms the bulk of trade now and that this fluctuates. Part of the time there is much work to do, while at other times there is little. Business averages about normal. R. B. M.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

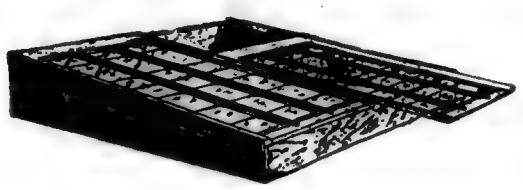
The Market.

Market conditions have been improving. Roses are again plentiful. These range from $3 to $10 per hundred. Carnations are a little more conspicuous, but are still short-stemmed and bring only $1 and $2 per hundred. Gladioli are keeping pace with the demand and are fairly good in quality and make from $4 to $8 per hundred. Asters are not so abundant as previously. Good ones are even scarcer than before, while the poor ones have deteriorated so that now they are unfit for use. A few more dahlias have put in an appearance, but the supply is still small.

Cosmos is in the market. Other miscellaneous stock includes buddleia, centaurea, tuberoses, wool flowers and a few snapdragons and delphiniums. Green goods have been in fair supply.

Various Notes.

Ed Reinkins, formerly at Fifty-eighth street and College avenue, is visiting in the city.



Bert Stanley is cutting some excellent asters.

I. M. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, is in the city.

Bertermann Bros. Co. is cutting good Early Frost chrysanthemums.

The Indiana state fair is now in progress. The flower show is being held in the large new Fine Arts building. The florists who are exhibiting this year are the Roepke Floral Co., Baur & Steinkamp, Walter Lewis and E. E. Temperley.

Hartje & Elder have begun to cut carnations. E. E. T.

CARNATIONS

"LADDIE." You will remember what a scramble there was for rooted cuttings of the variety last season, and how often letters were returned marked "sold out." I have made arrangements with one of the leading Carnation specialists in this country, who has a large stock of this variety, and I have had reserved for me a quantity for January, February and March delivery, 1920, and if you are in the market for this variety, would advise you to place order at once, as I could get reservation of only about one-third of quantity I wanted, and these will be sold up in a very short while. Price, $8.50 per 100, $75.00 per 1000. Add 5% for packing charge. Terms, one-third cash deposit with order, balance just before shipment is made. No field plants this season. Will also be in position to supply other varieties.

ROSE PLANTS: Extra fine 3-in. Mock, 3-in. Ophelia, 2½-in. Columbia and 3-in. Kaiserin, $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000.
ROSEMONT GARDENS,
116 Dexter Ave., Montgomery, Ala.

ROSES: I have the good fortune to have access to one of the largest stocks of Roses in the world and can assure you that you will be well taken care of, but would advise you to order early and if you do not care to have stock sent this fall, place your order now and mention time you would like to have delivery made. Roses again will be scarce; while growers will have hundreds of thousands more than season just past, yet the increasing demand, with popularity, quickly make inroads to the stock, and before expected will have to report "Sold Up." RESERVE YOUR STOCK NOW. All of the following varieties from 2¼-in. pots, 60c per doz., $4.50 per 100; 4-inch pots, $2.00 per doz., $15.00 per 100. Add 5 per cent for packing charge.

—batter up!

All of you had a good time at the S. A. F. convention in Detroit, but you're all back home now, with your sleeves rolled up. Time's up and—

You've got to play the game.

You don't want to play a scrub game—you won't be satisfied with being a bush leaguer. A minor league game can't hold your effort and attention.

You've spent enough time studying the game and playing in it to qualify for the major league.

But—

You'll have to play a fast game and a clean one, and you can't do it with a poor equipment and a sluggish system, because you'll have to compete with growers playing the AGMCO WAY!

Send for one of these and learn the NEW RULES and the BEST system of training.

If you use them, you'll see your batting average climb.

Are you ready?

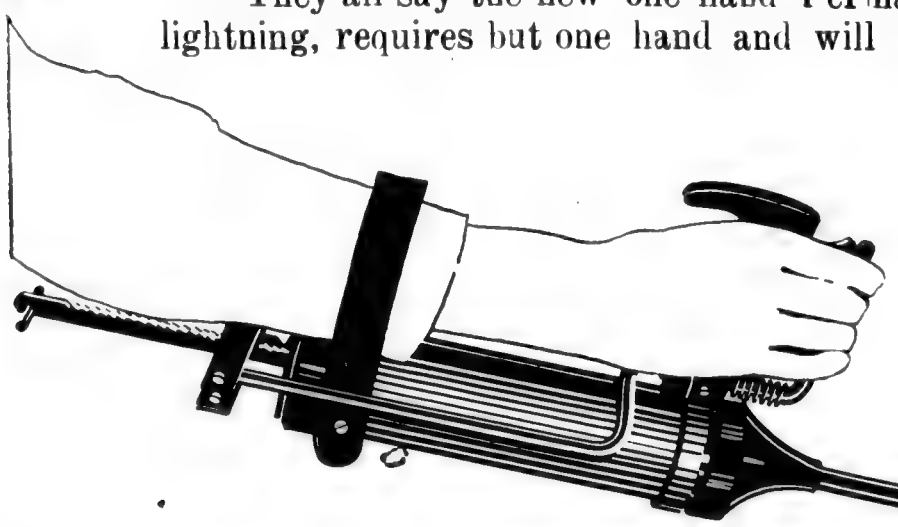
Permanite



[Trade-mark registered, U. S. Patent Office.]

Outlasts Putty Three to Four Times.

When you buy a tire—you want to know how long it will last; when you hire help you pay so much for so many hours—and when you buy glazing cement you naturally want to know first of all for how long the material will be on the job.

When you buy Permanite the answer will be at least three to four times the service putty would give under like circumstances—and at less expense to you because Permanite goes farther, lasts longer and is far more easily applied.

They all say the new one-hand Permanite machine is a wonder; it works like lightning, requires but one hand and will last a lifetime; glazing positively done in less than half the usual time.

Permanite not alone gives better service and lasts longer, but saves you time and money as well.

Yours for a tight house,

The Garland Company

Valuable Aid in Transplanting

Following is an extract from a letter from Hull Brothers, of Waymart, Pa.:

"Perhaps we feel the value of the System of Irrigation most while setting the plants, as we can get the soil in the very best shape for quick, thorough setting, then water them gently afterwards, and they start off nicely."

Greenhouse Builders

Who Is Right When It Comes to Rose Houses?

AT one of our recent salesmen's meetings, which we hold every thirty days, in conjunction with our factory experts, the question came up of designing a standard rose house.

First, the evidence seemed in favor of the Even Span; and then it veered over to the Shadeless Ridge type, of which we have built so many both in the West and East.

After a long discussion, it was decided to do exactly what we always do, when it comes to designing a standard house.

Put it up to a jury of the leading growers.

We are in the business to sell the best thing for the grower.

The only way to know what is best is to get the advice and counsel of the best growers.

In the case of making a standard rose house, we may find that the opinion is so evenly divided between the Even Span and Shadeless Ridge, that we will conclude to do just what we are doing now—make them both standard.

When we do make the decision, it won't be ours—it will be you growers' decision.

When we announce it, we will publish the opinions and recommendations of the growers who decided the question for us.

Our idea in standardizing all our houses, is to be able to build a better house for less money, and be able to always have our stock on hand, cut and fitted, so you can almost order a house one week, and it will be shipped complete the next.

It's simply getting greenhouse manufacturing down to the common sense basis of all successful manufacturing.

It's a move to save you money.

If it saves you money—it will make money for us.

Our interests are mutual.

Remember we build Semi-Iron and Pipe Frame Houses as well as the Full Iron Frame.

Certificate of Merit

(Highest Award)

Awarded for Florists' Supplies

At the Detroit Convention of the Society of American Florists

If you were one of the many hundreds of Florists who visited the now famous Randall Room at the Detroit Convention you came away with some conception of the wonderful variety and great size of Randall's stock of Florists' Supplies. Our representatives booked an immense amount of business there because our display was a revelation to great numbers of Florists, as it was to the official judges who awarded it the S. A. F. Certificate of Merit, an exceptional honor.

Buyers on whom Randall Salesmen call know they get everything for which they ask, but no Florist in his own store has the time or patience to let the salesman even call the list of Randall's stock. The best way to know the resources of this establishment is to visit the Chicago market. There are many other things which may be done with pleasure and profit in the Chicago market, but it will pay every Florist to spend a day every now and then at Randall's. It takes more than a day to see Randall's samples and go through Randall's factory, for here is

The World's Largest Stock of Florists' Supplies

Randall's is first hands. Randall's actually manufactures in its own factories a large variety of merchandise, is distributor for other factories and is direct importer from Europe on such lines as cannot be better made at home. (Our buyer sailed for France, Italy and England April 5, the first to go over after the war, and our importations have been arriving six months.) Randall's stock is so large, so varied, that its inspection never fails to afford new ideas of business possibilities for the retail Florist or Jobber, and the prices are so close they are seldom equaled and never beaten by anyone selling at a profit.

The Randall Supply business has become the largest in America, but it would be still larger if more buyers came personally to market and saw the opportunities here afforded them.

It is high time orders were being placed for Autumn and Winter. The Florist who gets his goods now will pay no more, if as much, and next winter he will be pushing his selling when the other fellow is spending his time hunting for merchandise or waiting for it to come.

The Randall salesman in your territory will serve you well, but there is inspiration in a visit to Chicago, the Great Central Market.

White Trucks

TRAVELS 100,000 MILES IN SERVICE OF FLORIST

A TYPICAL example of the durability and long life of the White Truck is furnished by M. Weiland, florist, of Evanston, Ill.

"The White Truck which I purchased in 1912 has run 105,000 miles," says Mr. Weiland. "It is still on the road every day and looks as though it had been in service only a year or two. I consider it very economical.

"It has increased my business by enabling me to give prompt service to my customers and aiding me in building up a reputation of always being on time, which counts for a great deal in the florist's business. I always depend on my White to make deliveries on time and it has never failed me."

GROWTH

The Boston Floral Supply Co. is glad to greet you once more. We are glad to be able to sincerely thank our hundreds and hundreds of customers for their co-operation during the past season. It is only through the co-operation of our patrons that the Boston Floral Supply Co. has been able to increase its business more than 300 per cent. Our increased business has made it necessary to increase our facilities in manufacturing. Our new methods have taken the place of some of our older ones in the production of crepe flowers, wax flowers, baskets, and in the preserving of cycas.

Why is it that so many florists are talking about the Boston Floral Supply Co.? Because in a little over four years we have grown to be the largest producers of wax flowers for florists' use in the world. Why is it that the demand for wax flowers, wax wreaths, sprays, etc., is greater today than ever? Because the Boston Floral Supply Co. has created this demand by manufacturing an article which is both practical and within the reach of the mass of people.

Hundreds and hundreds of florists throughout the country have taken advantage of the popular demand for our artificial flowers, wreaths, sprays, etc. It would surprise you if you knew how many florists have established themselves permanently in the artificial flower business together with their regular florist trade, and it is nothing but natural that this should be the outcome, as a combination of our artificial flowers and natural flowers really produces a pleasant and lasting effect.

Why can the Boston Floral Supply Co. save you from 25 to 33%? The Boston Floral Supply Co. has answered this question:

1st. We manufacture our own wax flowers, wax designs, baskets, boxes, wire frames and preserve our own cycas right in our own factory. We are large manufacturers and buy our raw stock in large quantities.

2nd. Our main object is to manufacture on a large scale. This helps us to reduce the cost of production. We depend upon a large volume of business, adding only a small profit to the manufactured article. You buy direct; this eliminates the middleman's profit.

DISPLAY

We believe there is nothing that goes so far to encourage buying and to stimulate trade as a display of merchandise. No matter whether you have a large business or a small business, you should always have a display in your window, on your walls or on your shelves. If we had no display we could not sell much of our goods.

We believe there is nothing more beautiful than a display of a few of our magnolia wreaths, wax designs, sprays, etc., in your window. Don't you think you should look into the matter of giving us a trial order amounting to $25 more or less, and secure some of our wax flowers, foliage, ruscus, wire frames, moss, cycas, etc., and make up a display yourself in your own store? If you feel that you are not expert enough to make up a beautiful spray or wax design, such as a cross, anchor, star or wreath, we will gladly send you the designs already made up. Think it over, and see for yourself if this small investment is not a most appropriate one for you. We have suggested this to many florists and they have thanked us for doing so.

We also think you should have an assortment of our baskets amounting to about $25.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

SUNDAY CLOSING SPREADS FAST

The movement in favor of Sunday closing, which has been slowly gathering momentum for several years, gained sudden impetus at the Detroit convention. Retailers in big cities and small towns, in every part of the country, are announcing their adoption of Sunday closing.

ANYONE who was at the opening session of the S. A. F. convention at Detroit and heard the burst of applause that greeted President Ammann's remarks on Sunday closing realized then and there that the alarm clock had rung for that movement in the florists' trade. In political conventions there are persons planted here and there in the audience to revive an outburst of applause as it weakens, in the effort to establish for a candidate the record of the longest period of acclamation. But there were no such individuals to prolong the applause at Detroit. It was the genuine enthusiasm of persons who had long been hoping for what President Ammann advocated in such definite and sturdy terms. When he had voiced his appeal in the words, "And let us in reverence to God and for the love of man close our shops Sunday," there was immediately an echo of clapping hands. And instead of gradually dying away, the applause grew in strength. One man would turn to his neighbor and say, "He's right on that!" and then clap a little harder. His neighbor would come back with, "You know he's right!" and then he would applaud with renewed vigor. And in reply perhaps the first florist would exclaim, "You d o g g o n e know he's right!" and thereupon blister his palms to express his approval. There was no question, no reservation — everybody was for Sunday closing. The alarm clock had rung.

Rapid Results.

Maybe President Ammann is surprised to see how rapid were the results of his voicing of the trade's growing sentiment. During the last three weeks, as some one recently remarked, there has been greater progress in the Sunday closing movement than in the previous three years. And in those three years there had been more done towards that end than in thirty years before.

So busy have been the florists during the last year that they themselves scarcely knew how widely the practice of closing on Sunday had quietly spread. Now and then they had read in the news columns of The Review of a florist or group of florists in one locality who had announced a determination to close Sundays. But when they went to Detroit and found out what had actually been done, there was no doubt in their minds that the time for Sunday closing was ripe.

Lesson at Toronto.

A week before, a party of five, including President Ammann, Secretary Young, Albert Pochelon, Philip Breitmeyer and Chas. H. Plumb, had made a trip from Detroit to Toronto, to visit the convention of the Canadian Horticultural Society. There they learned that the Toronto florists all closed on Sunday. This fact they commented on at the S. A. F. convention, and the knowledge that the florists of one city of approximately half a million inhabitants could achieve this result worked like leaven in the minds of those who heard it. So they went home with their eyes open, watching for a favorable opportunity to follow the good example.

Once upon a time florists believed that if their shops were not open Sunday they would lose the customers who made their purchases that day. They felt dependent upon transient trade, in the same fashion that cigar stores and candy shops depended upon it. If some one had an impulse to buy flowers on the day of leisure, the florist wanted to be sure to be open for the sale. But times have changed. Florists are not dependent on the chance buyer—only the curbstone hawker gains his livelihood from such purchasers. The buying of flowers has become so firmly established that they are now a necessity for certain occasions. And for personal pleasure they form fully as strong a want as do candy and tobacco. Today the florist has his regular customers, who are as steady in their orders of him as they are in those of the butcher or the grocer. The only remaining problem of the retailer is to shift the Sunday purchases of these customers onto the day before.

Shifting to Saturday.

Transferring the purchases of Sunday to an earlier date is not so difficult as some have believed. The varying firmness of the habit has caused different florists to take different courses when they began to close Sundays. Some have requested customers to give their orders in time for delivery to be made Saturday. Others who have thought this was too big a step to take at once were content to ask for the orders to be placed Saturday and continued deliveries Sunday morning. Thus the shop was closed all day Sunday, though orders were sent out in the morning. Of course emergency orders for funerals and weddings are taken care of as formerly.

Closing on Sunday has been easier for the flower shops located in the business districts of large cities than for those in the suburbs. The latter, however, are joining in the movement and from time to time one more climbs into the bandwagon. The florist whose greenhouses adjoin his store finds it difficult to avoid taking orders on Sunday when he is about the necessary work in the houses on that day. But if the front door of his shop is locked and he takes steps to educate his trade to conform with a closed Sunday, he will in a short time have his day free, so far as sales are concerned.

Two Advertisements.

How two florists in different localities and conditions advertised their adoption of Sunday closing is shown by the illustrations on this page and the page preceding. Max Schling caters to Fifth avenue trade in New York city. Stanley G. Barnes recently opened his shop in Binghamton, N. Y. The advertisement of Mr. Schling appeared in the New York Sun September 5 and the New York Times Saturday, September 6. The announcement of Mr. Barnes was published in the Binghamton Press September 5. These are but two of a number of florists who heard the echoes of the applause at President Ammann's appeal for Sunday closing three weeks ago at Detroit.

LARKSPUR FOR CHRISTMAS.

If annual delphinium, or larkspur, were sown early enough, would it bloom for Christmas? If so, at what time should the seed be sown? We have been using it for two months out of our greenhouse. We planted it in the carnation skips or blanks. It certainly has been useful. If it could be planted and grown for early flowering it would be a useful flower in the greenhouse.

D. H.—S. C.

I have been growing annual larkspur for about twenty years and have found it extremely useful for cutting. On one occasion I tried it for the holidays, but the results were not encouraging. Possibly if it were in the warmer climate of South Carolina it might do better than in the north. On the occasion referred to, seed was sown late in August and the plants bloomed fairly well at Christmas. I have excellent success with larkspur if it is started early in October, potting the seedlings singly and planting them in raised benches, for blooming in February and March. I also sowed a month later for a succession crop. For Memorial day it is splendid and should be started about February 20. A night temperature of 48 to 50 degrees suits this plant and careful watering in cold, dark weather is necessary to prevent damping off and mildew.

Few florists appreciate the value of this larkspur as a forcing plant. As I grow it, it attains a height of three to five feet and blooms with wonderful profusion. The two most popular colors are rosy scarlet and lavender. Other colors are soft pink and pure white.

THRIFT IN MAILING.

The Post Office Department is undertaking a compaign on thrift in mailing, and sending out folders containing hints on preparing parcels for the mails. In a leaflet from the Chicago post office appear the following pointers:

"When a post office receives a million or more parcels a day it makes a tremendous difference in its efficiency if any considerable number is badly packed or addressed.

"Your post office parcels must be prepared with particular attention to: (a) the contents; (b) the packing, wrapping, tying; (c) the addressing.

"Give these things some thought before beginning your parcel; it will pay.

"Things that can be crushed should be packed according to their nature. Wrap in strong paper and enclose in outer cover of double corrugated paper board or wooden box. Tie parcels lengthwise and crosswise with heavy twine.

"Addressing should be full and legible for best results. Write name and address of addressee in lower right-hand corner of parcel cover and the sender's in the upper left-hand. As a precaution put sender's card inside the parcel. Don't use a tag for addressing, but if you must, use a linen one and sew it flat to the parcel if cover is of canvas or cloth but tack it on if the cover is of wood. Affix postage stamps to upper right-hand corner of parcel cover. Mark 'fragile' or 'perishable' conspicuously near the address."

G. A. Cornish & Sons, at Elgin, Ill., are making extensive improvements and are constructing a reinforced concrete greenhouse, 20x125, with a basement the full length of the house. The basement will be waterproof and is to be used for storing gladioli, for which the firm is well known. G. A. Cornish, Jr., is in charge of the establishment. A well equipped office, a shipping room and a larger boiler will complete the improvements. A better water supply will be furnished by the installation of a gasoline engine, which will pump the water from a stream on the premises to a large tank. It has been found that soft water suits the growth of gladioli better than the hard water from the city mains.

HOW SIM SUCCEEDS

MY METHOD WITH SWEET PEAS.

Preparation of Soil.

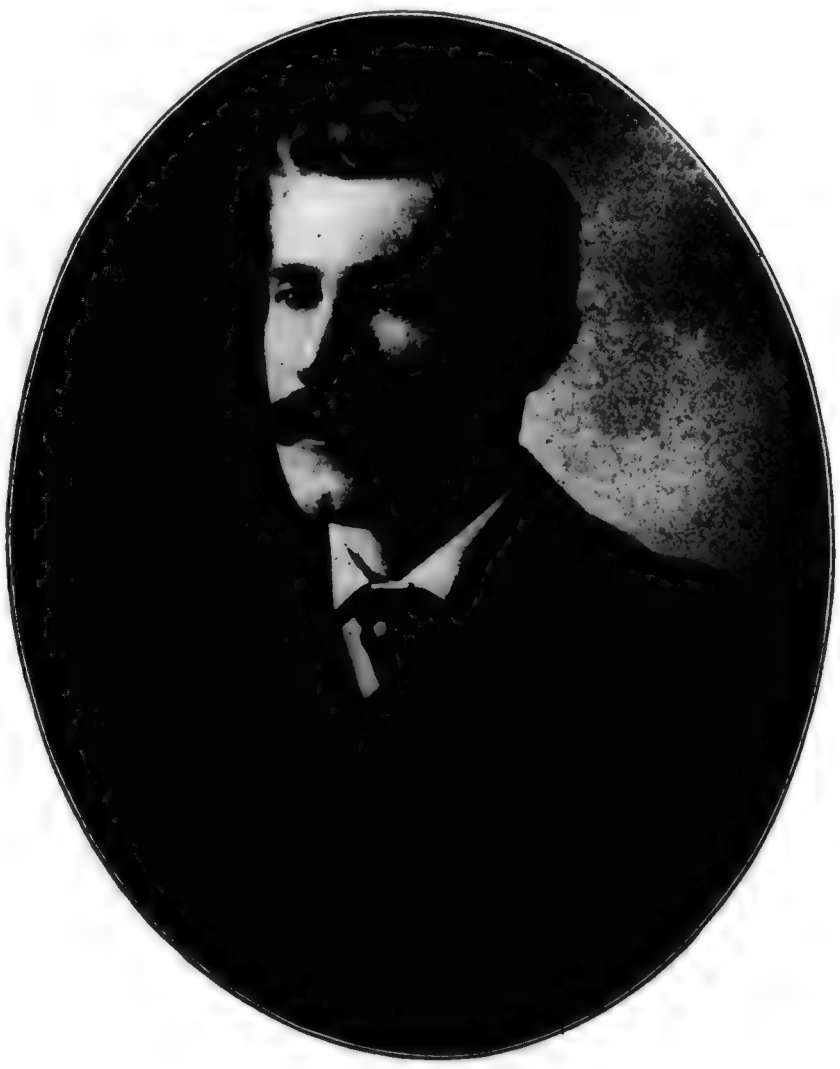
The site selected for building a greenhouse should be high and dry, with protection, if possible, from the northwest. The land should have a gravel subsoil and if this is overlaid with eight inches to one foot of good loam, you have an ideal site for sweet pea growing under glass.

Any good loam with the application of half-rotted cow manure, with occasionally an application of lime, is well suited for sweet peas. It is entirely unnecessary to use decayed pasture land or to make a special compost and renew this every year, as I have some houses which have been producing fine crops each successive season for fifteen years without any renewal of the soil. I believed that the results obtained did not warrant the expense of changing. We make a practice of spreading a coat of half-rotted cow manure over the whole surface of the soil. On top of this manure we apply a liberal dose of air-slaked lime, which kills all worms and also makes the process of mixing with the soil more congenial to those who do the work, by preventing the manure from sticking to the shoes. We mix this with the soil in the house and go down to the gravel.

Building the Greenhouse.

The house should be of even span, running northeast and southwest. The sides should be at least eight feet high. The pitch of the house should be steep, so that from the floor of the greenhouse to the ridge would be about twenty-three feet. The front of the greenhouse should have seven feet of glass and one foot of concrete. The back should have five feet of glass and three feet of concrete. The ventilators of the roof should be continuous on both sides, and the side ventilators should also be continuous on both sides and should be hinged to the eaves plate and be one foot deep and open from the lower side out. By having the side ventilators in that position the draft produced when they are opened does not strike the plants as it does if they are placed lower down the sides. A house forty-one feet wide is, in my judgment, about the right size. The rows should be planted three feet away from the sides and five feet apart. All heating pipes for a house this size can be placed along the sides without taking away light to any extent, giving an equal temperature throughout the house. In a wider house it would be necessary to distribute the pipes throughout.

Planting the Seeds.



The Spencer type of sweet pea can be had in bloom at any season. This is brought about by timing successive sowings of seeds and by regulating the temperature of the greenhouse afterwards. Seeds may be planted, if the house is ready, directly where they are to grow. This is the best practice. If the house is not ready they may be sown in beds and transplanted or sown in pots and transplanted. In sowing the seeds we use a marker two and one-half inches deep and two and one-half inches apart; this is made about twelve feet long, so that a row can be marked off in a few minutes. One seed is dropped into every hole and the soil pressed together over the seed. It is essential, if good sweet peas are desired, that the plants should be grown the greatest length of time at as low a temperature as possible until near the period when you wish the plants to bloom, when it will be necessary to increase the temperature in order to produce color and have the plants hold their buds. What seems to trouble most growers is mildew, aphis, red spider, bud drop and method of staking.

Mildew is brought on through improper ventilation and manipulation of the steam pipes. From observations, mildew always starts in the house where the air is dead in the two corners where the steam supply enters. The headers of the steam coils being located there, an undue amount of heat is given off at all times, unless these are thoroughly insulated. Once the mildew starts in corners, and the house gets into a wet, clammy condition, the fungus spreads over a whole house in less time than it takes to write these lines. I have never used anything for a remedy, believing that prevention was a better course than trying to cure, and have not been troubled to any extent with it.

Checking Aphis.

Aphis will appear, and unless held in check will soon ruin a crop. We have used, for many years, fumigating tobacco dust. As soon as aphis shows itself we give the house what we call a double dose; that is, two applications the same night, giving the first at dusk and the other about 10 to 11 o'clock. This keeps the smoke in the house the whole night and will kill most of the aphids. On the following night we give a single dose, setting off at dusk. In a house forty-one feet wide we use three rows of 12-inch pie plates, placed eight feet apart for a double dose and sixteen feet apart for a single dose. We cover the bottom of a plate with one inch of tobacco dust, making the center slightly conical. In setting the dust off we use an ordinary oil can filled with wood alcohol. We light the end of the spout and squirt a few drops of the flaming liquid into the dust, which will commence to burn a little.

This makes the work of lighting off simple and speedy. The nights selected for fumigating should be as calm as possible, with the plants fairly dry and the temperature cool. Doses should be kept up frequently in quick succession, so that all those emerging from the eggs are killed before they can do much damage and breeding commences. Fumigating may be continued for a few nights in succession without injury, but if repeated too often the plants will have a sickly look which, in sweet pea language, means "Stop." With good air they will soon emerge from this condition and attain a fine, healthy appearance. If a house is absolutely clean at the time picking commences it will hardly be necessary to fumigate the rest of the crop. If this has to be resorted to, the crop should be picked clean and be given a day or two to air out before picking commences again, as blooms permeated with tobacco smoke are offensive.

Red Spider and Bud Drop.

Red spider infests plants that come in direct contact with the dry heat emanating from steam pipes. Where the plants are kept a distance of three feet from these, red spider will scarcely ever show themselves. Many growers have heating pipes suspended from columns supporting the rows. It would be an impossibility to keep such vines clean; a house just large enough to be heated from the sides reduces the chances of red spider to a minimum, as the front and back rows are three feet away from these vines and the heat from these rises upward and circulates the air in the house, just as hot water circulates in the heating system, so that the hot air is "consumed" by the air of the greenhouse before the plants are touched.

Bud drop can be brought about at will. It is caused by the atmosphere of the house being overcharged with cold moisture. Anyone who has had experience knows the minute he enters a sweet pea house if the conditions for bud drop exist. The trouble is more apt to come in spells of cloudy weather. In cloudy weather the vines, through the absence of light, and by our keeping up a flowering temperature, make a tender growth. The buds are also tender, and if they are to stick, the atmosphere must be sweet and buoyant. In such times the manipulation of the steam pipes and the ventilators is the only means of combating the trouble. Ventilation should be given with great care, so as to prevent too sudden changes; the ventilators should be opened gradually and the heating pipes gradually shut off. In cloudy spells they should be kept rather on the warm than on the cool side. I prefer a temperature of 67 degrees on bright days, and 58 degrees to 60 degrees on dull days, with a night temperature of 50 degrees to 52 degrees.

No Danger in Low Temperature.

I have not seen any bad results from the temperature dropping to 45 degrees or 46 degrees in zero weather. I think it is much better for the plants if it goes down to 46 degrees, for keeping the temperature up to 50 degrees in zero weather means too much artificial heat, and the vines become thin and exhaust themselves. I believe the condition produced by the shutting off of steam pipes without proper attention to the ventilation is bad for the healthy growth of the plants. But the principal cause of bud drop is in the afternoon, when the house is closed up to hold what is advisable of the sun's heat. This heat is allowed to chill as the temperature drops. Enough pipes should be turned in good season so the atmosphere will never get damp and sticky, but slowly fall to the desired temperature for the night. I have had no case of bud dropping for many years, but it keeps a man continually on the job attending to ventilation and steam pipes. Many miles are trodden each day in the month of March, especially when the sun is in and out. Along in April, when the days are long and the sun runs high, the peas can be grown much cooler without having bud drop. The absence of light in midwinter, while keeping up a flowering temperature, makes the hardest time for the grower.

Tying and Staking.

The best method of tying and staking is to run a wire lengthwise of the house directly over the row, ten feet, if possible, from the ground. This should be held in place by cross-wires at intervals of eight or ten feet. While the plants are small, short bamboo canes that are practically worn out, about two to three feet long, are inserted every three feet in the center of the row. Commence at one end with a ball of white cotton string and run out horizontally along the sides of the row, going around the stakes and making a tie at every five or six stakes to prevent slackening. When the plants have reached the top of the stakes insert a longer and stronger stake every eight feet and tie the top to the overhead wire. A cypress stake, one inch square, is good for this purpose, or two or three long bamboo canes tied together make a neat arrangement.

Pinching the shoots I believe is entirely unnecessary with the Spencer type of sweet peas. The only thing I see about it is that it makes the vines grow all to top, while the quality of the blooms is not increased, the amount of flowering shoots is greatly diminished, giving a correspondingly light crop, and what flowers are produced are so high up that it is harder to reach them; consequently the time consumed in picking is much more than if the blossoms were within easy reach. This type of pea, if given sufficient space all over, will bloom as freely one foot from the ground as ten feet.

In their early stages in the autumn the plants require considerable water, and in fine weather may be watered overhead, but as the days shorten the amount of water should also be lessened. I never use water overhead after the beginning of November. When in full crop they require much water, and if the drainage is good cannot be overwatered. Sheep manure is beneficial at times, and may be applied three or four times in the season, and watered in. This may be applied at any time of their growth, but it is presumed that the grower has, in preparing the soil, added enough to carry the crop into full bloom.

Best Commercial Varieties.

Since the dissemination of the Spencer type I have grown practically every variety that came along. I have done this because I have got a great deal of personal enjoyment in seeing the new ones come into flower, but as money-makers there are only a few; in fact, my salesman says to me, and has done so for years, "Grow only Christmas Pink." This is a color that takes with the great masses and, if good, can always be sold in any quantity. Venus would be my second choice, being the finest formed of any; the color is blush pink. It is an immense cropper, producing more flowers than any variety I have grown. Mrs. Skach would be my next selection, the color much like Countess Spencer. White Orchid comes next, being the best white I have yet grown. There are a few more worthy of growing, such as Mrs. Chas. Zvolanek, lavender; Belgian Hero, orange; but what the public most desire are the first named one and the next four.

Picking for Market.

Boston being the consumer of practically all my sweet peas, the bunch required here is one containing twenty-five sprays with an average of three blooms to the spray. Should the number of blooms to the spray be lacking, thirty or more sprays should be used, making a uniform-sized bunch. Pickers of sweet peas never count more than a few times; they get to know the size without counting. I have never made a practice of grading the blooms. A much nicer bunch can be made if a few shorter-stemmed sprays are put in the front of the bunch, with the longer stems at the back. Of course, growers of sweet peas know that at a certain period of the crop the stems are longest; after this period the length of stem gradually shortens, so that a crop at its best is a grade or two better than one that is past its best.

USE OF SHEEP MANURE.

The soil we are using this year is exceedingly sandy and heavy, but as sheep manure is plentiful, we have been using a mixture consisting of one-third manure and the rest mostly sandy loam. We only pay $3 per ton for the manure, delivered, and about the same for the soil. We have tried this mixture in plant pots and flats, with much success. We are now getting our beds of soil in condition for carnations and would like to know what else we could do that would be helpful. Dried blood, wood ashes and salt can be procured cheaply, but ground bone is not made at our packing houses and the freight on it is prohibitive. We have been using black soil heretofore, but it has a soda alkaline base and late in the season develops a white film on top which soon shows on the plants, making them small and weak.

F. J. H.—Utah.

The inquirer is fortunate to be able to obtain a good grade of sheep manure at the price stated, but I would advise against using it too liberally in the soil for the benches until its value has been fully determined. Although the trial in pots and flats is a guide to go by, yet it is not conclusive. The action of the manure on the small quantity of soil which a pot or flat contains is vastly different from the effect it would have on a larger amount in a bench. Sheep manure is fine and of great value in the culture of plants in a greenhouse bench, but it has a tendency to promote a forced growth and has not the staying qualities of cow or horse manure. If I were in the position of the inquirer and it were possible to obtain it, I would use well rotted cow or horse manure to mix with the soil for planting, and later in the season use the sheep manure as a mulch to stimulate the growth of the plants. Sheep manure will give good results when used as a mulch about the time that the plants are approaching the maturity of a crop.

If one has a good supply of sheep manure, wood ashes and dried blood, there is no need to worry about the lack of bone meal. Caution will have to be exercised in the use of dried blood when the soil is heavily charged with sheep manure, because its action is similar. I believe the change from the black soil to sandy loam is a good move. A good grade of light or sandy loam is about as good a soil as can be obtained for growing carnations. M. P.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

WILLIAM T. USINGER.

WILLIAM T. USINGER, a former correspondent of The Review and a stockholder in and outside salesman for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., has returned from France and, following a vacation and visit with his family and western Pennsylvania friends, will resume his business connections. Mr. Usinger was in the machine gun service and was severely wounded about a year ago, "doing time" in several hospitals overseas. Since the signing of the armistice he has been detailed with the food commission under Mr. Hoover, with headquarters in Paris. He was ordered transferred to the U. S. forces in Russia, but just before the time for his departure the order was recalled. Having lost about twenty pounds during his service, Mr. Usinger's physique is admirably proportioned.

LEAVES LOOK SUN-SCALDED.

I am sending you a few begonia leaves. I should like to find out what makes them turn brown. Is there any remedy for it? P. J.—Wis.

The leaves have the appearance of being sun-scalded. This is caused by overhead watering during the heat of the day. There also may be some mineral substance in the water being used that is affecting the plants. M. P.

PAINTING FOR SAFETY.

Don't guess that any paint, or some paint, will fit your case. Safety of metal surfaces or of wood surfaces lies in full and proper protection by means of a paint that will successfully resist the action of weather and the acid fumes that are always found in cities and towns where coal is burned. Safety lies in knowing, not in guessing. Good paint is cheapest, because it lasts a longer term of years and is less in cost per year of service.

Legislation and Legal Decisions

COMPLIANCE WITH CONTRACTS.

Questions Peculiar to Trade.

Although contracts for the sale of floral, nursery and seed stocks are governed by the same general principles applicable to sale of personal property in general, their particular nature gives rise to important and interesting questions which are not always readily determinable on a reference to general principles.

An instructive decision under this head was handed down by the Pennsylvania Superior court, in a suit in which the validity of defenses against liability for the purchase price of certain imported shrubs and plants was determined by that court.

The first item of the defense rested on a claim that certain plants were not of the height called for by the contract of sale. This point was ruled against the buyer, because it appeared that he accepted delivery, paying duty and ocean freight on the plants, after full opportunity for inspection, and that no objection to the height of the plants was signified until the suit was brought, more than a year after delivery. Under these circumstances the court said:

"The size of the plants was a matter that would become evident as soon as the defendants received them and they were at that time required to inspect the goods. The duty was upon the defendants, after a reasonable time for inspection, to either accept or reject the goods, and if rejected, to promptly notify the plaintiffs."

Breach of Warranty.

But other defenses were resolved in favor of the defendant buyers. As to one of the items of goods sold, it appeared that the plaintiffs, the sellers, had informed defendants that certain plants were hardy in the American climate and that these plants were bought on the strength of the representation—the buyers not being familiar with the particular variety and so advising the sellers when the contract was entered into. It was claimed by defendants that the plants failed to stand the American climate, although given proper care and attention, and that they proved to be worthless solely because they were not as warranted.

"Here was a distinct allegation of an express warranty in the contract of sale, that the purchase was made on the faith of the warranty, and followed by the distinct allegation that the plants, although they received proper care and attention, all died and were worthless solely because they were not hardy, as warranted," says the court. "When there is a warranty of a particular quality in an article of merchandise, and the article is found to be deficient in that quality and totally worthless because of that deficiency, there is no rule of either law or morals which requires a purchaser to pay the full contract price. He has not received the thing which under his contract he is entitled to have. The affidavit alleged, as to this item, a good defense. The defendants would also be entitled to credit upon the account for the amount of duty and charges which they had been required to pay on these worthless plants, as damages for the breach of warranty upon which they had the right to rely."

Stock Not True to Name.

On the third item of the account it appeared that the buyers had bargained for a quantity of conifers, and they asserted that the plants delivered were not true to variety, became wholly worthless and died because they were not of the hardy variety they were represented to be. It seems that one condition of the contract of sale was that "the seller is not responsible for the result of planting of any goods sent out; he guarantees only all varieties to be true to name and description."

"This being the case," remarked the court, "it would seem to be too clear to require discussion that the defendants were entitled to receive the variety of plants which they had ordered, before they could be required to pay at the rate agreed upon. If the allegation of the affidavit is true, the defendants had ordered one variety of plant and the plaintiffs delivered another variety, which was worthless. This was a good defense as to this item of the claim. The defendants would also be entitled to have deducted from the bill the amount of the duty and charges which they had been required to pay upon the plants embraced in the item."

Plants Not Ordered.

According to the report of the case, the last item of the account covered a number of lilac plants. The defense against liability on this item rested on a claim that no such plants were ordered, and that they were accepted only on an agreement with the plaintiffs' representative that defendants would take them and make the best use of them possible. Defendants paid about $50 duty and freight on these plants and claimed that after giving the plants proper care and attention they were unable to realize even that amount of money on them. Disposing of this item, the court says:

"If these allegations be true, the defendants had never ordered these goods; they had never purchased them from any person. They had merely, at the request of an agent of the plaintiffs, received the goods, taken care of them, and endeavored to make the best use of them possible in the interests of the plaintiffs, and in doing so they had paid out more money than they had received. The plants still in the possession of the defendants may be the property of the plaintiffs, who are entitled to have them on demand, but the defendants have not expressly agreed to buy them at a price agreed upon, as the plaintiffs in their statement had averred." W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind., have for some time devoted a range to the growing of lettuce, tomatoes and chrysanthemums, rotating the crops. These three have been grown four years in the same soil, turned over and manured at each planting. Where lettuce and tomatoes were solely grown, six crops of the former and three of the latter were successful. They were grown in soil that had been used for several seasons for roses, thus effecting a great saving in labor and material. It is agreed that roses and carnations thrive best in virgin soil. Promising crops of these were noted. Chrysanthemums are also in fine shape. Orchids are a valuable asset and Judge W. J. Ferns

WHITE MITE ON FERNS.

Can you recommend anything that will kill the small white mite on Boston ferns? They seem to suck the life out of the fronds and nicotine does not affect them. We cannot use gas.

E. A. R.—Ill.

Continued spraying with nicotine solution will usually kill this insect, but if you are unable to get results from this treatment try spraying, or dipping if the plants are in pots, with a solution of whale-oil soap in the proportion of one-half ounce of the soap to a gallon of water. Soap solutions are liable to injure the tips of the young fronds if used too strong. It is best to apply the insecticide on a cloudy day or late in the afternoon. W. H. T.

PROPAGATING BOSTON FERNS.

Enclosed you will find a small piece of frond from a fern that I grow and find to be an excellent seller. Will you inform me as to the best way of increasing the stock and tell me the name of the fern? D. R.—Neb.

The fern in question is the Boston fern, Nephrolepis exaltata Bostoniensis, and in order to grow the greatest number of young plants the stock should be planted on a table in a fairly light greenhouse. The runners are taken from the parent plant, as one would do with the strawberry plant, leaving the runner on the plant until the young plant has made a leaf or two. Then cut back the leaves one-half their length and pot the young stock in 2¼-inch pots. Place in the greenhouse and protect from the sun until the plants become established. Give them enough water to keep the plants from suffering, but not too much before they have made roots. W. H. T.

THE SOUTHERN FERN WORM.

In a recent issue of The Review there was an interesting article with regard to a grower's experience with the so-called Florida fern caterpillar. We know that pest. For a number of years our firm found it practically impossible to grow ferns at Savannah, Ga. It was the fern caterpillar which made the trouble. It first came on the place, we think, with some Boston ferns obtained from Florida. Once established, it devoured everything in the place; we simply could not grow ferns. Then we found out how to control the pest.

Anyone who ever has had a bad case of the fern caterpillar recognizes it the moment he steps into a greenhouse; there is a peculiar sweetish odor never noted in a greenhouse unless this pest is present.

We found that we could clean up this pest by simply spraying with nicotine extract to which fish oil soap had been added. Our method is to dissolve seven or eight pounds of the fish oil soap in a barrel of water. Then, in diluting the nicotine to the proportions prescribed on the can, we use one-fourth soapy water from the barrel and three-fourths clear water. Spraying this on the plants, the soap makes the nicotine stick and it does the business.

This is another case in which a stitch in time saves nine. In other words, we found prevention better than cure. Now we spray our fern houses every week or ten days, even though there are no fern caterpillars there. The spray will destroy the pests only in certain stages of their life cycle, so that, when a greenhouse is badly infested, repeated applications are necessary to clean it out.

PERHAPS SOIL IS SOUR.

I am sending you by separate post some Boston fronds and would like to know what is wrong with them. There has not been any commercial fertilizer put on them to cause burning, but my beds seem to be gradually turning the color of the sample. We have had warm sunshine, but the ferns are under slats. They appear as if they were infested with fungus. They are not grown in muck soil, but in sandy loam.

W. P. N. Co.—Fla.

The fern fronds were received two days after the letter and were naturally rather dry after so long a journey. The impression given by these fronds is that they were rather thin and weak in texture and apparently had turned brown to some extent before they were cut. There does not seem to be any special mark of fungus on the fronds and I am inclined to trace the trouble to sour soil.

If this diagnosis is correct, the best remedy would be lime and probably the best form for fern growers to apply the lime would be ground limestone. Many ferns do better with limestone in the soil and it is an excellent corrective for acidity. W. H. T.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

J. C., N. Y.—Use one of the standard nicotine extracts at the strength stated in the directions on the can.

A. C., Pa.—Put in a by-pass, so that you can send the steam around the tank if it gets too hot. Then you will be safe.

G. P. G., N. H.—Tie the cuttings in bundles and bury in sand in a cold cellar.

HYDRANGEA CULTURE

PROPAGATION OF HYDRANGEAS.

When should cuttings of French hydrangeas be started, to bloom next year? Is it too late to start them now? I have a bunch of rooted cuttings now. Should they be cut back this summer, and at what date? I also have some 4-inch plants, which did not bloom this spring. When should they be cut back and how short? What kind of soil do they require? Is it better to keep them in the greenhouse or grow them outside during the summer? Can they be kept in a cellar during the winter, and how much time do they require to come into bloom after being brought into the heat, with a night temperature of 50 degrees? What is the best commercial variety in each color—white, shell-pink, rose and blue? O. A. L.—O.

No, it is not too late, even now, to start some hydrangea cuttings. The ideal time, perhaps, to put them in the propagating bench is during February or March, but they may be inserted any time from January till June and even as late as September. Of course the results vary accordingly, and the lateness of the start may curtail or entirely exclude the usual period of rest. Late autumn-struck cuttings produce useful dwarf-flowering plants in spring, not exceeding one foot in height. Plants that are propagated in early spring, and grown on in pots for the next year, are much stronger and taller. One Massachusetts grower states that for several seasons he has started a batch of hydrangea cuttings in the first part of September, placing the cuttings singly in small pots of sandy loam in a frame, which is kept close and moist until roots are formed. These cuttings are later shifted to 4-inch and 5-inch pots and are never allowed to rest. They produce big single heads of flowers the following spring.

As to the cuttings that are already rooted, the tops of the plants must be pinched out. This pinching is generally done just before placing the plants outdoors for the summer. For they spend the summer outdoors, either plunged in their pots in coal ashes or porous soil, or planted out in rich ground. In either case they should be liberally watered and occasionally manured. The 4-inch left-over plants should be cut back to within a few eyes of the pot. Remove some of the soil, give them a shift and plunge them outdoors. They will make fine plants for another spring. As fall approaches, the water supply should be reduced and finally eliminated. The object is to insure a strong growth in summer and well ripened wood in the fall.

After the first light frosts, the plants should be removed to a cool greenhouse and allowed to remain in a dry condition until about the end of December. If intended for Easter flowering, they should then be transferred to a warmer house, with a temperature gradually rising from 50 to 60 degrees. Plenty of water should be given, with weekly applications of liquid manure until the flower-buds are developed. Hydrangeas like a rich soil, such as loam and decayed cow manure in equal parts.

The foregoing suggestions will serve as replies to about all of O. A. L.'s questions except the one with reference to the choice of varieties. The following selection, recommended by a successful commercial grower, comprises most of the colors desired: La Lorraine, pale rose, turning to light pink; Mme. E. Mouillere, large pure white, with rosy eye; Avalanche, fine pure white; Radiant, beautiful rich carmine rose; Mme. Auguste Nonin, lovely pale pink; Mme. E. Chautard, beautiful rose; General de Vibraye, splendid pink; Gloire de Boissy, deep brilliant pink; Mlle. Renee Gaillard, fine white; Mlle. de Tremeault, pure white, and Eclaireur, carmine rose.

WHEN MANURE IS SCARCE

COMMERCIAL FERTILIZERS.

More or Less A Mystery.

As long as natural manures were abundant and fresh soil of good quality was easily obtained, the florist paid little attention to fertilizers. Occasionally a grower would use some prepared fertilizer for a special purpose, but in most cases these were packing-house by-products or some other form of organic fertilizer.

The ones most commonly used were bone meal, sheep manure and dried blood. Naturally these are best known and are the ones to which the grower turns when his supply of natural manures is not sufficient for his needs. Especially in the large cities, increasing quantities of prepared manures are being used by the florists.

That there is a great deal of mystery attached to the use of commercial fertilizers under glass is evidenced by the fact that smooth salesmen can talk the grower into purchasing worthless mixtures which are supposed to correct all errors from fungus to crop failure. We bought such a "mixture" some years ago, which, if my memory does not fail me, was supposed to correct acidity and counteract alkali. It was not a fertilizer, but a "tonic," that would put life and "pep" into the deadest soil and stock. In practice it was disappointing and for good reasons. Analysis showed that it contained white sand and iron filings.

University Experiments.

The University of Illinois has carried on experiments in the growing of both roses and carnations with the use of commercial fertilizers and the experimenters have arrived at the conclusion that these flowers can be grown just as well in this manner as with the use of manure. They have also taken a great deal of the mystery out of the process. Bulletins covering these experiments have been published and can no doubt be obtained by writing the Agricultural Experiment Station, Department of Horticulture, Urbana, Ill.

Bulletin No. 196 contains "The Use of Commercial Fertilizers in Growing Roses," and "Floricultural Research at the Experiment Station," two papers by H. W. Anderson, the latter dealing with both roses and carnations.

The Iowa florist is more fortunate than some of his eastern brethren and does not need to worry much about plant food supply, but should it ever be necessary to purchase this item, he will know the possibilities as well as the dangers to be guarded against.

Quoting from the bulletin last named, "Fertilizers were applied as follows: Manure at the rate of 125 pounds per hundred square feet, dried blood eight pounds per hundred square feet, acid phosphate two pounds per hundred square feet, potassium sulphate two pounds per hundred square feet."

A nominal amount of manure must be added to supply the necessary humus.

Elements Supplied to Soil.

The three elements which are not found in the soil in sufficient quantity are nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium.

The nitrogen is supplied by the dried blood, though ammonium sulphate could be used, but it was found to dry the soil more quickly. Phosphorus is supplied by the acid phosphate. The potassium is supplied by the potassium sulphate.

While some manure must be used, yet one-fourth to one-third the usual quantity is sufficient where the commercial fertilizer is used.

The commercial fertilizers must be carefully applied, so that even distribution and thorough incorporation is secured.

After the fertilizer is mixed with the soil, it should stand a day or two before planting, to avoid injury to the roots. Overfeeding or careless application is much more serious than with natural manures and it would not be advisable to experiment on a large scale unless competent and careful growers were in direct supervision.

A paper by George L. Kurtzweil, of Des Moines, on "Commercial Fertilizers that Are of the Most Value to the Florist," read before the Florists' Society of Iowa.

VIOLETS AT RHINEBECK.

For the last thirty years double violets have been grown successfully at Rhinebeck, a small village located 100 miles north of New York city in the Hudson valley.

At first there was one grower, George Saltford, now out of the business. Later others took up the culture of violets, until in a short time there were over 100 growers who shipped the fragrant blooms to nearly every large city east of the Mississippi.

Last year, on account of the fuel regulations, many growers closed half their houses, while others went out of business entirely, some tearing down their houses.

This year many growers are running only part of their houses, because of the scarcity of labor and the high price of fuel. Today there are but sixty growers left at Rhinebeck.

Because of these conditions at Rhinebeck, double purple violets are becoming scarcer in the eastern markets and consequently higher in price.

Ethan A. Coon, one of the oldest and now one of the largest growers at Rhinebeck, has enlarged his range this year by adding two houses, each 24x160.

THE GLADIOLUS

GLADIOLI FOR GARDENS.

When asked the names of varieties of gladioli best suited for planting in the home garden, the florist will not go far wrong if he recommends the following old favorites:

Mrs. Frank Pendleton, delicate pink with a dark red blotch in the throat; Gaiety, with lines of dark and light pink, blotched with pure white, a striking beauty; America, delicate flesh pink, probably the best known of any of the modern varieties; Ophir, yellow with red throat; Princeps, a large red, with white blotch; Myrtle, a beautiful tinted pink; Mary Fennell, delicate lilac or lavender, with creamy yellow throat; Fairae, delicate pink, blending into a cream throat, a fair companion for the preceding one; Mrs. Dr. Norton, a pure white with outer edges a bright pink; Niagara, large delicate yellow or cream bloom, and Alice Tiplady, a rich orange with large, open flowers.

To prolong the season, Halley and Chicago White bloom among the earliest, but planting in succession will give flowers from the first of July until frost. The comparatively new ruffled varieties are justly popular, as are the primulinus, a distinct species with butterfly-shaped flowers in red, orange and yellow shades only.

Gladioli will succeed in most soils, although a rich sandy loam is preferable, and they will do best with a sunny exposure. Most of the failures in their cultivation are caused by ignorance of their requirements. Some have planted in shady places or in uncongenial soil, but the most common mistake is planting too shallow—they should be covered from four to six inches deep. This helps them reach the moisture during a drought and also prevents their falling over when heavy with bloom. They should be planted from four to six inches apart or even more if there is plenty of room, for the plant that has room for perfect development will throw the most vigorous spikes. Fresh manure should never be applied where it will come in contact with the roots.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

Morrison, Ill.—Mrs. E. M. Hurd, formerly of St. Paul, has opened a store in the Boyd market building, on Main street.

Manchester, Pa.—Mrs. E. G. Miller has retired from business, having sold her establishment to Harry M. Augenbraugh.

Reisterstown, Md.—Charles B. Wright has sold his establishment to Leonard L. Lancaster. Mr. Wright has moved to 4816 Park avenue, Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md.—J. Nick Thomas will soon start work on his greenhouse, which will be 40x140. He will also erect a residence. The total cost will be approximately $20,000.

Columbiana, O.—Roy Smith has purchased two farms in Florida, one at Russell and the other at South Jacksonville. He expects to locate there this fall and grow plants and nursery stock.

Newark, O.—Warren C. Weient will build an addition to his range. In his extensive greenhouses he grows nothing but cucumbers. He will build a $30,000 heating plant to take care of the present houses and the new addition.

Hastings, Neb.—C. B. Tanner is building three greenhouses, each 30x160 feet, at his new greenhouse location on Wabash avenue, in the northeast part of town. The heating plant is to contain two boilers, of forty-five and eighty-five horsepower capacity.

Boston, Mass.—Penn the Florist won first prize at the annual summer show of the North Shore Horticultural Society. There were eight other competitors for the gold medal. This is the first time Penn has entered in competition at the North Shore show. His prize exhibit was a table decoration.

Baldwin, Kan.—Mrs. Maude Brockway has opened a flower store, known as Baldwin's House of Flowers. Mrs. Brockway will handle cut flowers and plants. Although Ottawa and Lawrence, near-by towns, have excellent florists' establishments, Mrs. Brockway is confident that she can make her business a paying one.

Shelby, O.—The Hayes Greenhouses, operated for over a quarter of a century by R. B. Hayes, have been sold to S. F. Yosick, of New Philadelphia, O., who will do business as the Shelby Floral Co. The new concern will grow a general line of cut flowers and plants for retail trade. Mr. Yosick will bring his stock of gladiolus bulbs from New Philadelphia and expects to increase this specialty considerably upon the tract of land adjoining the range. Mr. Yosick has had four years' experience as a florist. Mr. Hayes, who has been exceedingly successful, will retire from the business.

Beatrice, Neb.—Victor Rhyd has completed arrangements for the building of his range. The material is being shipped from Chicago.

Reynoldsville, Pa.—Harry T. Peters is building a large addition to his greenhouse, at the corner of Main and Fifth streets. He has torn down one of the houses in order to double the area under glass.

Baton Rouge, La.—Sam Scheinuk has just moved to his new location on Roseland terrace, where he conducts his store under the title of the Roseland Florist. Several lots adjoining are used to grow flowers.

Fort William, Ont.—For the funeral of an aviator killed overseas and brought home for interment, Charles Le Cocq constructed an airplane, about five feet in width, of immortelles overlaid with orchids, carnations and Crego asters.

Winfield, Kan.—The Vaughan Greenhouses, formerly owned by J. L. Vaughan, have been purchased by N. Dugan and H. Z. Cain, of Wichita, Kan., and will be known as the Winfield Seed & Floral Co. A landscape department will be added to the store.

Perry, Ia.—The Perry Greenhouse has been purchased from William Ballard by Charles E. Louwerse, and will be operated under the firm name of Louwerse & Co. Mr. Louwerse was formerly a landscape gardener at Cedar Rapids, having come originally from Holland some years ago.

Independence, Ia.—At the state fair at Des Moines Geo. S. Woodruff took all first premiums on gladioli except that on twelve spikes yellow, for which he received second award. He filled two large tables, showing upwards of sixty named varieties. The exhibit was kept fresh to the last day by two shipments after the one on which premiums were awarded. The exhibit was much admired by visitors. Among the varieties which attracted special attention were Anna Eberius, Titanic, Red Emperor and Pink Perfection.

Buffalo, N. Y.—S. A. Kost, who is associated with the W. F. Kasting Co., has invented a number of labor-saving devices for florists. Conditions have not been right for manufacturing and marketing, but it is thought they soon will be. The "Oh, Boy" glazing gun has been leased for a year to the Excello Mfg. Co., Cleveland. Then there is the Kost soil pulverizer, sales of which already have been made to Julius Roehrs Co., Bobbink & Atkins, W. J. Palmer & Son, Poehlmann Bros. Co. and C. C. Pollworth Co.; and the Kost bar scraper and the Kost & Yeager planting tool, each of which the Kasting concern purposes to push next season.

Kittanning, Pa.—The opening of J. W. Glenn's flower and seed store, at 128 North McKean street, was held September 1 and 2.

Baraboo, Wis.—The frame structure at the greenhouse owned by E. T. Ross was badly damaged by fire August 21. The fire is believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion.

Houston, Tex.—Kerr the Florist, which is the name under which R. C. Kerr conducts his retail enterprise, is remodeling the store building and installing new equipment, including a large Buchbinder refrigerator.

Goshen, Ind.—A. E. Kunderd realized $26,149.80 last year from a 7-acre plot of gladioli and returned more than $3,000 because of bulbs he could not supply. He has approximately fifteen acres devoted to bulb culture.

Ogden, Utah.—Corporal John E. Dumke has been east to participate in the shooting contests at Caldwell, N. J., August 8 to September 1. He is a member of the rifle team of the Utah National Guard and receives all expenses for the trip from the government.

St. John, Kan.—Mrs. H. K. Maxwell has sold her greenhouses to Palmer Selfridge and since August 1 they have been known as the St. John Greenhouses. Mr. Selfridge recently returned from service in France. He intends to enlarge the greenhouses. He took a special course in greenhouse work and horticulture before entering the army.

Utica, N. Y.—J. C. Bigelow & Son took The Review's advice in the summer of 1918 and bought coal when they could get it. The result was that they had full houses last spring, when some others had little. So they have just done the same thing again, stored enough buckwheat to carry them through. "It gives a comfortable feeling to see one's supply on hand," says Mr. Bigelow.

Elyria, O.—Fred L. Gunton, who in 1915 bought the greenhouses of Copas Bros., after having had experience with a number of growers east and west, is the inventor of a new double-action ventilator and has applied for a patent. Mr. Gunton's sash opens on either the upper or lower side, at the operator's pleasure. It is attached only by means of the arms, both edges being clear. By turning the lifting wheel in one direction the sash opens at the ridge, while turning the other way causes the sash to open at the header, a great advantage where winds are strong and changeable. Mr. Gunton showed his model at the S. A. F. convention at Detroit, explaining that he does not intend to manufacture the apparatus but to sell his inventor's rights to some of the greenhouse material companies.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The market continues dull, the supply vastly in excess of the light demand. An improvement, however, is looked for shortly, due to the fact that people are returning from the country resorts in crowds. While New York is always heralded as a fine summer resort in itself, it is notable that nearly every one of its residents who can possibly get away leaves the city during July and August. Labor day brought no extra business to the florists, and the commission houses all closed at noon. Pershing day, Wednesday, September 10, was a partial holiday, but it did little to accelerate the demand for flowers.

American Beauty roses are plentiful and arrivals move slowly, clearances at times proving difficult, even with liberal concessions in prices. There is a heavy supply of hybrid teas, and prices in consequence are weaker and hard to quote. Hot, muggy weather is causing considerable waste, but in general the quality is good. Columbia is rather prominent, the variety being in abundant crop. Premier continues to make an excellent showing under adverse conditions.

Cattleya orchids are in good supply, the labiata variety arriving in liberal quantity. Prices are easier, and medium grades are selling well, although the general demand is not great. A few spray orchids are arriving, but the demand for them is small.

Lily of the valley is scarce and the price for the best is around $15 per hundred. Easter lilies are entirely out of the market, but rubrums are in large supply and hard to move, with the best grades bringing about $2 per hundred, bud and flower. Inferior grades move only at sacrificial prices. The album variety is also coming and sells well for funeral work.

The supply of miscellaneous flowers is large, and much stock is going to waste. Late asters are in enormous supply, and gladioli and cosmos come in avalanches. Delphinium pyramidale, gaillardias, tritomas, chrysanthemums, gypsophila and Hydrangea paniculata are conspicuous among the offerings, as are also dahlias, only the best of which find customers.

Carnations are likely to be late in arriving this season. Many growers are experiencing difficulty in completing their benchings, owing to difficulty in obtaining stock. Surplus plants are bringing from $70 to $120 per thousand.

Various Notes.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., with his family, returned from the Detroit convention by way of the Thousand Islands and had a delightful trip. Mr. Totty was in town September 5, looking up shipping possibilities for several thousand rose plants to go to China, since he has an order for immediate shipment to that far-off country.

Readers of the New York World last Sunday were surprised to notice a splendid portrait of A. L. Miller, as president-elect of the S. A. F., featured in the pictorial section of the paper.

The Garden Club of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., recently organized, will hold an initial exhibition of dahlias, asters, roses, annuals and perennials September 19 and 20, on the Cathcart estate.

Major P. F. O'Keefe, of Boston, was in town September 5 on business connected with the publicity campaign.

In view of the many valuable sites on public highways and along railroad tracks controlled by florists in the environs of New York, there should be many applications forthcoming for the billboard slogan signs which the promotion bureau of the publicity compaign will shortly put out.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Dahlia Society will open in the Engineering building, West Thirty-ninth street, near Sixth avenue, September 23. Among the special prizes offered are some for the best packed boxes of dahlias for shipment. Such exhibits ought to be educational in character, as many shipments of dahlias coming to the New York market are spoiled on account of poor packing.

August Jahn, an old-time retail florist of Brooklyn, died at his home, 508 Macon street, Brooklyn, September 6. Further notice appears in this week's obituary column. J. H. Pepper.

HARDY BLUE HYDRANGEA.

I am asked by customers for hardy blue hydrangeas, but cannot find any advertised. Are they treated in a special manner to produce the blue color? Which of the French hydrangeas will be best for the state of Delaware? Many fine plants here have but few blooms. Do they require protection, or is there some other cause? Please give me the names of purple iris and golden yellow iris that are of the same height and will bloom at the same time.

C. S. M.—Del.

Hydrangea otaksa will frequently come blue. The use of iron filings or small pieces of rusty iron in the soil is believed to have a tendency toward producing blue flowers. In your latitude this hydrangea should prove hardy if given some winter protection. The newer French hydrangeas are much hardier than many people imagine; in fact, plants have stood out all winter as far north as southeastern Massachusetts in well drained soil. The variety Mme. Chautard has with me always given deep blue heads of flowers, much deeper than I have ever seen Hydrangea otaksa. I would suggest that you plant this variety and give it suitable winter protection for a couple of years. These are the hardiest blue hydrangeas I know of.

Of iris, the following forms of germanica are recommended as good and blooming at the same time. Elizabeth, pale blue; macrantha, violet blue; Perfection, lavender; Golden Plume, golden yellow; aurea, rich yellow; Sherwin Wright, golden yellow. The finest blues are in the pallida section. They, however, grow much taller than the other varieties named. Of these, Iris pallida dalmatica, soft lavender; Gertrude, violet blue, and Mandraliscæ, clear blue, are specially fine. C. W.

VALUE OF COLEUS.

Can you tell me the name and commercial value of the coleus of which I am enclosing leaves? P. F. S.—Mich.

There are such a large number of coleus which are sports or variations of other varieties and have provisional names that it is hard to give the correct name. The small-leaved variety we know as Joseph's Coat and the larger one as Prince Edward. They do not have any particular commercial value above the general line of standard varieties. M. P.

Philadelphia, Pa.—Albert Walker will erect a one-story brick addition to his greenhouse, the cost of which will be $1,500.

IMPORTS OF PLANTS AND BULBS FOR THIRD QUARTER OF YEAR.

THE following are the imports of plants, bulbs, trees, shrubs and vines, with the rates of duty collected thereon, for the third quarter of the government's last fiscal year, as reported by the U. S. Department of Commerce:

Articles.	Rate of duty.	Jan. 1 to Mar. 31, 1919. Quantity.	Value.
Plants, trees, shrubs and vines:
Bulbs, bulb roots or corms, cultivated for their flowers or foliage—

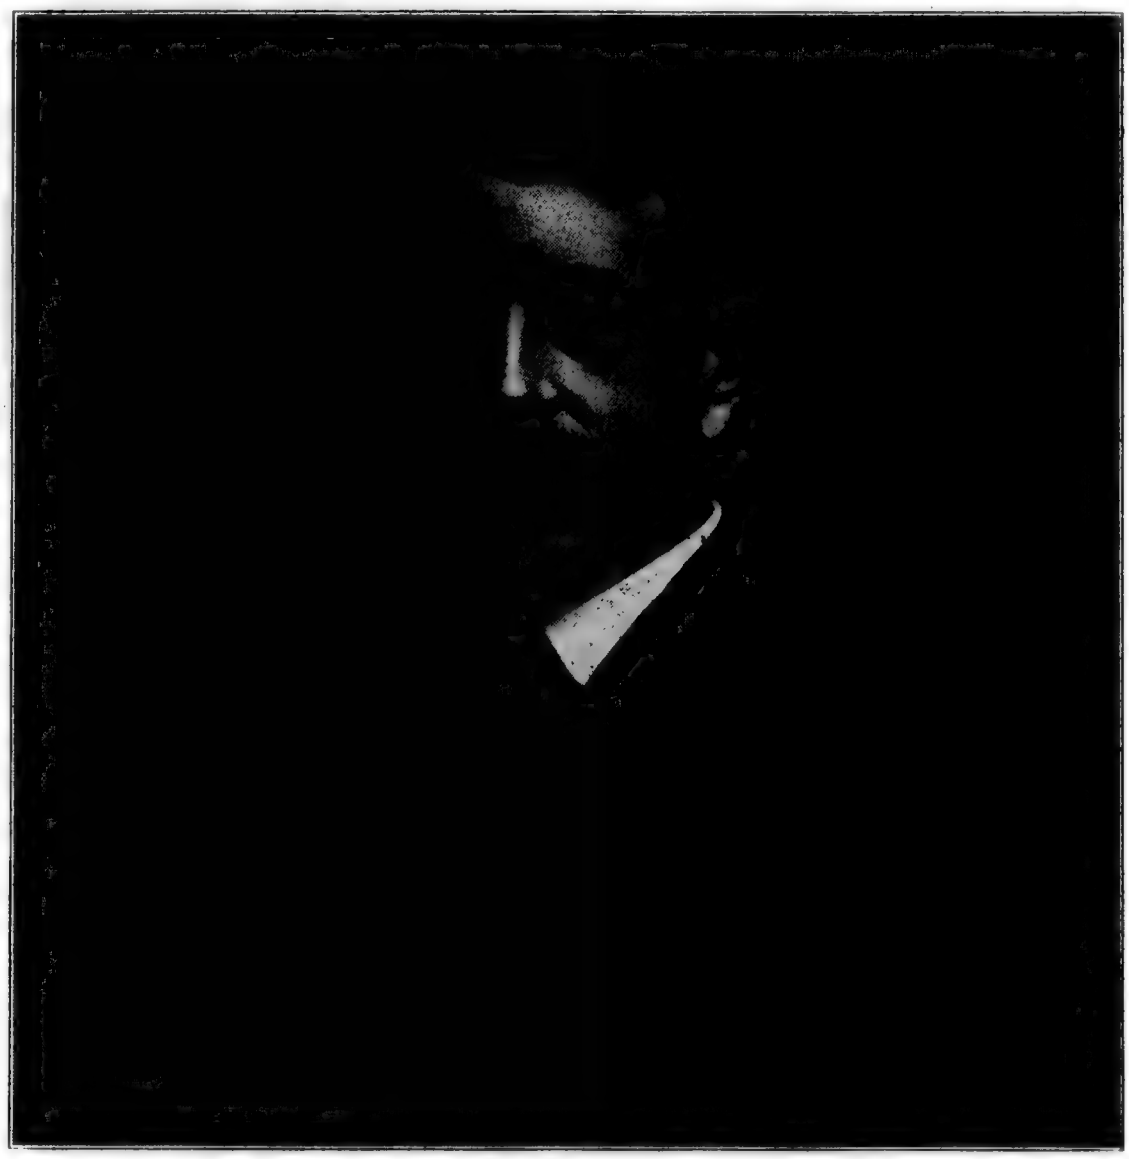
OBITUARY

George Arnold.



George Arnold, at one time farm superintendent for James Vick's Sons, died at Ensenore, N. Y., Tuesday morning, September 2, at the age of 62 years, following an illness of about two weeks. He is survived by his wife and one son, Schuyler, the latter having just returned from service overseas.

For the last four years George Arnold had been in charge of the estate of Mrs. J. Letchworth, at Ensenore, N. Y. He had been in the employ of James Vick's Sons for twelve years, most of that time at the trial grounds at Ogden, N. Y. Several years ago he was in charge of the H. H. Westinghouse estate.

When the Spencer sweet peas were introduced he became much interested and grew many of the best varieties for commercial purposes and also to familiarize himself with their various habits. A number of years ago he introduced into the market Primula veris superba, which he disposed of to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and James Vick's Sons. Since then it has become a popular plant.

Mr. Arnold was fond of asters and he had a great deal to do with introducing and improving the different strains of asters. It was through his efforts that the upright type of asters was introduced. Each year he had a plot of about one acre, where he would experiment and work out the better varieties.

The funeral was held from his late home, at Spencerport, N. Y., Saturday, September 6. There were great quantities of flowers sent as expressions of sympathy, among which was a piece from the Rochester Florists' Association, of which he was at one time president. He was also past master of the local Grange. H. J. H.

George Arnold.

Henry Meyer.

Henry Meyer, Sr., aged 56 years, for more than twenty-five years in business at Kenosha, Wis., died Wednesday evening, August 27, about 7 o'clock at his home at 316 Broad street, following a long illness from leakage of the heart.

Henry Meyer was born in Berndorf, Germany, January 14, 1863, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Meyer. He came to America with his parents thirty-five years ago and started in the flower business in Kenosha ten years later. He was the founder and senior member of the firm of H. Meyer & Son, which will now be continued by his sons, Henry, Jr., Frank J. and Peter Meyer, as Henry Meyer Sons.

Mr. Meyer retired from the management of his business several years ago because of ill health, but when the war started and one of his sons, Henry, enlisted in the United States Marines, and a second, Frank, joined the United States army, he returned to work in the greenhouses until they had come back from the defense of the flag. Two months ago he was taken with serious illness and since that time had been unable to do much of the work at the greenhouses. He was a member of the St. Joseph's Society and had taken an active part in the work of the order.

Mr. Meyer is survived by his wife, Mrs. Barbara Meyer; by four sons, William Meyer, of Somers, Wis.; Henry Meyer, Jr., Peter Meyer and Frank Meyer, of Kenosha, and by two daughters, Mrs. Fred Doerflinger, of Somers, and Miss Clara Meyer, of Kenosha.

The funeral services were held Saturday morning, August 30, at 10 o'clock at the St. George church, after which interment was made in the family plot at the St. George cemetery.

Ludwig Heyn.

After a short illness Ludwig Heyn, the sole proprietor of the business conducted under the name of Conrad Appel, Darmstadt, Germany, died July 13.

Mr. Heyn was in his sixty-first year. He entered the business of his father and uncle July 1, 1888. Conrad Appel's business was established in 1789 by the great-grandfather of Mr. Heyn and from small proportions gradually increased to its present standing and reputation.

Mr. Heyn is survived by his widow. The business is transferred to his nephew, the son of his only sister, Paul Anding, who took charge of affairs August 12 and who will continue the business in the same style as before. The business now belongs to the family of the founder in the fifth generation.

David Rehr.

David Rehr, for many years in business at Lehighton, Pa., died of complications August 28. He was 71 years of age and is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters.

August E. Jahn.

August E. Jahn, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who retired about twelve years ago, died Saturday, September 6, at his home, 508 Macon street, Brooklyn. He was born in Gotha, Germany, and in early life came to this country, shortly afterwards establishing himself as a retail florist at 128 Broadway, Williamsburg, where he continued in business until the time of his retirement. He leaves his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Ella Elfert, and two sons, Alfred and Hugo H. Jahn. The latter is conducting a retail store at 710 Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn. The deceased was a member of Copernicus lodge, the Hanover Club and the Arion Singing Society. Funeral services were held at the home on Tuesday evening, September 9. J. H. P.

THALICTRUM WORTH GROWING.

Under separate cover I am mailing you a plant, of which I would like to know the name. Also tell me whether the trade requires such a plant.

The plant in question would be a good substitute for other greens, adiantum, for instance, as this plant resembles it to a splendid degree. It is a good keeper, lasting as long as ten days and even longer in a cool place, remaining green and crisp. The nature of the plant is a clinging vine, but if pinched it remains a bushy plant. If left alone the vine produces small pink flowers about the size of the forget-me-not, but in a shape resembling the flowers of a balsam, or touch-me-not. N. F. J.—Pa.

The specimen sent is one of the thalictrums, T. minus adiantifolium. The thalictrums, or meadow rues, have fern-like foliage and are useful in making up bouquets. They are sometimes offered in the markets in a small way and are worthy of culture by all florists who do any retail business. W. N. C.

OBITUARY

George Arnold.

George Arnold, at one time farm superintendent for James Vick's Sons, died at Ensenore, N. Y., Tuesday morning, September 2, at the age of 62 years, following an illness of about two weeks. He is survived by his wife and one son, Schuyler, the latter having just returned from service overseas.

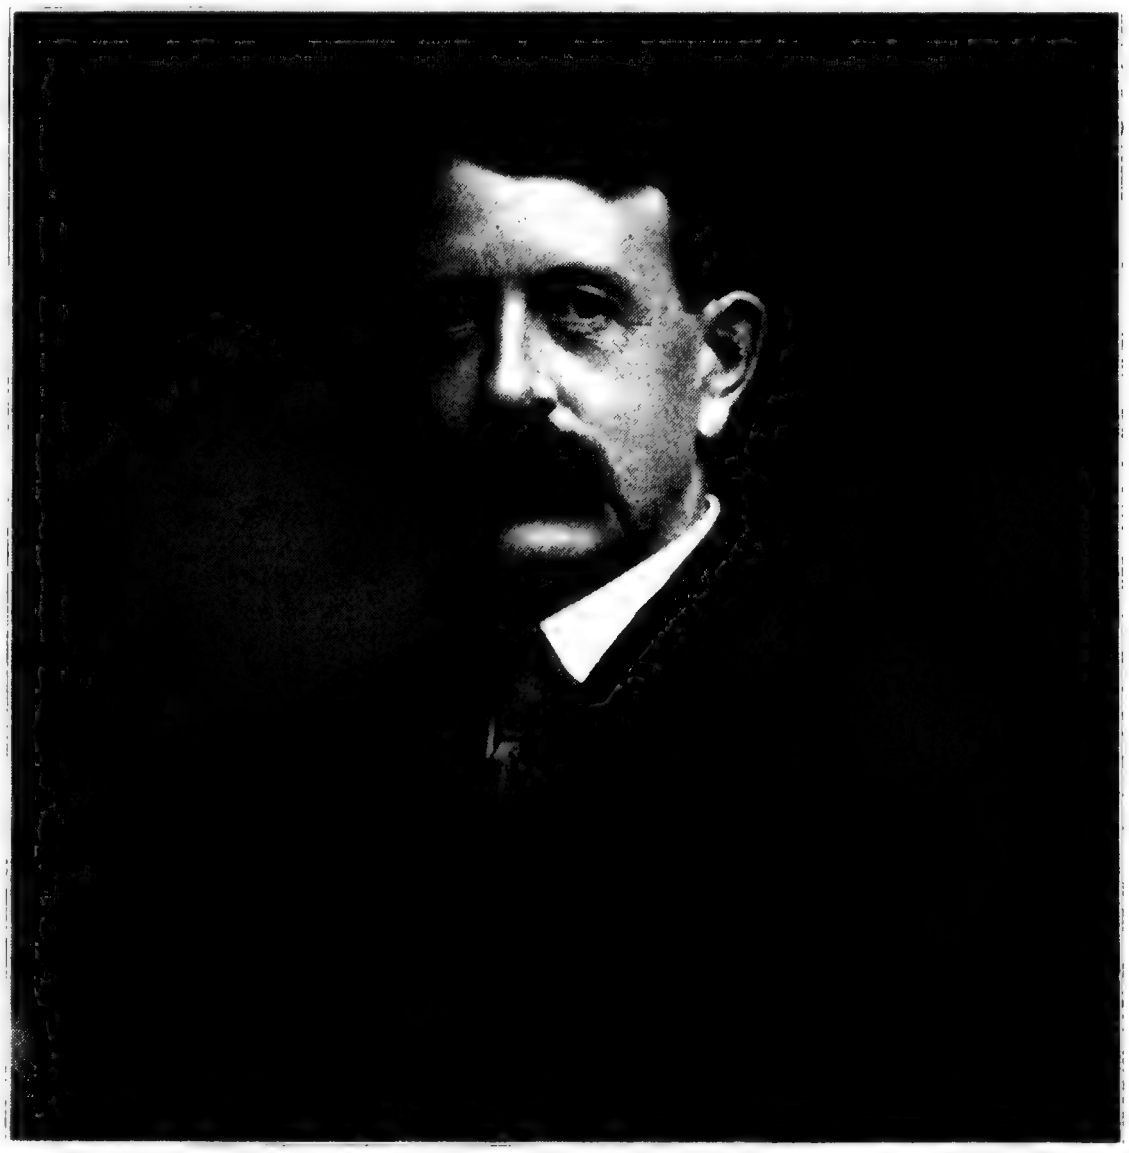
For the last four years George Arnold had been in charge of the estate of Mrs. J. Letchworth, at Ensenore, N. Y. He had been in the employ of James Vick's Sons for twelve years, most of that time at the trial grounds at Ogden, N. Y. Several years ago he was in charge of the H. H. Westinghouse estate.

When the Spencer sweet peas were introduced he became much interested and grew many of the best varieties for commercial purposes and also to familiarize himself with their various habits. A number of years ago he introduced into the market Primula veris superba, which he disposed of to Henry A. Dreer, Inc., and James Vick's Sons. Since then it has become a popular plant.

Mr. Arnold was fond of asters and he had a great deal to do with introducing and improving the different strains of asters. It was through his efforts that the upright type of asters was introduced. Each year he had a plot of about one acre, where he would experiment and work out the better varieties.

The funeral was held from his late home, at Spencerport, N. Y., Saturday, September 6. There were great quantities of flowers sent as expressions of sympathy, among which was a piece from the Rochester Florists' Association, of which he was at one time president. He was also past master of the local Grange. H. J. H.

Henry Meyer.



Henry Meyer, Sr., aged 56 years, for more than twenty-five years in business at Kenosha, Wis., died Wednesday evening, August 27, about 7 o'clock at his home at 316 Broad street, following a long illness from leakage of the heart.

Henry Meyer was born in Berndorf, Germany, January 14, 1863, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Meyer. He came to America with his parents thirty-five years ago and started in the flower business in Kenosha ten years later. He was the founder and senior member of the firm of H. Meyer & Son, which will now be continued by his sons, Henry, Jr., Frank J. and Peter Meyer, as Henry Meyer Sons.

Mr. Meyer retired from the management of his business several years ago because of ill health, but when the war started and one of his sons, Henry, enlisted in the United States Marines, and a second, Frank, joined the United States army, he returned to work in the greenhouses until they had come back from the defense of the flag. Two months ago he was taken with serious illness and since that time had been unable to do much of the work at the greenhouses. He was a member of the St. Joseph's Society and had taken an active part in the work of the order.

Mr. Meyer is survived by his wife, Mrs. Barbara Meyer; by four sons, William Meyer, of Somers, Wis.; Henry Meyer, Jr., Peter Meyer and Frank Meyer, of Kenosha, and by two daughters, Mrs. Fred Doerflinger, of Somers, and Miss Clara Meyer, of Kenosha.

The funeral services were held Saturday morning, August 30, at 10 o'clock at the St. George church, after which interment was made in the family plot at the St. George cemetery.

George Arnold.

Ludwig Heyn.

After a short illness Ludwig Heyn, the sole proprietor of the business conducted under the name of Conrad Appel, Darmstadt, Germany, died July 13.

Mr. Heyn was in his sixty-first year. He entered the business of his father and uncle July 1, 1888. Conrad Appel's business was established in 1789 by the great-grandfather of Mr. Heyn and from small proportions gradually increased to its present standing and reputation.

Mr. Heyn is survived by his widow. The business is transferred to his nephew, the son of his only sister, Paul Anding, who took charge of affairs August 12 and who will continue the business in the same style as before. The business now belongs to the family of the founder in the fifth generation.

David Rehr.

David Rehr, for many years in business at Lehighton, Pa., died of complications August 28. He was 71 years of age and is survived by his wife, two sons and two daughters.

August E. Jahn.

August E. Jahn, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who retired about twelve years ago, died Saturday, September 6, at his home, 508 Macon street, Brooklyn. He was born in Gotha, Germany, and in early life came to this country, shortly afterwards establishing himself as a retail florist at 128 Broadway, Williamsburg, where he continued in business until the time of his retirement. He leaves his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Ella Elfert, and two sons, Alfred and Hugo H. Jahn. The latter is conducting a retail store at 710 Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn. The deceased was a member of Copernicus lodge, the Hanover Club and the Arion Singing Society. Funeral services were held at the home on Tuesday evening, September 9. J. H. P.

E. G. HILL was 72 years of age September 11.

CARNATIONS are going to hit some fancy figures next winter.

JUST a month away is the F. T. D. convention at Buffalo, October 14 and 15.

GOOD packing will be more important than ever to growers of cut flowers this season.

FALL planting will extend the planting season and add to sales. Now is the time to urge it.

Now that families are returning to their city homes, sales of house plants can be pushed with good returns.

ELIMINATION of waste and increased production are advocated as remedies for high costs. They form a good recipe for normal business success also.

NEVER lose sight of the need for quality. No florist ever made a reputation that was any use to him except by doing things just a little better than his neighbors.

EVERY day there are developments that show how wholly different are the trade conditions now and in the pre-war era. Florists now view with equanimity things which as little as eighteen months ago would have caused great alarm.

THE Journal of the S. A. F. pays The Review a compliment by reprinting in the August issue, just to hand, this paper's "Complete List of Exhibitors in the Trade Exhibition," at the Detroit convention, together with much of our descriptions of the exhibits.

THE trial grounds of the American Dahlia Society at Storrs, Conn., will be visited officially September 20, when judges will pass on the varieties planted. Secretary John H. Pepper, 1170 Broadway, New York, will furnish information to members who wish to attend.

ABNORMAL demand and limited output are the cause of high prices, according to W. M. Lewis, director of the savings division of the Treasury Department. "Retailers are securing goods from jobbers without arguing about prices," he says, "if they can only be assured of immediate delivery. They know their customers will scramble for the goods, regardless of cost."

THE trend of the trade is toward closer organization, leading to fuller coöperation.

CARE for equipment and tools saves the necessity of replacing them. At present prices it is distinctly worth while.

IN the August issue of the S. A. F. Journal, just mailed to members of the society, are listed 253 new annual members and 218 new life members.

THERE is small chance of overproduction this season. Probably production will not be noticeably larger, except in a few localities, than it was last season, while the demand continues to be the largest ever known.

DAHLIA SOCIETY'S FALL SHOW.

The annual exhibition of the American Dahlia Society will be held September 23 to 25 in the Engineering building, 33 West Thirty-ninth street, New York. In addition to the twenty-odd classes of the society, there will be a number of prizes offered by the American Institute at the same time.

A new class that is attracting considerable attention is that for the best packed box of dahlias for shipment, the box to be not larger than 8x12x30 inches.

RESERVE BOARD REASSURES.

When the unrest caused by various industrial factors gives members of the trade concern as to the outlook of the season ahead, it is reassuring to read that the general business situation, while presenting some disquieting features, is at bottom strong, according to the Federal Reserve Board, in its monthly review of industrial conditions. It states that, barring labor conflicts, the customary swell in the volume of business in the fall months is probable.

During the month of August factors which had not hitherto arrested much attention exercised great influence on the business situation, the Federal Reserve Board points out. Reference is made to the problem of commodity prices, in particular those going to make up the cost of living, and to the consequent condition of labor unrest. Previously emphasis had been placed upon the great activity displayed by business, and the two problems mentioned appeared merely as disturbing elements in the general situation, which was considered satisfactory in the main.

INSUFFICIENT CAPITAL.

The man who is weighing the chances of his succeeding in a business of his own has a good many considerations to put in the balance. One of the most important is capital. Some florists succeed with less than others. That is because there are counteracting advantages. But the man who sails too close to the wind is running risks always. A man who feels severely the strain of the Saturday night's pay roll or is wondering how he'll get a little more credit to meet his bills is not in good business health.

There is food for reflection in the statement of a credit reporting agency that eighty-eight per cent of the concerns failing in business within a certain period had $5,000 capital or less and seven and four-tenths per cent had from $5,000 to $20,000. Only four and six-tenths per cent, or less than one-twentieth of them, were concerns of comparatively large capitalization. The conclusion one draws is that many attempt independent business without adequate supply of capital to meet the emergencies that always come in a new undertaking. That inference need not discourage anyone from attempting to establish his own enterprise; it merely should admonish him to have sufficient resources to protect his investment.

BRITISH FIGHT QUARANTINE.

According to a British horticultural journal, the Worshipful Company of Gardeners, a London body of horticulturists, has decided to approach the United States ambassador in the endeavor to induce the Federal Horticultural Board of the United States Department of Agriculture to issue such an amendment to regulation 14 of the rules and regulations supplemental to notice of Quarantine No. 37 as will provide for special permits for importation of azaleas, rhododendrons, palms, bays, araucarias, aspidistras and orchids from Belgium to the United States.

SAD NEWS?

The sad news in the reports of quick movement of stock by Classified ads in The Review is for the seller who failed to clear his stock because he did not use this means. And, if he is sad, he is wiser when he reads letters like this:

Please discontinue our advertisement until further notice and mail us a statement in full to date. The sad news is that we find all stock sold out for the present and in some cases considerably in advance of harvest.—Seabright Bulb Co., Santa Cruz, Cal., August 26, 1919.

When you hear a florist complain of the cost of advertising you may be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Market conditions during the week now under review have not been so good as during the summer. It is curious that the first week in September should have seen a falling off instead of an increase in business. That there has been a falling off is the almost unanimous report.

The same story comes from nearly all retailers as well as from the wholesalers. The reason is not apparent, unless it can be found in the circumstance that an unseasonable hot wave occurred between September 4 and September 9, including some of the warmest days of the year. Naturally the heat had more or less to do with the decrease in the demand for flowers, but it is probable that an equal factor was the circumstance that this was the week many flower buying families came home from summer residences, the week in which schools open and the week devoted to shifting from summer to autumn arrangements, so that attention was diverted, for the moment, from flowers and the things calling for the use of flowers. No doubt there will be a quick rebound.

At the same time the demand went down the supply of stock increased greatly. It has been a long time since the Chicago market has been so heavily supplied as during the first week in September. The rose cuts have been enormous. There still is a considerable percentage of short, soft and open flowers which are extremely difficult to sell, but there also is a large supply of high grade roses that leave little to be desired, little, that is, other than a better market for them. Russell, Premier and Columbia are the predominating varieties. The cuts of Beauties also have increased largely. Beauties sell well, because the public likes them.

Asters, which have been in light supply all season, came in a flood last week. The market was glutted. Much of the stock was better than what the market has been forced to use all summer, but it made no difference. Most of the asters are shipped in from some little distance and the turn in the market was a disappointment, because good prices had been expected.

On the other hand, gladioli, which had been plentiful, have shortened up. There still are considerable quantities of good flowers, but numerous growers are cutting the end of the crop and as a whole the supply is much reduced. From this time on most of the gladioli will come from northern fields.

There is extremely little miscellaneous stock in the market. It is said that another fortnight must pass before there are any large cuts of orchids and valley is in such small supply that it can no longer be had for 10 cents. There are a few giganteum lilies, selling steadily.

Rubrums sell well if good, but many are too poor to command a price. The small receipts of tritomas go quickly to the two or three retailers who favor the red-hot-poker plant. Golden Glow chrysanthemums can be had, but during the last week it has been too warm for mums.

There are increased receipts of carnations and they are not selling so fast as they were when other flowers were less plentiful.

While the market is heavily loaded and prices demoralized, there is general confidence that a day or two of cool weather will set things right again. Having decided that this is to be the biggest season on record, the Chicago market declines to have its faith shaken by a few days of slow business.

There is an adequate supply of greens of all kinds, with no special demand.

That Batavia Deal.

It was reported in last week's Review that Paul Weiss and associates had bought the controlling interest of the Weinberg brothers in the Batavia Greenhouse Co. son; secretary and treasurer, Paul Weiss. Gottlieb Schott is the manager of the greenhouses.

It develops that prior to the sale of the Weinberg interests it had been decided to close September 1 the wholesale store at 30 East Randolph street, which the company has conducted for a number of years, and this the new organization has carried out. The stock is being sold on consignment by the E. C. Amling Co., which also has taken over the fixtures and lease of the wholesale establishment.

The retail store and the glass connected therewith will be sold by the new management.

Various Notes.

It is understood that H. N. Bruns is looking about for a suitable location in the country for a new greenhouse establishment which will enable him to increase his growing operations. The special reasons are his faith in the future of the trade and the fact that he now has his son, Herman, in the business with him.

frigerator department, of which William Abrahamson has charge, took an order from D. C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., while Mr. Horgan was here following the convention, for a large display refrigerator and other fixtures. This sale was confirmed this week.

Peter Duris, manager of the Chicago end of the business of the Central Floral Co., says sales fell off heavily in the State street store last week. His explanation is that it was the week when nearly everyone is buying autumn apparel. Mr. Duris figures that the high prices of clothing, from shoes to hats, now leaves the average person little money to spend for flowers during the week that a wardrobe is being replenished. Mr. Duris thinks the flower business will be improved by the campaigns against the high cost of living, even though some of these campaigns are directed principally against luxuries.

John Poehlmann left September 5 for Stone Lake, Wis., where he will spend three weeks fishing.

A man fainted in Henderson's Seed Store the other day. The suggestion that he probably had just learned the price of Formosa lily bulbs brought out the information that it was a hot day and he was after chicken grits.

Walter Horn, formerly employed by Poehlmann Bros. Co., has returned from France and is again at his old place.

George C. Weiland says that he lost practically all his aster crop this year. The field was at some little distance from the greenhouses in Evanston and he was not able to water, with the result that he got only a few blooms from the early varieties and none at all from the late ones, because of the drought. Next year he intends to have the asters next to the greenhouses and to equip the field with the Skinner irrigation.

The office force of Poehlmann Bros. Co. had an auto outing September 6. They went to Fox Lake and, outside of having about five punctures, they had a wonderful time.

W. J. Smyth is prolonging his stay at his Antioch summer home later than usual this season. From various causes he has spent more time in town this summer than in recent years, so he is taking a fortnight more at the lake.

At Alois Frey's Crown Point establishment the winter crop of snapdragon has been dropped, because of the prevalence of the rust. It is figured that by skipping a season it will be possible to make a fresh start with clean stock.

The E. Wienhoeber Co., Elm street, has ordered a new White truck for October delivery. It will be as handsome a car as there is in the trade and KNOW just how your consignments are sold.

The benefits of our NEW SERVICE come through our system of a "SALES REPORT" that a grower can call his own.

No grower can consign to us on "TRUST" alone. No grower can consign to us "ON CONFIDENCE."

OUR SALES REPORTS deal in Cold Facts as to Market Conditions and are an accounting of every dollar received for every sale made.

A grower can improve his returns in consigning to an exclusive commission house that has stood the test of responsibility for 38 years.

There are few members of the trade who are not acquainted with R. E. Jones, of the Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., and these without exception will be interested in learning that he is now associated with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. as field superintendent. But this does not mean that the Advance Co. will lose the benefit of his experience and acquaintance with the trade. He retains his interest in that company and it will be in a better position than before to serve the trade, as those dealing with either company will profit by the combined experience, power and resources of both. This alliance of these two progressive concerns was prompted by the rapidly increasing activities of both and the broadening field of their operations.

Messrs. Eleston, of the Mullanphy Flower Co., St. Louis, and Zieger, of the Zieger Co., Pittsburgh, were in the market this week.

MOBILE, ALA.

The Market.

During the summer there was a great scarcity of greenhouse flowers. The roses were few and of poor quality, hardly keeping long enough to be used. Consequently, many florists depended almost entirely upon outdoor flowers. It is remarkable that they are able to turn out such good work with the material to be had. Balsams of white, pink and lavender shades wired to toothpicks are used for foundation work by almost all the florists here.

In the early summer maximum and Shasta daisies are the most popular of all flowers, but after their season is over the problems of supplies begin. Gladioli are grown in a limited way, but not so much as they should be. They seem, however, to be coming more and more into favor. They could be had by planting at intervals of a few days from May to November.

Mobile has been a Rip Van Winkle sort of town for a long time, but is awaking from its long sleep. The establishing here of several shipyards and a branch of the United States Steel Corporation in a nearby suburb has brought thousands of people here and has produced such prosperity that there are fine openings for floral and landscape work.

Various Notes.

C. Ravier & Sons have an immense number of Peachblow hibiscus. The bushes are five to seven feet high and loaded with bloom all summer. These plants have to be taken up and carried over winter in a cool house in a dormant condition and put out again after cold weather is over. Mr. Ravier says he would be willing to pay $1,000 for a white hibiscus as good as Peachblow. Torenias are another summer favorite of Mr. Ravier. He also uses a good many crinums and hedychiums or butterfly lilies. This last is a favorite because of its pure white, waxy flowers and pleasing fragrance.

The Minge Floral Co. grows buddleias and forget-me-nots quite extensively, but the last-named are hard to grow satisfactorily in the south unless favorable soil conditions can be found.

The Goodbrad Floral Co. recently exhibited some fine Schwaben gladioli that were grown at Columbus, Miss., where they cost $10 per hundred plus express charges.

Plans are under way for the incorporation of a company to engage in growing flowers on an extensive scale. Gladioli and Mexican tuberoses grown by the acre will be the leaders, with other outdoor flowers to provide an assortment. It is planned to put out from 200,000 to 300,000 gladioli to start with and enough bulblets to be able to double the area the next season.

At Citronelle, Ala., thirty-three miles north of Mobile, is located the nursery and bulb farm of Draime Bros., who for several years have been growing cannas quite extensively. Their fields, now a blaze of reds, pinks and yellows, are a beautiful sight. King Humbert and Queen Helen, or Yellow King Humbert, are leaders in their field. Two new ones not yet on the market, Pink Delight and Peaches and Cream, are also among the finest.

Also at Citronelle is Otto Fehrlin, an expert hybridist, who is specializing in hybrid amaryllis, gerbera, Lilium regale and colored freesias.

Eleven miles north of Citronelle is Deer Park, where L. H. Read & Co. grow flower seeds, bulbs and nursery stock, as well as cut flowers for customers in Mobile and elsewhere. This firm supplies most of the stokesia seed sold in this country, not only in the common blue but also in mixed colors from the company's beds of pink, purple and yellow shades, all of which originated here. Maximum daisies and physostegia are grown extensively both for flowers and plants.

Dasheens and xanthosomas, the new plants rapidly taking the place of Caladium esculentum because of their greater beauty and easier growth, are grown extensively. Many novelties are found growing here, among them over fifty seedling hemerocallis, including many of great promise. Zygadenus, or starflower, is a novelty that is being shipped to Mobile to help out the shortage of flowers at this season; it is a wonderful keeper after being cut. L. H. R.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Business shows an improvement and all varieties of flowers are selling much better than a week ago. The torrential rains we had from August 30 to September 3 ruined many outdoor flowers, being especially hard on asters, and prices on these have advanced sharply, so that good flowers now realize $3 to $4 per hundred, with some fancy greenhouse-grown stock even higher. Gladioli are still abundant, but the quality is not so good. The bulk sell at $1 to $3 per hundred. Some nice dahlias are coming in, but most of the other outdoor flowers are of rather inferior quality.

Roses continue in brisk demand, whites being especially strong. Other favorites are Ophelia, Columbia, Francis Scott Key and Miller. There are a good number of American Beauties coming in, without much call for them. Quite a few carnations are arriving. The majority are, however, of inferior quality and short-stemmed and compare unfavorably with asters. There are practically no sweet peas and Lilium longiflorum is unprocurable. There are, however, some speciosums. Small lots of Chrysanthemum Golden Glow are seen, but they move slowly.

Valley has sold at exceptionally high prices, as much as $16 to $18 per hundred being recorded last week. The few cattleyas coming in wholesale at $18 to $24 per dozen. A few bunches of bouvardia come in, but not enough for the demand.

There was a fair call for asparagus last week.

Ferns are moving well and realizing double the price of a year ago. The old Boston still leads in popularity here.

Various Notes.

J. K. Chandler & Sons, of Tewksbury, have four fine houses of chrysanthemums. They grow pompons heavily and have large batches of Golden Glow, Early Frost, Bonnaffon and other popular sorts. At present they are cutting gladioli and asters heavily.

Columbia, Ophelia and Ward are Thomas Roland's leading trio of roses at Revere at present. He is selling large lots of Smithii, Boston and Teddy Junior nephrolepis from Nahant.

Recent drenching rains wiped out the year's deficiency in precipitation. September 5 temperatures fell to 34 degrees in some parts of New England and we may look for a frost almost any time now.

Patrick Welch returned from Old Orchard, Me., September 6, looking well tanned and fit for business. His firm is handling the finest greenhouse asters I have seen this season and is strong on roses. They are having a good call for plants of the hardy Farleyense fern, Glory of Moordrecht.

Martin Wax reached home from the Maine fishing grounds September 10. Salmon were less plentiful or more wary than usual, but Mr. Wax secured some grand trout, one weighing twelve pounds. This specimen he has had mounted.

John A. Nelson, of Framingham, has all his carnation houses in prime shape and is just starting to pick. He is growing Mrs. Ward more heavily this season.

William Hannon & Son, of Dorchester, have three houses of cold storage giganteum lilies. They have several houses of mums which look fine. They grow all the popular sorts except Bonnaffon, which does not take kindly to Dorchester soil, for some reason.

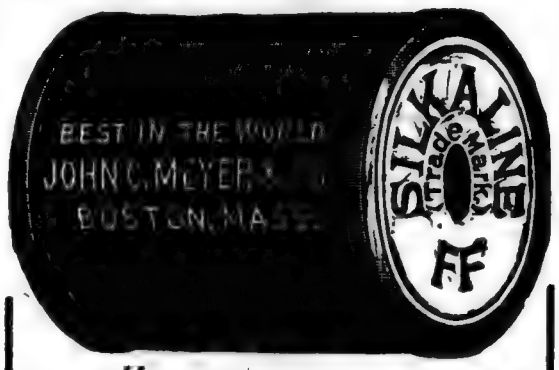
B. A. Snyder & Co. report a most encouraging fall trade opening up. I noticed some nice cattleyas in their ice chests, and splendid shipments of Premier, Columbia, Russell and other roses. Julius Snyder enjoyed the Detroit convention. He made the journey there and back in his auto.

The Boston Floral Supply Co. now has its cut flower department in smooth running order and has an excellent stock of all seasonable flowers. Demand is good for all florists' supplies.



The annual dahlia show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society comes September 13 and 14 and, as dahlias look uncommonly well this season, thanks to abundant rains, the show should be a good one.

C. S. Andem, of Putnam, Conn., is one of the earliest shippers of carnations in quantity. His flowers are now handled by Stephen Green and his leading sorts are Ward, Pink Delight, Matchless and Benora.

At the store of Henry M. Robinson & Co. the best selling roses are Double White Killarney, Francis Scott Key and Ophelia. Both Henry M. and Charles E. Robinson will get back from their vacations this week.

A. H. Hews & Co. have just added a 2-ton delivery truck to those already in use. Labor troubles have harassed them much this year. The last "hold up," if granted, would mean an addition of $15,000 annually to the payroll.

bulbs, as well as some belated French varieties, any day.

Norris F. Comley had 1,000 tons of coal hauled from Boston to his greenhouse establishment at Burlington, Mass., in fifteen days by auto trucks, and considers it the most economical and convenient way to get in his fuel, he being a long distance from a depot. He is growing roses heavily and has a large daily cut of such varieties as Francis Scott Key, Ophelia, Stanley, Double White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty, Radiance and Red Radiance. The last named sort he is enthusiastic over. He has four houses of tomatoes for a fall crop, mostly Terrace Hall, and four houses of sweet peas, which are now starting to show buds.

We got our September heat wave September 7 and for a day or two shade temperatures have been close to the 90-degree mark. Early mums, carnations and roses are already showing the effects of the heat. W. N. C.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

The opening week of fall has been a mighty good second to the closing week of summer for the proud position of the poorest week of the season. Commencing with Labor day, quite generally observed as a holiday, the market had a poor start. Overloaded with the accumulation of two days' receipts of flowers, the slight improvement in business was not nearly enough to overcome the handicap. It is claimed that there was sufficient business for the flowers that came in during the last five days of this week, but with those of the first two days, holidays thrown in, this market was overloaded.

Many persons living in the suburbs who are flower buyers in the retail shops throughout the greater part of the year are sellers now. They offer asters and dahlias and gladioli from their own gardens to their florist. Culture and the frequent rains have made much of this stock good. It is a difficult matter for the retailer to refuse to buy from a good customer who has the nerve to offer "flowers from our own garden." This class of business, usually done at purchasers' prices, tends to depress the market further.

The quantity of flowers coming into town is increasing. It would increase much more with a little encouragement, but that is lacking. Dahlias have come in force to join asters and gladioli. These great outdoor flowers form the mainstay of the market. Roses are the indoor flowers. They are entirely too plentiful. One-half of the fine Columbias and other choice varieties would be enough, while the short-stemmed stock of standard varieties has no chance whatever.

Carnations have reappeared. Cattleya labiata has come. Golden Glow chrysanthemums are a trifle more plentiful. Cosmos is not selling.

A Test.

dent that occurred a few days ago. "Our salesman visited Kennett to try to interest the growers there in tankage. At one place a test was applied that is new to me. A little tankage was put in water, then lime was added. This released the ammonia in the tankage. The smell was fierce. The grower was pleased. He immediately ordered a lot, remarking that there was plenty of ammonia in that tankage."

Bulbs.

Two important incidents in the bulb situation occurred this week. The first was the receipt of a dispatch from the Island of Guernsey stating that the bulb crop there is a failure. This especially affects the so-called yellow Paper Whites, Narcissus Soleil d'Or. The second was the arrival of the first cargo of Dutch bulbs. This means that Dutch bulbs are here on time this season—one month earlier than for the last two years. The invoice indicates that Dutch bulbs will be in full supply. French Paper White narcissi are here, but French Roman hyacinths are a failure this season.

A Lesson.

"Just look at these two catalogues side by side. One has a plain cover, the other has a cover illustrated in colors. Which one would you naturally choose to glance over? Why, the illustrated one, of course. People have criticized the illustrated covers. They said it made a florist's catalogue look like one of our retail catalogues. What if it does? Our sales of the things you see on these covers have increased enormously. Isn't that proof that florists study catalogue covers? When you have a good thing it is good business to let florists see it."

Kentias.

One of the most complete collections of kentias that have ever been seen at Riverton is now on view in the greenhouses of Henry A. Dreer, Inc. The collection comprises both imported and home-grown, in both the leading varieties, Belmoreana and Forsteriana, every size, in large specimens, in medium and in small. The lot reflected great credit on the enterprise shown in assembling them and in their culture.

Various Notes.

H. H. Battles has subscribed $500 to the publicity campaign.

William Dunning, for over twenty-five years with Julius Wolff, Jr., resigned his position September 6.

J. D. Twombly, of Boston, was here recently.

The September meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society was held in the library of Vernon park September 8. Wild flowers were discussed.

Fred J. Michell divides his time between his business in this city and his summer cottage at Avalon, N. J.

Paul S. Keyser, superintendent of parks at Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Keyser were here recently.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons had a large order for the ball of the Knights Templar this week. It was the first big affair of the season.

Harry O. May and John N. May, Jr., of Summit, N. J., visited this city and Norwood with Robert A. Craig September 6.

The Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. is receiving wonderfully fine dahlias. The varieties include Juliana, white; Sequoia, bronze; Mina Burgle, red, and George Wolfram, pink and white.

Mrs. J. H. Claus and Henry Claus returned to the city September 2.

The steamer Sloterdyk arrived at this port September 5 with 300 cases of Dutch bulbs for Henry F. Michell.

Fred Hahman was even more of a personage in bee circles than in flower circles. He was a great bee enthusiast and went about much in the interest of the National Bee Association. Phil.

The Market.

Summer flowers are on the wane. The supply of these all through August was small and now it is more so. A retrospect of last month's business shows it to have been a little better than that of other Augusts, in spite of the drought and the scarcity of stock. Poor flowers were plentiful enough; it was the good stock that was hard to procure, but now all flowers are declining.

It is just that time in the year between seasons when there is little to be had. Gladioli and asters are gradually

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Market.

While the cut flower market here cannot be said to have taken on any materially new aspect during the last week or so, there has been a decided quickening of the pulse in the arteries of the trade. This has been due to the opening of the new business year and to the slight drop in temperature, with the resultant improvement in the quality of the stock available. While variety has been lacking, the market has been well supplied, and culls have been conspicuous by their absence. In red roses some good blooms of Milady have been offered, with Mrs. Charles Russell running a close second in favor. Columbia, Sunburst and White Killarney have been in good supply, while of strictly home-grown field stock, public favor has run largely to Cochet and Killarney. Local-grown tuberoses still maintain favor and the quality of the cut has thus far shown no falling off. Really first-class gladioli have been scarce and at present the general class of stock may be said to be mediocre. Gentians, with here and there an orchid bloom, serve to break the general monotony, but the supply is not large and the quality is only fair.

Field Work.

Weather conditions have not been favorable for outdoor chrysanthemums and the continued rains are beginning to have their effect. This is, however, not general and some of the crops are quite up to the standard of previous years. In addition to weather conditions, the lack of really competent labor has been, and still is, a handicap to the grower. The ficus crop promises to be fair and the stock plants are showing up well.

Considerable consignments of bulbs are coming in, both foreign and domestic, the former running mainly to narcissi.

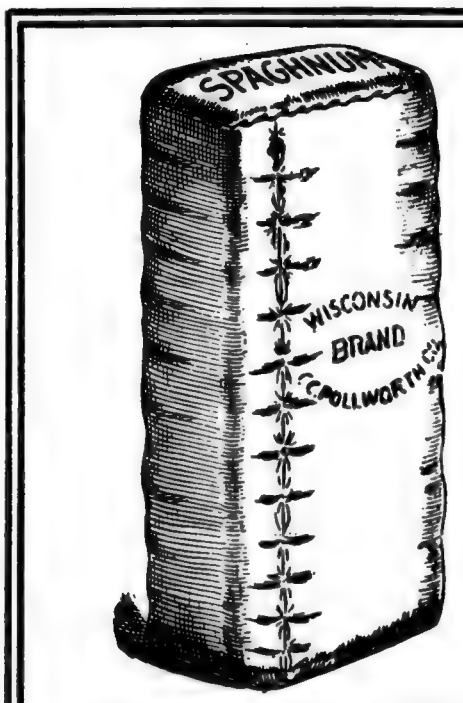
The present embargo on Roman hyacinths and lily of the valley clumps is deplored, as these have always been popular with people here. The aster crop has been largely a failure and dahlias are not doing so well as last year. In some nurseries, however, the latter have shown some improvement of late, but it would be a hard task to pick out any particular variety as superior to the rest.

In greenhouse work, activities are being pushed to the utmost, but there has been little catching up of time lost and stock promises to be scarce.

Various Notes.

Charles Eble and Harry Papworth have returned from the convention at Detroit well satisfied at the treatment accorded and at the prospect of securing the convention for New Orleans in 1921. Mr. Papworth emphasizes the view of many of the florists here that the custom of giving gratis the green trimmings in boxes of flowers will have to give way under the marked increase in cost of everything in the way of trade accessories.



Fire did considerable damage to buildings and plants early last week at the nursery of Chas. Eble, 1500 Upperline street. Outside of the loss of buildings, irretrievable damage was done to some hundreds of kentias and to large decorative Cocos plumosa. E. F.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

As briefly reported last week, the railway strike ended almost as suddenly as it started, and wholesalers were able to ship again. The cooler nights have helped this end of the business, and it is hoped that things will be better from now on. Stock is arriving in better shape. Some of the chrysanthemums now being received are good enough to ship over the long-distance routes. Asters are practically over for the season. Roses are improving, but the prices asked are high and check business. If they were of better shipping quality, the price would not cut so much figure. The late variety of Amaryllis Belladonna has arrived and helps out somewhat. Carnations, both field and greenhouse, are improving right along and are in fair supply. Centaureas and small flowers generally are about equal to the demand. Greens are scarce for this time of year.

Various Notes.

Notwithstanding the troubles of strikes and rumors of strikes, there was joy in the home of John Polder, of Polder Bros., Montebello, August 27, when Mrs. Polder presented her husband with a fine baby girl. Best of all, both mother and child are progressing finely.

Dan MacRorie, of the MacRorie-McLaren Co., San Francisco, was a visitor last week, having driven down in his White touring car on a purchasing trip.

Mrs. Maude Smith Williams, of Buffalo, N. Y., who had been staying at San Diego, visited Los Angeles and Pasadena last week. Mrs. Williams bought strawflowers and everlastings for her business and arranged for a firm of growers in San Diego to grow her supplies.

Harry Friend is back again on the job at Wright's Flower Shop. After his vacation, during which Mr. Friend took all the prizes for tennis at Catalina, Coronado and other places, he and his family were unlucky enough to contract a bad case of ptomaine poisoning, which kept them under the doctor's hands for some time. But all are well again now. Anton Graalfs, of Wright's Flower Shop, left last week for a hunting trip.

Mr. Williamson, office manager of W. Armacost & Co., is away on a trip north among the big trees.

F. H. Howard, of Howard & Smith, returned this week from his European trip. J. D. Eisele, of H. A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, accompanied him.

W. G. Martin, head gardener for the Southern Pacific railway, is wearing a big smile these days, since Mrs. Martin presented him with a fine boy August 21. Both baby and mother are doing well.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

With some restriction in regard to variety of cut flowers, the local market last week was in fairly good condition, with quantities of chrysanthemums forming the main stock. The opinion was expressed by a number of retailers that the early cutting of chrysanthemums has resulted in an oversupply of the flowers for San Francisco trade. Except in shipping orders they are moving slowly, but the demand for chrysanthemums from outside points is strong enough to clean up each week's cutting.

Asters are becoming poor in quality, but there is still a large amount of these flowers on the market. They are popular this year with the retailer as a decorating feature, the strong colors lending themselves in a pleasing manner to the vogue for distinctive effects in color combinations.

The rose crop is decidedly off with most of the growers, only a few sending in any good stock. Good carnations, too, are scarce at the present time, although a few blooms from the new crop are making their appearance.

Orchids still remain in the background and gardenias are on the rare list also. Cyclamen is being widely used with pleasing results in corsage bouquets.

Potted flowers are difficult to get hold of, but greens, both potted and cut, are improving in quality and quantity. A number of the wholesale depots are displaying more of this stock than has been shown for some time.

The arrival of the fleet resulted in a fair number of decorating contracts, which were rather evenly divided among the local trade. Several banquets and luncheons given during the week were the stimulus for decorative schemes on a large scale, and for functions of this kind yellow chrysanthemums were a happy choice for the carrying out of the California idea of gold and sunshine.

Various Notes.

A publicity feature of the dahlia show which has attracted interest in the event was arranged by Phil Hastings, who is attached to the affair in the capacity of publicity director. A number of attractive young women taken from the ranks of the Follies, appearing nightly at Rainbow Lane in the Fairmont hotel, were escorted to the dahlia farm of Frank Pelicano, where a photographer secured several pictures

POINSETTIAS

Thousands of my one quarter million blooms will be ready in October. Buy them direct at the field, Hacienda Park, Hollywood, Los Angeles. This is the place to get daily fresh flowers that never were short on water. How to get them: First, come with your truck; or, Second, send the real cash order weeks ahead; or, Third, on short notice, the only sure way, telegraph the cash. Your cash ahead in my hands must show me how much money I have to spend ahead to make the whole rush business go smooth. There is no other way for me and for you to become masters of the situation, and to have the flowers cut, shipped and in your store on the day you want them. Cash is king and gives you here the explanation for my strict low prices in our present time when the dollar is worth only 50 cents. All this is what has been learned from long and bitter lessons.

Samples not less than ½ dozen at $1.50 prepaid and only when ordered at the beginning of the season. Large orders are better than samples even. The grades vary during the season even with my best customers who take the whole season just No. 1.

One price for the whole season: 9c, 12c, 15c, and 18c apiece. No charges for boxes or packing. F. O. B. Los Angeles.

As I hardly can afford to make trips this fall to Northern California, I ask all my old customers to send me orders, best for the whole season, now. He who has changed his address please mark this special.

Note the new prices on truck loads from the field, 25 per cent less. Telegraph ahead. Telephone 579222.

of the fair maidens posed artistically among Mr. Pelicano's prize blooms. The photographs appeared the following day in one of the daily newspapers and created much favorable comment.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. have been kept busy with fleet decorations. One of the largest decorating contracts handled by the firm was for the banquet given at the Fairmont hotel on the evening of September 1 by the city officials to the visiting dignitaries. The speakers' table, arranged in the shape of a horseshoe, was decorated with a mass of Dr. Tevis dahlias, while the rest of the tables were decorated in gold-colored chrysanthemums. This firm has also undertaken the task of keeping the suite in the Palace hotel occupied by Secretary Daniels a bower of flowers during the week of his stay in San Francisco. California blooms, including chrysanthemums, dahlias and roses, are being used throughout the suite.

At the officers' ball at the Civic auditorium on the evening of September 2 the stately, dignified manner of decoration was the subject of much favorable comment. The Misses Warren had charge of this feature of the entertainment in honor of the officers of the fleet and the rather difficult task of decorating the huge assembly hall was a success in every way. Quantities of greens, many of which were donated by the park, were banked about the balcony and corners of the great room, eliminating the usual effect of bareness. Garlands of salal were strung along the walls, with drops of purple asters between each garland. The main entrance to the ballroom was flanked with stately urns filled with masses of purple asters, while at regular intervals about the circular room bordered by the boxes were set pots of cypress arranged in true Italian manner. Separating the boxes were hedges of evergreen on a foundation of wire, while the same manner of arrangement was carried out in the balconies. The stage which held the musicians was simply decorated with urns holding cerise and lavender asters linked together with garlands of salal. To the right and left of the stage alcove tall cut trees and shrubbery gave the impression of a dignified landscape.

The Nelligan Sisters, at 1203 Sutter street, signified their welcome to the fleet by an American flag made entirely of red, white and blue cape flowers. The flag was placed in a bank of potted ferns and occupied an entire window of the establishment.

Joseph's shop, on Grant avenue, presented a most attractive appearance last week. The 5-story building was decorated with window boxes filled with masses of purple asters and yellow chrysanthemums. G. Wagner, of the decorating staff, achieved an exceedingly successful window last week with a color scheme of blue and orange. A sheaf of oriental pods, the seed pod of the Japanese iris, which, half open, displays a brilliant orange-scarlet seed, was arranged fan-wise in one corner of the window, while a huge mass of chrysanthemums, relieved with masses of maidenhair fern about the base of the vase, gave the necessary height to the entire display. A number of oriental objects of art were used to accent the color note wherever necessary. Mr. Wagner leaves this week for a vacation of a month or six weeks. After spending a week at the beaches in southern California, he intends leaving for the east, calling on the trade in a number of the more important cities

A. O. Stein furnished the decorations for a dinner party given by Mrs. Geo. T. Mayre, of Burlingame, to fifty guests during fleet week. Larkspur, snapdragons and pink roses were used, with corsages composed of cyclamen.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is shipping quantities of chrysanthemums from the local depot. Chrysolora and Monrovia are proving good shippers, according to Henry Avansino.

Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia, called on the trade last week. Mr. Reukauf is finishing a western tour and states that everywhere he has been he was impressed with the general condition of prosperity.

INDIANA STATE FAIR.

Flower Exhibits Excellent.

The Indiana state fair was held a week earlier than usual, beginning September 1, and lasted a day longer than usual. The floral display was especially attractive. In spite of the scarcity of good blooms, the exhibits of cut flowers were excellent. In this class were roses, carnations, gladioli, asters, dahlias and cannas. In all of these competition was keen.

The two big prizes were those for the 100 square feet of potted plants most effectively arranged and for the best large floral arrangement. The Roepke Floral Co. received the blue ribbon on the former, having an elaborate collection of unusual plants, including crotons, araucarias, palms, ferns, asters and various other fancy-leaved plants. E. E. Temperley took first prize on the floral arrangement with a large and handsome piece, on which the words, "Say It with Flowers," were formed of pink carnations interspersed with tiny rosebuds against a background of white asters. Setting this off, as a sort of frame, was a scroll of flowers shading delicately from white to a deep pink. Asters, gladioli, roses and gold-banded lilies were used for this. An effective bow of white tulle edged with shaded green ribbon completed the design.

The Roepke Floral Co. took second prize with an attractive willow piece, a fernery, aquarium and bird-cage in one, which was massed with Sweetheart and Ophelia roses.

Potted Plants.

Some excellent potted plants were displayed. Baur & Steinkamp had some exceptionally well grown coleus and an enormous Adiantum cuneatum that was exceptionally beautiful. E. E. Temperley's collection of ferns, begonias and variegated-leaved plants was splendid. The Roepke Floral Co. received the blue ribbon on a fine specimen of the crested form of nephrolepis. This firm and Walter Lewis were the only exhibitors of rubrum lilies.

The made-up work always attracts the most attention. The wreaths, vases, baskets and brides' bouquets catch the eye of the public, who had no cause for disappointment this year, as the display was larger and better than that of last year.

The Awards.

The prizes were awarded as follows:

PLANTS.

Display of potted greenhouse plants (100 square feet)—Roepke Floral Co., first; E. E. Temperley, second; Walter Lewis, third.

Collection of ferns—E. E. Temperley, first; Roepke Floral Co., second; Walter Lewis, third.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, B. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

C. B. KNICKMAN'S arrival in Japan is reported in recent correspondence.

THE concluding shipment of Paper Whites, the last of the 1919 crop for America, is afloat, due at New York this week.

THE first shipment of giganteum bulbs is scheduled to start for the United States on the boat which sails from Yokohama September 13.

THE death of Ludwig Heyn, proprietor of the seed firm of Conrad Appel, Darmstadt, Germany, is recorded in the obituary column this week.

THE Everette R. Peacock Co., Chicago, has increased its capital stock from $100,000 to $200,000, to provide funds for its rapidly increasing business.

THE Wisconsin Pea Packers' Association will hold the next annual meeting at Milwaukee, November 11, 12 and 13. The Hotel Wisconsin will be headquarters.

ANTHONY C. VAN DER SCHOOT, Hillegom, Holland, received a visit from J. W. Elliott, of the Elliott Nursery Co., Pittsburgh, when he visited Holland recently on his European trip.

THE official roster of W. H. Small & Co., Inc., Evansville, Ind., is: President, W. H. Small, first vice-president, secretary and manager seed department, G. M. Purcell; second vice-president, M. D. Helfrich; treasurer and manager grain department, L. E. Steffee.

MANY seedsmen attribute the failure of the 1919 season to come up to their sanguine expectations in part at least to their having cut down on catalogues, in size, elaborateness and in number distributed. Consequently there is a disposition to return to pre-war standards for 1920, in spite of high costs.

FIRST DUTCH BULBS ARRIVE.

The first of the season's Holland bulbs arrived on the steamer Verentia, which reached New York from Rotterdam August 30, with a cargo almost entirely composed of bulbs. The shipments this year are much earlier than those of last year, the first coming more than a month sooner than they did the previous season. The consignments on the Verentia were as follows:

INSPECT BULBS AT DEALERS'.

After consideration and experience of the difficulties involved in following the federal regulations requiring the inspection of imported bulbs, the state inspectors are taking steps to simplify procedure. The present plan is to inspect the bulbs when they arrive at the seed houses or bulb dealers', allowing reshipment under state certificate without the necessity of making out duplicate notices as required under federal regulations.

At Chicago Chief Inspector P. A. Glenn has detailed H. L. Berline, with headquarters at 1620 North La Salle street, to handle the work of inspection until September 15. Mr. Glenn's plan of dealing with the situation is outlined by him as follows:

We cannot hope to follow up small shipments all over the state for the purpose of inspecting them. One man in Chicago can inspect all the large shipments which come to Chicago while in the hands of the wholesalers or other persons who distribute this stock to the local greenhouses over the state. When thus inspected the shipments are released from any further federal regulations as to sending out of notices of shipments and may be reshipped under state regulations. The state regulations require that each package bear a certificate of inspection. Certificates of inspection will be furnished upon inspection of these shipments by the state inspector and wholesalers may make as many copies of these certificates as they need for the purpose of reshipping the bulbs. A copy of the certificate should, of course, be attached to every package of bulbs reshipped. The inspections thus far have disclosed the fact that a good many shipments, especially of lily bulbs, are more or less infested by mites. I have been quite willing to allow shipments, though mites were found in them, to be reshipped to points within this state, but naturally did not feel justified in releasing them for shipment into other states without knowing whether this would be agreeable to the authorities in other states. I have received information from the authorities in a number of other states in regard to this within the last day or two and they have all expressed a willingness to permit shipments of bulbs which have been passed by our inspector in this state to come into their states if accompanied by a certificate of inspection issued from this office. They, however, requested that the wholesalers send them notice of shipments.

I believe this method of handling the situation will relieve the wholesalers of much extra work, as it will do away with the sending out of legal notices required by the federal regulations.

White Hardy Amaryllis

THESE bulbs can be kept dormant in pots all winter, or set 5 inches deep in a garden where the temperature is not lower than 10 degrees below zero. The flowers are pure white and have the most delicate fragrance. Fine for design work. Bulbs can be brought up and slightly forced in spring and will bloom in June, at a time when white flowers are scarce. They bloom outdoors through July and August. Flowers can be cut when bud breaks sheath and held in refrigerator; when brought out flower will bloom in 48 hours. This is not an Ismene.

BULBS: By mail, 20c each; by express, $15.00 per 100.

VISIT RICE SEED FARM.

Many members of the seed trade took advantage of the invitation of the Jerome B. Rice Co., to inspect the seed crops and trial grounds on its seed farm at Grass Lake, Mich., September 2 to 5. The Grass Lake Stock Seed Farm is located three miles east of the village of Grass Lake and consists of more than 1,200 acres. Howard M. Earl and Charles P. Guelf were at the farm to greet the visitors. As trains did not stop at the farm, automobiles were provided for the visitors, in which they were driven from Grass Lake to the farm.

George E. Starr in a Field of Tomato June Pink at Grass Lake.

At this season of the year the trials are most interesting and the visitors spent hours comparing the merits of the different selections. The farm is under the supervision of George E. Starr, who is well known to the wholesale trade in connection with his work on stock seed selections.

Commercial seed crops are not produced; all the land under cultivation is devoted to the growing of stock seed, which is later supplied to the firm's contract growers. The farm grows stock seed of practically all the vegetable seed sold by the firm.

The following were visitors at the farm:

F. S. Ingersoll, Rocky River, O.
Wesley D. Simon, Philadelphia.
David Don, New York.
Lee Don, New York.

The first part of the book contains pictures and explanations of various complete Skinner systems, in operation in gardens and estates. The closing pages show some of the separate devices, the mechanical details of the Skinner equipment.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

Business was unusually active during the first week in September, and the florists here are much encouraged with this auspicious beginning of the fall season. Shipping trade as well as local trade was excellent, the latter being strong in wedding work, although there was a brisk demand for funeral flowers the latter part of the week. The weather during the last several days has been intensely hot, which is a decided change from the previous cool temperatures, accompanied by almost cold nights. There is also a great need of rain, as the condition of the outdoor flowers testifies. In the greenhouses great progress is being made by the young rose stock. The roses cut during the last week show much better color and longer stems. Some good Shawyer roses are arriving at this market, and Hoosier Beauty is beginning to come in from the young plants, although, as a rule, they are shorter-stemmed than the other varieties.

Asters are the leaders in summer flowers. Gladioli are holding up well in spite of the drought, although there is not a great demand for them. A few carnations from the young stock are arriving, but the demand is light for them. Rubrum and auratum lilies continue to sell well. Lilies of the valley and orchids are scarce.

Various Notes.

The representative of the Roseville Pottery Co., South Zanesville, O., visited the trade last week, with an excellent display of pottery.

Miss S. L. Nelson, secretary of W. J. & M. S. Vesey, will leave this week for Lakeland, Fla., where she will spend a month as the guest of her sister.

Mrs. R. W. Doswell, who has been enjoying a two months' vacation during July and August, has returned to the store to resume her duties. George Doswell was sick last week.

Judge and Mrs. W. J. Vesey and their daughter, Miss Catherine, have returned from a several weeks' sojourn at the lakes in northern Michigan. They made the trip by motor.

HELLER & CO.

Montpelier, Ohio

the Flick Floral Co., has returned from her summer vacation, which she spent at Silver Lake, Ind.

The first meeting of the season of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club was held Monday evening, September 8, at 130 West Wayne street, in the headquarters of the Peace Centennial celebration. The matter of the florists having a booth where they could "Say It with Flowers" at the Peace Centennial, which is to be held in this city for several days beginning September 23, was discussed. The subject of Sunday closing for both the retail stores and the greenhouses was also discussed.

Edgar Wenninghoff furnished the flowers for the Hoffman-Wolfe wedding may be hard to break. R. F. B.

Snapdragons have proved to be the greatest money-makers of any greenhouse plants. Join the ever-increasing ranks and have a house of SNAPDRAGON next winter.

Seed of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00.

Seed of our new Hybrid Pink and of our new Golden Pink Queen, same price.

NATIONAL PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN.

Advertising Contracts Placed.

The fall campaign is now about opening and contracts are being placed with a number of magazines for the insertion of a series of advertisements upon which much thought has been bestowed. The Thanksgiving and Christmas advertisements will be particularly striking. Some of the page advertisements will be in color. The magazines selected are: Literary Digest, Collier's Weekly, Outlook, Independent, Life, Metropolitan, American Magazine, Red Book, Sunset Magazine, Everybody's, World's Work, Munsey's, Review of Reviews, Scribner's, Cosmopolitan and Hearst's, giving a single copy circulation of nearly 18,000,000, or an estimated readers' circulation of 90,000,000, in all of the classes from which flower buyers are commonly drawn.

Contracts for some of this advertising are necessarily placed long in advance of the appearance of the magazines.

HERRICK, Florist Member Florists' Telegraph Delivery

The cost, of course, is heavy, and taxes the resources of our committee, but with what funds are in hand and what is confidently believed will be forthcoming by the time it is required, the committee has felt justified in going ahead with an appropriation of $20,000.

Come Over and Help Us.

When the number of florists who are to benefit from our publicity is considered, our fund today represents but a small part. The campaign has been in operation now about twenty months, and all have had experience as to its efficacy. We know that we are getting the results expected, that our work has been most fruitful. Leaders in other lines of business have watched our progress and have adopted our methods—outside proof that we are working in the right direction, should such proof be needed.

The question now is, will this large body of nonsubscribers come over and help us? There are few who could not afford to subscribe a dollar a week, although we do not ask that much. Many of our subscribers have pledged themselves for yearly sums which scarcely approach 10 cents a week, less than the price of one good cigar nowadays. A subscription of a reasonable amount will not hurt anybody, and it will remove that feeling that something is accepted for nothing. It is not customary for florists to have that feeling; in fact, florists are looked upon as the most generous of tradesmen. Yet, are they generous to themselves or their calling when they hold aloof from a movement which is productive of nothing but good for their industry? If all these non-subscribers would wake up and do what their brethren in the trade expect of them, our efforts could be doubled, and with the doubling would come the advantage of doubled results. Now is the time for the awakening. Let us hear from you.

How well the enthusiasm, which showed conclusively that the florists are more optimistic than ever, will be carried out by the publicity campaign so as to be a credit to the trade, and which all share with pride, was evidenced by those present at the various meetings held. It seems to be in the atmosphere and undoubtedly we shall get that $100,000 which will be needed to carry out our proposed program.

The trade in general is to be congratulated on the progress made during the last year, which is only a forerunner of what is in store for us. Contributions are coming in voluntarily, but many are waiting to be approached before sending.

The finest tribute of reward to those who are working for the publicity campaign (and that includes all) is the recognition of the contribution sent in without being solicited, and the man who does it voluntarily shows the publicity campaign spirit in the ideal way.

Let us all appreciate the standard of the publicity campaign and make our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," hum the world over.

Be glad and rejoice in your neighbor's success. Study his methods. This has been often said. Note the various activities—publicity campaign in so many new lines. Ask yourself why.

Their success is the answer and they are never going to stop. It pays.

Henry Penn,
Chairman National Publicity Campaign.

ST. LOUIS, MO.

The Market.

The local wholesale market experienced a good business week beginning September 1. Labor day and the opening of the public schools helped considerably to use up some of the surplus stock of gladioli and asters.

Last week there was an abundance of seasonable stock coming in daily, with greatly improved quality, especially in roses, of which there are many kinds. The fancy varieties demand a good price, while the short-stemmed stock is jobbed off at low prices. Russell and Ophelia are among the best sellers. Carnations are more plentiful, and also of improved quality in bloom, but short in stem, and range in price from $1 to $3 per hundred. Asters have been a glut all week and all varieties and grades suffered in demand and were jobbed off in big lots at low prices.

There were also many gladioli among last week's consignments, for which the demand is not so heavy as a few weeks ago. Tuberose spikes are having a big demand this season, as consignments have not been so large as in former years.

Clematis paniculata, cosmos and dahlias are among the other outdoor flowers now coming in, with fair demand.

Lilies, orchids and valley seem to have deserted this market of late. There is a fine lot of greens coming in, of which asparagus and flat ferns have a big demand at usual prices.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held an interesting meeting September 3 at the Eleven Mile House. President Charles Meier presided over the meeting and the attendance was large. There were some good discussions on various subjects, including the change of date of the annual picnic; on vote the date was changed to Tuesday, September 9. Members who attended the S. A. F. convention were called on to tell the ones who stayed at home what a good time they missed and the advantages of attending the annual meetings.

The St. Louis Association of Gardeners held an interesting outdoor meeting Sunday morning, September 7, on the grounds of the Missouri Botanical Garden. L. P. Jensen presided over the meeting and was congratulated on all sides on his election as president of the National Association of Gardeners at the annual convention, held at Cleveland, August 26 to 28. The attendance was quite large and many interesting features were brought out in discussion after a trip through the gardens, which was in charge of Messrs. Lurie and Pring.

The officers of the Florists' Club were entertained by J. J. Beneke at his home September 4, when an interesting program was made up for the next week's club meeting, which the trustees decided would be held at Belleville, Ill., on the grounds of Gust. W. Grossart. The old as well as the new officers were present. Some big feature meetings are planned for the fall and winter months. President Hummert offered an attendance prize. Those present were A. H. Hummert, Jules Bourdet, F. A. Windler, J. J. Windler, Oscar Ruff, A. S. Cerny, W. A. Rowe, Alex. Lurie, W. C. Smith and the host. A pleasant evening was spent and refreshments were served.

The florists' publicity committee will meet at headquarters, 1306 Pine street, Tuesday afternoon, September 16, at 2 o'clock. Publicity for the fall and winter will be discussed, and Chairman Bourdet requests all of the fifteen members to attend. Secretary Beneke has been requested to send out special notices to all members. President J. F. Ammann, of the S. A. F., will also be in attendance.

The home of John L. Koenig, of the Koenig Floral Co., 4479 Clarence avenue, was robbed by burglars September 4. Jewelry valued at $600, the property of Mrs. Koenig, was taken.

the public school gardens, held an exhibition of vegetables grown by the children at Forest park August 30, which was attended by 7,000 children, composing the community school gardeners. Many prizes were offered. A. H. Hummert and L. Jules Bourdet were the judges of the exhibition.

A new store was opened last week at Grand and Florissant avenues, to be known as the Aurora Florist. Fred Koenig is the proprietor. The fixtures are all in white, with splendid decorations.

R. Eymann, an old and respected gardener, died at his home on Gravious road last week, at the age of 75 years. Mr. Eymann was the father of Mrs. August H. Hummert and was well known by many in the trade.

Samuel Roth, who has been buyer for Grimm & Gorly for the last year, has resigned and has taken over the management of the Famous-Barr floral department and has already made many changes which were needed. Mr. Roth reports that the first week showed improvement, especially in the plant sales.

J. S. Wilson, of Des Moines, Ia., head of the J. S. Wilson Floral Co., who was formerly a resident here, spent a few days in the city renewing old acquaintances.

Paul Klingsporn, of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, also spent a few days here last week looking over the wholesale market.

In the Labor day parade September 1 there were many attractive floats decorated with flowers. The one that represented Vandervoort's floral department was given the first prize, which speaks well for the artists in that department.

now that L. P. Jensen has been elected president of the National Association of Gardeners.

Otto Klinger and Charles Hahn are now the buyers at the wholesale market for Grimm & Gorly.

Albert Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., and Mrs. Gumz are motoring on a western trip as far as Denver. They will be gone two weeks.

F. C. Weber, Jr., with Mrs. Weber and son, C. A. Kuehn and family, and Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Gorly, were the last of the conventionists to return home, having spent their time since the convention at northern lake resorts.

H. G. Berning had an unusually large shipment of asters, roses and gladioli last week. While the market is somewhat unsteady, the demand is quite satisfactory here.

Fred Michel, designer for George Waldbart, has returned to his post after a two weeks' vacation trip in company with Mrs. Michel.

The Market.

Business is about the same as last reported, with plenty of stock of all kinds. The sale of roses has increased, while the sale of gladioli has fallen off considerably.

The market has been well stocked during the last week and a good amount of stock has been moved each day.

especially the specials and fancy grades. Premier roses are of wonderful quality, of good color and sturdy of stem; they are usually all sold before they reach the market. Ophelia is plentiful, but not in oversupply; the same is true of Sunburst, Shawyer and Killarney. White roses have been scarce and not enough for orders.

Carnations are coming along well, but as yet there is no sale to speak of. The blooms are good, but the stems are short.

Asters are in oversupply. The best are sold and the poorer ones glut the market. Gladioli are poor in quality and their sale is small. A good assortment of garden flowers other than those mentioned are to be had, such as cosmos, celosia, helenium, zinnias, gaillardias and calendulas, which help out for basket work.

The market is overstocked with maidenhair ferns; asparagus is in good demand.

State Fair Flower Display.

Several florists have exhibits at the Michigan state fair. Beard Bros., on West Fort street, exhibited Boston ferns and other plants, also a bride's bouquet, which won second prize.

E. A. Fetters had arrangements of cut flowers and a bride's bouquet, which received first prize.

The Mount Clemens Bulb Co., a new concern at Mount Clemens, Mich., had an elaborate display of gladioli and gladiolus bulbs. The display attracted much attention from the crowds at the fair.

Harry Smith, located on Woodward avenue next to the fair grounds, also had an exhibit, which, while not large, was well staged.

The palms and ferns decorating the main building were supplied by the Highland Park Floral Co., of which H. Wurstrow is the proprietor.

Several nurseries had stock on display, the Pontiac Nursery Co., I. E. Ilgenfritz Sons Co. and the Greening Nursery Co.

Various Notes.

Albert Stahelin continues to bring in a great number of gladioli. He is cutting Premier roses which cannot be excelled, being of good color and sturdy stems. He also has started to cut his now crop of Ophelia and Ward roses, for which he is famous.

White Bros., of Medina, N. Y., are shipping choice Ophelia, Shawyer, Maryland, Killarney and Sunburst to this market.

Jerome Stock is cutting a large number of good gladioli.

Miesel Bros., 810 St. Clair avenue, is cutting some of the best asters in the market.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The Rochester Victory exposition and flower show have been held during the last week and consequently the usual amount of business has not been done. However, stock has been moving satisfactorily and the markets have cleared up most of the consignments each day. Throughout the week the weather has been ideal and great crowds have been in attendance at the horse show. Transient trade has been good, but is lacking in spirit. With last week's event gone, there is a possibility that business will pick up again and everyone settle down for the fall and winter trade. We are now beginning to see large quantities of gladioli on the market and so far their quality is good. Favorable weather has brought them along almost to perfection. Some of the varieties have wonderfully large blooms and the coloring this season seems better than ever. Many growers are specializing in gladioli with much success in this locality. The supply of asters is large, but does not begin to come up to the usual supply of other seasons. Prices continue to be good for good stock, but inferior grades are sold for what they are worth. The demand for orchids is not large. Roses are plentiful and good, selling at from $3 to $10 per hundred. A slight scarcity of white ones is noticed, but pinks and reds are plentiful. Maryland is in abundance and sells well. Francis Scott Key is good at this time of the year. A fair quantity of Hydrangea paniculata is reaching us daily and sells well. Carnations are entirely out of the market for a while. Quantities of calendula, hardy chrysanthemums, gypsophila, African daisies, cosmos, montbretia, heliopsis, artemisias, delphiniums, larkspur, statice and other annuals clear at summer prices.

The green goods market shows an ample supply in asparagus, galax and hardy ferns, but good smilax is a scarce article.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Hart and family are taking an automobile trip through the Adirondack mountains.

Miss Jane Morris, bookkeeper for H. E. Wilson, is away on a short vacation.

Herbert Greensmith, of Cincinnati, O., was visiting in Rochester last week. Mr. Greensmith came from England a great many years ago and it was after locating in Rochester that he started out with one-quarter acre of land to work up the improved strain of American asters in this part of the country while employed by James Vick's Sons.

Mrs. Ethel M. DeKlyne, of George B. Hart's force, is taking an automobile trip to Binghamton, accompanied by her husband and relatives.

All the uptown florists made excellent window displays for horse show week. A floral horseshoe was seen in practically every window. At John B. Keller Sons' a miniature race track as well as a horseshoe attracted much attention.

Morris Hammer, of James Vick's Sons, is away on a three weeks' motorcycle trip to Kentucky.

Will H. Dildine, president of James Vick's Sons, and several of his employees went in a body to the funeral of George Arnold, which took place September 6 at 1:30 p. m. Notice of the death of Mr. Arnold appears in this week's obituary column.

Gladiolus Show.

The third annual gladiolus show, held at the Capital National bank last week, was pronounced a great success by all who saw it.

The number of the cheaper flowers was less than last year, but the display of good varieties was the largest ever shown here. The common varieties were absent. Many new and prominent varieties were on exhibition and the public showed its appreciation by making a study of the merits of the different varieties and checking the favorites on printed lists that the bank furnished. The purpose of these lists was to enable the people to remember what to order in bulbs next spring.

Harry Saier, among other good specimens, showed several of Vaughan's new seedlings from the Ovid gardens.

The Lansing Floral Co. had a good display, more as a floral exhibition than a gladiolus study.

The Smith Floral Co. did the general decorating with ferns, palms and smilax in their usual efficient way and made a fine setting for the general show. They also showed a fine exhibit of gladioli and other flowers.

The gladiolus growers made the big show of named varieties and many were the hues of the banks of flowers arranged on a series of steps against the marble walls of the bank.

Mrs. Walter J. Whitely had a good exhibit of choice varieties, showing many kinds that were new to this vicinity.

Fred Baumgrass had an assortment that was one of the big attractions of the show. He had a large number of flowers, all of which were neatly labeled.

The Floracroft Gladiolus Gardens, which have a large acreage south of Lansing, probably had the largest display of the show. They showed about seventy varieties, many of which were new. Their large baskets of Prince of Wales, primulinus, Rogue Torch and Pink Perfection were favorites with many visitors. The pure white varieties were also popular. L. W. H.

BUFFALO, N. Y.

The Market.

Supply continues to be in advance of the demand. The week-end leaves an accumulated stock of roses, gladioli and asters. The biggest part of this stock is of good quality, due to the cool weather we have been having for some time. The aster crop is showing much improvement in the late varieties. Though most of them have short stems, they are in demand for funeral work on account of their large flowers of excellent substance. The ruling price for the best is $3 per hundred. Some late indoor plantings are supplying the demand for long-stemmed asters.

The rose cut is increasing rapidly, and from the shipments of short-stemmed stock, cut from young plants, it is evident that the growers have turned their attention to improved varieties. Columbia, which was sent in by only one grower last year, is being planted by all who can get stock, so that the market probably will have a good supply of this rose the coming winter. Premier is being planted by a few. The growers do not seem to grasp the value of improved varieties of stock, and it has been a rule for some time that old varieties have still been grown in general when progressive growers have entirely discarded them. During the last year Columbia has been bought by one shop. This has caused the rose to be entirely absent from competitive buying and growers who have not been on the lookout have missed its value, so that as yet the majority know little about it and some do not even know its color.

Laddie carnations last winter were sent in by one grower, who had enough plants to cut from twelve to fifty flowers a day. As these arrived, every morning, they were put with the purchases of a shop which had placed a steady order for them. In this way little has been seen of Laddie by either the growers or retailers.

But since the growers have been having meetings and a chance to talk shop together, there has been improvement in many establishments. Prices have been almost uniform. And where one could not come up to the standard price he was not long in concluding that the trouble was in the quality of his stock.

Last year, with an unusual shortage, the grower with poor stock got far too good a price. As a rule he has held out for top prices and in many cases he got what he wanted, but with increased production henceforth he will have to produce good stock if he is to get any of the cream, and most of the growers realize it.

Various Notes.

At the Lehde & Schoenhut greenhouses, on the French road, potting Boston ferns is a specialty these days. The Lehde & Schoenhut ferns have a reputation as the best on the market. Most of the outdoor frames are full. As soon as the housed plants are potted, these will be benched and grown for the Christmas market.

The Market.

Ideal weather conditions are making stock more plentiful and satisfactory. Roses are improving wonderfully. Although this year's asters have not been up to standard, owing to the continued dry weather and heat, there are some good ones now and those shipped in are excellent. Little change is noted in prices, roses ranging from $6 to $12 per hundred, asters from $2.50 to $4, and gladioli $6 to $8. Carnations are in limited supply at $2 per hundred.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll & Co. sold the first of their new-crop carnations last week. The Pinehurst Floral Co. also sent in a few carnations. Although short-stemmed, both lots were good and found ready buyers.

Henry Kusik is receiving some fine Premier roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Sperry, of Neodesha, Kan., were in the city a day on their return from Chicago. Leonard Coon, of Lexington, Mo., was also a visitor.

Lloyd O. Monson, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., has been ill several days.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Rock, Lawrence Rock, Mrs. Margaret Simpson and Miss Elizabeth Simpson have returned from a motor trip to Alexandria, Minn.

Al Gumz, of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., St. Louis, and Robert Newcomb, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, Burlington, Ia., visited the trade last week.

H. W. Blake, secretary of the Pinehurst Floral Co., came up from Pleasant Hill September 2.

L. & L. Koppenhaver have leased the flower shop and greenhouse of J. B. Masson, in Kansas City, Kan. Mr. Masson is devoting his attention entirely to the wholesale business at Bethel, Kan.

William Wade and Hugo R. Neff spent Sunday, September 7, at Pleasant Hill, Mo.

Mrs. T. A. Moseley has had the busiest summer she has ever known. One of her orders last week was for a big wedding, where the ceremony was performed outdoors. The setting called for a large quantity of flowers.

Tuesday night, September 2, was Flower night at Electric park, where a Mardi Gras festival is being held to close the season. Miss Lorene Prout, wearing a dress of sunflowers weighing twenty pounds, won first prize of $15. The second prize of $10 was divided between Miss Junita Griebel, who wore a dress of carnations, and Miss Marie White, who wore one of roses. The third prize of $5 was awarded to Miss Aleen Campbell, whose dress was made of wistaria.

A flower parade as one of the features of the Harvest Musical Festival week, which opens October 26, is being arranged by the Million Population Club. Prizes will be offered for the most handsomely decorated cars and the club will aim to have the parade rival the famous floral fetes of the Pacific coast cities. Kansas City has not had a flower parade on a large scale for some time. Some

THE Southwestern Nurserymen's Association will meet at Denison, Tex., September 24 and 25.

CHESTER H. MOON has purchased twenty-seven and one-half acres at Leavenworth, Kan., and will grow peonies and ornamental nursery stock.

BIG PROGRESS IN IRIS.

"Not many realize how great has been the advance in the iris in the last few years," said William A. Peterson, of Peterson's Nursery, Chicago. "If one were to compare a list of the twenty-five best peonies made five years ago with such a list made today, there would be only five varieties or so that would be different. But if I made a list of the twenty-five best irises today, there would be fifteen or twenty not on such a list of five years ago, so great has been the improvement of this flower."

AT THE DUNDEE NURSERIES.

A trip through the grounds of the D. Hill Nursery Co., at the little town of Dundee, Ill., is of much interest to the trade visitor.

This nursery was founded sixty-four years ago and has grown rapidly, so that it now occupies 450 acres. The writer was met at Elgin by the firm's able sales manager, Mr. Vallery, and driven to their elaborate offices, then to the packing sheds, which are most modern in all their details—a system long since perfected with all the latest appliances.

The seed beds contained thousands of seedlings under cover and carefully culled out, true to form. The transplanted seedlings, just beginning to show character, are still under cover. The propagating beds, thoroughly equipped for rooting such evergreens as are possible to root, contain conifers showing root form. From here they are lined out, six inches apart, into larger frames for cultivation.

The growing stock, cultivated up to the last minute, is laid out in blocks for immediate sale, so true and symmetrical that one can imagine he gazes upon a sea of green. Then come the blocks in rotation of the larger specimens for landscape planting, which bear tags giving their height and price, as well as variety. Countless blocks, as far as the eye can see, contain numerous varieties of evergreens for window boxes. This stock is classed in three forms, tall, medium and dwarf, which are sent out, where collections are required, one-third tall, one-third medium and one-third dwarf. Four large blocks are given over to evergreens for tubs. This stock is spaced far apart and sheared closely, then root-trimmed so scientifically that one can scarcely tell it has been moved. These, like all the other stock, are burlapped carefully and go to the trade intact.

The firm has recently acquired more land along the railroad tracks and is building shipping rooms with a spur track entering to them. J. A. L.

EUROPEAN BARBERRY DANGER.

Japanese Variety Safe.

The European barberry has been used for ornamental planting in many places and in some cases has escaped and become thoroughly established in open wood and pasture land. This European, or common, barberry is such a factor in the spread of black rust that public sentiment should condemn its existence and nurserymen assist in its extinction.

The European barberry is not a particularly handsome shrub. It is surpassed in every way by the Japanese barberry, Berberis Thunbergii, which is perfectly safe from insects and plant disease. These two barberries can be easily distinguished. The European form has leaves with spiny margins and fruits in clusters, like red currants, whereas the Japanese variety has leaves with smooth edges and berries singly or in twos, like gooseberries. The Japanese variety grows more compactly and makes a superior hedge. No one having the Japanese barberry need feel any alarm, but the European barberry is dangerous even in a town or city, since the seeds may be distributed by animals or birds and thus plants may grow where they do damage to our most important food crops.

Wheat that has been the victim of black rust via the European barberry bush early in the season has a reddish appearance on the stem. When the plant matures it turns black. What farmers sometimes call red rust is nothing more than the black rust in its early stage. Black rust has caused a marked cutting down of the wheat yield in some places. In infested areas some farmers did not harvest more than seven bushels to the acre, on account of the severe at-

IBOLIUM

THE NEW Hardy Hybrid Privet

Resembles California Privet in Habit with this added advantage:—

It's as HARDY as IBOTA Privet and will succeed wherever IBOTA thrives.

Name, IBOLIUM, coined thus:—IBO from Ibota and LIUM from Ovalifolium

REGISTRATION

Society of American Florists April 5, 1919.

IBOLIUM Privet is the product of crossing the California Privet (Seed parent) with Ibota, the hardy Chinese Privet.

It is similar in general character to California Privet, being perhaps somewhat more robust in habit of growth. It is inclined to bush more freely from the base than California Privet, a decided advantage.

It can be propagated with the same ease as California Privet either from hardwood or softwood cuttings and is quite able to withstand the abuse incident to the ordinary handling of a hedge plant, both by the Nurseryman and the planter, without serious injury.

Its great claim for the public's consideration as compared with California Privet is its hardiness, taking in this respect from the pollen parent, Ibota, having proven to be perfectly hardy wherever Ibota Privet is hardy. This gives this new hardy hybrid a very extended range of usefulness.

The extreme test as to hardiness was proven out in the winter of 1917-18, when IBOLIUM Privet stood the test without the slightest winter injury side by side with the California Privet which was not only killed to the ground, but in many cases died root and branch.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

IBOLIUM Privet—The above cut is from photo of a plant of IBOLIUM Privet, three years old. Softwood cuttings have been taken from this plant twice this summer. This is the identical plant which was shipped to Chicago for exhibition purposes, was knocking about for at least three weeks and on its return to the Nursery appeared to be little the worse for wear, proving the remarkable vitality of IBOLIUM Privet.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT

American Nurserymen's Association

Chicago Convention, June 27, 1919.

Report of Committee on Plant Exhibits.

Jno. S. Kerr, Chairman.

Your committee is pleased to report upon IBOLIUM Privet, originated and now introduced by The Elm City Nursery Company, Woodmont Nurseries, Inc., New Haven, Conn.

IBOLIUM Privet is the result of cross breeding between the Ibota Privet and California Privet and combines the hardiness of the Ibota with the fine foliage and growth characteristics of the California Privet. Evidently IBOLIUM is quite an acquisition to the privets for northern sections.

Your committee readily commends this new introduction as very meritorious.

JNO. S. KERR,
ROBERT PYLE,
ALVIN E. NELSON,
Committee.

IBOLIUM Privet is ideal for hardy hedge purposes, for training into specimens, general decoration as a tub plant, also in its natural form wherever a tall, dignified shrub is desired. It also thrives well in the shade. It produces freely large panicles of pure white flowers followed by clusters of glossy black fruits making the whole shrub very ornamental. The usefulness of IBOLIUM Privet is almost without limit.

tack of black rust spread by barberry present on their farms.

Danger Long Known.

Up to a few years ago experts were inclined to believe the barberry bush, while an agent for the dissemination of black rust in wheat, might not be an important factor. Now they are convinced it is not only important, but quite disastrous, and the key to the whole situation.

In 1660 France enacted a public law forbidding the planting of barberry. A century later, 1760, the Massachusetts colony did practically the same thing. These early laws against the barberry were the result of observation on the part of farmers, who noted a blacking of the straw when grain crops were planted near barberry hedges. In 1860 scientists proved that the barberry played a definite part in the spread of rust.

The barberry is the intermediate host plant for the black rust. A nation-wide campaign is now being conducted to induce wheat growers to eradicate the barberry bush from their farms and thereby eliminate the black rust, which shrivels the grain and reduces it to an inferior grade, as well as cutting down the yield.

It should be noted that the following varieties of barberry may harbor the rust: B. ætnensis, B. altaica, B. amurensis, B. aristata, B. asiatica, B. atropurpurea, B. brachybotrys, B. brevipaniculata, B. buxifolia, B. canadensis, B. caroliniana, B. coriaria, B. cretica, B. declinata, B. Fendleri, B. Fischeri, B. Fremontii, B. heteropoda, B. ilicifolia, B. integerrima, B. laxiflora, B. Lycium, B. macrophylla, B. nepalensis, B. Neubertii, B. sibirica, B. Sieboldii, B. sinensis, B. trifoliata, B. umbellata, B. vulgaris, including also Mahonia Aquifolium, M. diversifolia, M. glauca and M. repens. C. F. Murphy.

Milwaukee, Wis.—C. C. Pollworth bought a soil and fertilizer pulverizer at the S. A. F. convention. It is the one invented by S. A. Kost, of the W. F. Kasting Co., Buffalo.

Champaign, Ill.—C. F. Swayger, chief gardener of the Illinois Central and Y. S. M. V. railroads, has left for Hot Springs, Ark., and other southern points. His wife and daughter, Marguerite, accompany him.

Quincy, Ill.—Early in August F. W. Heckenkamp had cut nearly the last of a patch of 20,000 gladioli. He retailed them all, at from $2 to $3.50 per dozen, the latter for Schwaben, and considers the crop one of the most profitable he ever has grown.

The Market.

The weather here has been much cooler, with cold nights and heavy rainfall. The Labor day parade caused a great demand for flowers.

Asters are holding out well. The excessive rains, however, have marked many of the white and light-colored varieties.

Various Notes.

Tom O'Brien, formerly for several years at J. J. McManmon's, has bought two greenhouses at Lawrence, Mass., and is planting part with carnations. He intends to grow pompon chrysanthemums.

Frank Callahan, of J. J. McManmon's, has just completed landscaping the grounds at the Dunstable waterworks.

Mr. Parker, foreman for Frank P. Putnam, has the houses all planted and ready for winter. His carnations are in good shape. He says the firm received $25 per hundred wholesale for Laddie last winter and not less than $8 per hundred for other varieties.

Ed E. Randall, general manager at J. J. McManmon's, made arrangements last week for planting a large woolen mill yard. Hardy flowers, ramblers, Boston ivy, evergreens, flowering shrubs, etc., will be used.

Morse & Beals used four delivery cars for their Labor day business. They had an attractive fern window during the summer months, at times using fine specimen adiantums.

Fenton McManmon has returned to Princeton University, N. J., where he is prominent in athletics. E. E. R.

Sturgis, Mich.—M. F. Wright reports business good and asserts that never before has he experienced so many large sales so early in the season. His stock is healthy and looks well, despite the hot, dry weather. Gladioli are selling exceptionally well.

Enid, Okla.—The Oklahoma Floral Co. has recently been organized and plans to erect a range of fourteen greenhouses. The following are officers of the new corporation: President, Clarence Kline; secretary and treasurer, Louis L. Morrell; superintendent, Frank Bieber.

Everything in Begonias is sold out for the present.

ROBERT CRAIG CO., 4900 Market St., Philadelphia

TORONTO, ONT.

The Market.

Business is keeping up and with the increased available stock the florists are in a good position to handle the work. There are some fine yellow chrysanthemums and a plentiful supply of choice asters. Dunlop and Columbia roses are being cut in quantity, so that some beautiful decoration and funeral design work is being executed.

Various Notes.

Many of the florists are preparing to hold reopenings. They have had their stores redecorated inside and out. In many cases new furniture has been added and the stores present a pleasing appearance. This applies not only to the downtown section, but to the stores in the outlying districts as well. Two or three new trucks have made their appearance, as well as some redecorated ones.

The horticultural exhibit in connection with the Canadian national exhibition was an attractive one, although the season was against such a display as would be available now or a little later. All the classes had numerous entries.

November 11 will see the opening of one of the biggest horticultural exhibitions ever held in Toronto. The Horticultural or Transportation building will be used. Prizes for flowers aggregate $2,094. J. J. H.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

While, generally speaking, business and prices are practically normal, trade during the last week has shown a trifle more activity than is usual for this season of the year.

Gladioli, asters and cactus dahlias still hold first place in the cut flower market. Gladioli have been fine this year and are fast growing in popularity, especially America. There has been a decided shortage of white flowers for more than a fortnight, the call for white roses and asters having been disproportionate. Roses are in supply equal to demand, but few new-crop carnations are yet seen, although some of the local growers report that they will begin cutting in ten days at the latest.

Long continued wet weather has about done for the outdoor flowers. Many of the dahlia growers report signs of rot among their plants.

Various Notes.

Charles Hunt, of Burnside street, is closing out his greenhouse business and will devote himself exclusively to the milk business.

Mrs. J. Hilderbrand, of Harrisburg, Pa., has been visiting relatives in this city.

William A. Bowers, Washington street, is installing a goldfish fountain.

Joseph Smith, of the Eastern Wreath Works, has been in New York on a vacation trip.

The annual September show of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be held at the Narragansett hotel September 18 and 19 and will be principally of dahlias, asters and gladioli. W. H. M.

Greenhouse Heating

Subscribers are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

RUN FLOWS ON PLATES.

I intend to erect two greenhouses and have plenty of 2-inch and 3-inch pipe on hand, but cannot make up my mind how to arrange the pipes or how many to use. As it is much handier to place the pipes under the benches than against the wall, I prefer that method. The houses are well protected against severe winds. Will you inform me how much radiation is required for both houses? I intend to heat my adjoining residence with the same hot water boiler. A. S.—Ky.

The sketch shows two houses, 21x60 and 10x60, the former having four benches and the latter two. The walls are of concrete, four and one-half feet high, with eight inches of glass in one wall of the wider house. The larger house should be kept above 45 degrees, while the small house is used for growing vegetable plants towards spring. The outside temperature seldom drops below zero and then only for a day or two.

While all of the pipes may be placed under the benches, we prefer to run the flows on the plates or under the ridge and it will not be found much more difficult. In the larger house we would use three 2-inch flows, with one on each wall plate and the other below the ridge. Seven 2-inch returns will be needed. We would place two under each bench, except the outer bench, where three may be used. Connect the four middle returns with the overhead flow.

In the narrow house use two 2-inch flows and two 2-inch returns. The flows may be on the wall plates or under the benches with the returns.

SIZE OF BOILER NEEDED.

I would like to know what size of boiler will be required to heat a greenhouse 18x75. The fuel used will be wood. Also what size and how many pipes will be required to heat to 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero? Thirty feet from the greenhouse I have a poultry house, which I would like to heat in cold weather. The ground elevation of the poultry house is twelve feet higher than that of the greenhouse. The greenhouse ridge is ten feet high and the side walls are three feet concrete and two feet glass. Both ends of the house have glass. How far must the boiler be below the ground? L. M.—Wis.

To heat the greenhouse described above to 60 degrees about 675 square feet of radiation will be needed. Just how much additional heat will be required for heating the poultry house cannot be determined without knowing the size of the house and the temperature desired.

"Farnsworth Equipped" Florists are Saving Many Tons of Coal Per Day

Reduce the cost of your coal 20% next winter by using the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feed pump and the Farnsworth Closed System machines. The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder is the "greatest coal-saver ever offered the steam plant." It is the master-machine of the Farnsworth closed system, the machine you will eventually buy. It is sold with the Farnsworth guarantee.

The Farnsworth Closed System—the most simple method of feeding water into boilers—and the best. Hundreds of these coal-saving machines have paid for themselves in the course of a few months. It is the last word in handling condensation, the only way—THE FARNSWORTH METHOD. It has saved from $1,000 to $30,000 per year in some big plants in this country and Canada.

The Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder

Front view of 3-inch machine, showing duplex receiving and delivery check valves. Returns condensate with an automatic, continuous flow.

Place the Farnsworth Duplex Boiler Feeder above your boilers—discharge all your high pressure traps directly into it. Any L. P. condensation you have in scattered buildings drain to a Farnsworth Condensation pump, which will pump it to this Duplex Boiler feeder. By this closed system all condensation is held under pressure and fed directly into boilers at a high temperature.

The Double Action Pump—the Wonder Machine

(Note the Simplicity of Our Machines)

Hundreds of installations prove the value of the Farnsworth machines. You may be wasting coal—why not investigate our claims? It will cost you nothing to have our engineers make recommendations. Write today.

Unless it is more than 15x50 it is not likely to require more than 125 square feet of radiation. We would therefore consider a boiler rated for 1,000 square feet as amply large enough for both houses. This would in most cases require a grate twenty-four or twenty-five inches in diameter. If the poultry house is twelve feet higher than the greenhouse, there will be no difficulty in heating it by running a 2-inch flow pipe and connecting it with a coil of about four 2½-inch pipes. Two of these may be used as flows and two as returns. The main return to the boiler should be 2-inch pipe. The mains should, if possible, be run underground and well insulated.

For heating the greenhouse use three 2½-inch flow pipes and eleven 2-inch returns, running one flow upon each wall plate and the other under the ridge. Place the returns in three coils, with four pipes under each side bench and the other three below the middle bench.

It is always desirable to have the top of the boiler below the lowest portion of the returns and considerably more than this will improve the circulation. On the other hand, if this cannot be secured, a fairly satisfactory circulation may be obtained, when the flow pipes are run overhead, if the grate is two feet below the returns.

When using wood in a hot water boiler it is always well to have a long and rather narrow fire pot, in order that wood three feet in length may be used.

SAFE PAINT FOR PIPES.

Which is the best paint to use on hot water pipes to preserve them and at the same time to be safe from injuring greenhouse plants? Would graphite or asbestos paint be injurious to plants?

Bro. Leo.—Ala.

In selecting a paint for use on greenhouse heating pipes, benches, etc., care should be taken not to use any brand in which coal tar in any of its forms is found. For the purpose named any quick-drying forms of mineral or barn paints may be selected. We do not know of any which cannot be used with safety, but the above fact should be kept in mind.

Radiation from the surface of the pipes will be favored if the paint does not form a glaze, as a rough surface radiates more heat than a smooth one.

RAISE MAIN FLOW PIPE.

I am having trouble with my north house. The range is gravity fall from north to south for about eight feet. I use 2-inch pipes for flows and 1¼-inch pipes for returns. There are twelve pipes running each way and it seems as though the water caused by condensed steam from the main goes up to the north end and has to be forced out through the 2-inch flow pipes, which are eight feet above the main pipe. The main pipe lies on the ground. Would it be best to raise the 5-inch main pipe about six feet and then take the 2-inch flow pipe direct from the main pipe?

R. L. I.—Mo.

From the above statement we infer that the reason for the trouble has been found and judge that it may be corrected by connecting the end of the main flow with the end of the main return. We would also favor raising the main flow pipe seven or eight feet and at the same time giving it a slight fall, thus favoring the flow of the condensed steam and its return to the boiler. If this is done, we think that the by-pass need not be larger than one inch. In case the slope of the land makes it impossible to give a fall to the main flow pipe, we would at any rate elevate it as suggested and connect the end with the return.

TO HEAT OKLAHOMA HOUSE.

We are submitting a heating problem for a greenhouse to be erected. The house will be in two sections, each 21x80. One half will be devoted to flowers and the other half to vegetables. There will be 3,840 feet of glass in the roof. The side walls will be four feet of glass and three feet of wood wall, forty feet from the front. The other forty feet of the greenhouse will be six feet of glass and two feet of wood. The north wall and gables will be all wood. This house will run north and south, the grade sloping towards the north making the average height of the side walls eight feet.

We wish you would recommend a suitable heating plant for this climate and give the information necessary for installation. E. G. Co.—Okla.

The temperature required in the greenhouses is not stated, nor is the minimum outside temperature given. We infer that a temperature of 60 degrees will answer for the house growing flowers and 50 degrees for the vegetable house. In making the estimate we considered that the outside temperature seldom dropped below zero. Under these conditions we would suggest a boiler with a rating of 1,600 square feet of hot water radiation be selected and we would also provide radiation to the extent of 800 square feet in the warm house and 600 square feet in the cool house. If these conditions are not correct, the matter can be readily adjusted by using one or two return pipes more or less than suggested.

The Market.

Business is excellent. Flowers are scarce, since the hot, dry weather is cutting short the outdoor crop. Asters are drying up. There are plenty of small, short-stemmed flowers, but long-stemmed stock is lacking. Roses and carnations are improving. There will probably be a shortage of carnations, owing to a shortage of plants.

Various Notes.

Theodore Kuebler expects a short crop of asters because of lack of rain. His chrysanthemums are in fine condition. He will build another house this fall.

O. S. Smith says that he will have to buy heavily to stock up again. He has much difficulty in getting carnation plants.

Mrs. J. C. Elspermann is busy with funeral work and the rebuilding of the greenhouses. The last house has been torn down and will be rebuilt at once.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. reports heavy business. Walter Blackman, in charge at the store, has purchased a new roadster.

Royston & Fenton are preparing for a busy season in coleus, of which they have a fine stock, both of Brilliancy and mixed. They have had their boiler overhauled and a new set of flues installed. They have a batch of Orange King calendulas ready for the market. H. J. Royston is in bad health and unable to attend to any work. He is 76 years of age.

William Halbrooks expects to plant his two houses to sweet peas for this season.

J. D. Carmody, who is 83 years old, is again in fair health—after serious kidney trouble. His doctor says he has still some years to live.

James A. Blackburn, of Mount Vernon, Ind., was a recent visitor, buying material for a small house which he is building, since he is returning to the business after a year's absence from it.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Business is fair. The supply, however, is large and is more than is needed, but the surplus consists principally of short stock and culls. This moves slowly, if at all.

Roses are coming along well and include a substantial number of medium and long-stemmed offerings. Carnations are finding a good market. Choice asters sell readily, while the poor grades sell hardly at all. Choice gladioli are not as plentiful as they have been for several weeks. No Easter lilies and but few rubrum lilies are available. Dahlias are in good supply and have been meeting with a good market. Among other offerings are some outdoor stevia, snapdragon and daisies. Greens are meeting with a good market.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Kyrk celebrated their thirty-fourth wedding anniversary Tuesday, September 9.

C. E. Critchell has been finding a big demand for baskets during the last fortnight.

Among recent visitors were Sam Seligman, representing Schloss Bros., New York city; I. M. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, and Ted Wetterburn, Cleveland, O.

The regular meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held September 8, at H. W. Sheppard's place. C. H. H.

A. J. Horning, formerly of 935 Ludlow avenue, has moved to his new location at Reading road and Joseph street, Bond Hill. He has two greenhouses, each 25x100, under construction. They will be completed about October 1.

FORT WORTH, TEX.

V. J. Davis Entertains.

Wednesday evening, September 3, the florists of Fort Worth were entertained by V. J. Davis, of the Greenwood Cemetery Greenhouses, who is vice-president of the Texas State Florists' Association.

The establishment was decorated with autumn foliage and large baskets of Columbia roses, artistically arranged in groups and on pedestals.

After some well selected songs by Messrs. Shirley and Brokaw and a general good fellowship meeting, Mr. Davis brought out a great number of fine watermelons that had been on the ice four days. These were disposed of in double-quick time. Music and dancing were then the order of the evening. All voted Mr. Davis a good fellow and a hearty entertainer.

There were about eighty present. The local florists as well as a few visitors from out of the city were delighted to have the opportunity of looking over this up-to-date establishment. Greenwood Greenhouses are well equipped and have an excellent stock ready to produce to a full extent this coming season.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

With the advent of September Newark florists are looking forward to increased sales soon. Many returned from their vacations after Labor day and more are coming back each week. It will probably be the early part of October before the usual summer dull period will have disappeared entirely, but from now on the florists expect better business than they have had since the latter part of June. Gladioli, asters and dahlias form the bulk of the flowers offered for sale now, with a sufficient amount of roses to meet the demand. Growers are nearly ready to cut the first of their earliest chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

The duck pool which has been the window feature of the Rosary Floral Co., Market street near Broad street, during most of the summer, is proving nearly as much of an attraction today as it did when first arranged in the early weeks of the summer. Crowds are in front of the window most of the time.

The flower department of Hahne & Co., Broad street, reports business good for this time of the year. There is some funeral work, though it is not quite up to normal.

The Market.

Business was slow last week with the exception of Saturday, which suggested the busy days soon to come. Stock has moved slowly and day after day really good stock has had to be dumped. The aster season this year is late, and now the dahlias are starting to pile in on top of them. Neither asters nor dahlias have been moving to any great extent. Zinnias, calendulas, bachelor's buttons, double sunflowers, strawflowers and baby's breath continue to come in steadily. Carnations have made their debut for the coming season, arriving in good quality, but short in stem. Even they have not cleaned up entirely. The weather during the last few days has been extremely hot and will probably flood the market to a greater extent than heretofore.

A Glazing Putty of Real Value

In all our experience and investigation we had never found a preparation for bulbing over the outside of a greenhouse that was quite satisfactory, until we ran across PERMANITE. This was about four years ago. At that time we set about investigating the merits of PERMANITE and proceeded to watch the results of its application to greenhouse roofs.

Last year we were entirely convinced of its high quality and durability, and accepted the western agency for the sale of these goods.

We applied PERMANITE to hundreds of greenhouse roofs, over almost every part of the United States.

The results obtained were highly satisfactory indeed. Glass roofs of all kinds, both old and new, were made water-tight and air-tight, saving thousands of plants from being spoiled by water dripping on them and saving many hundreds of tons of coal by making the roofs proof against the wind and storms of winter.

We give PERMANITE our unqualified endorsement and recommend it highly for all kinds of glazing.

We have a very large stock on hand in our warehouse and can ship immediately.

To be Rid of Leaf Rollers and Tyers use Insectonos

Insectonos (pronounced In-sec-tō′-nos) is a contact insecticide for the destruction of White Fly, Rose Leaf Roller and Chrysanthemum Leaf Tyer. Numerous growers have been using it for several months—and are so well pleased their recommendation by word of mouth already has caused many other growers to try Insectonos. Ask about it.

Mr. Pearce wrote:

You would certainly be surprised to see my place, as you know that when you were here in June and we syringed the Mums, the air was brown with millers; now the millers are mighty few and far between and consequently the same with Leaf Tyers. Insectonos did all that you claimed for it.

NEWPORT, R. I.

Horticultural Society Show.

Weather conditions conspired against the flower show of the Newport Horticultural Society at Newport Beach, September 3 and 4. The display was an unusually meritorious one.

One of the most noticeable displays of gladioli was made by C. M. Bugholt, gardener for Miss Fannie Foster, of seedlings grown on the estate. Three large blooms that exacted enthusiasm were a white, Miss Fannie Foster, awarded the society's silver medal; a pink, Mrs. General Rice, awarded a bronze medal, and a lemon variety, Miss Anna Bugholt, also awarded a bronze medal.

The dahlias of Joseph A. Nolet, of New Bedford, were excellent and Fred P. Webber, of Middletown, had some splendid dahlias and gladioli, that took a number of prizes. The first prize for centerpiece of dahlias was awarded to James Robertson, gardener for Mrs. T. O. Richardson.

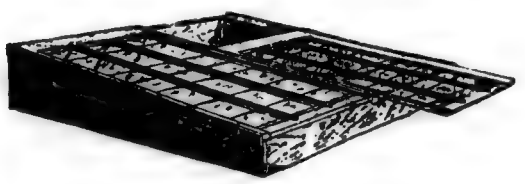
A seedling dahlia named Margaret Saltus, shown by J. S. Figueiredo, of New Bedford, received a first-class certificate of merit.

Joseph A. Nolet, of New Bedford, was awarded the society's silver medal for the best collection of dahlias and Fred P. Webber the bronze medal.

The special prize for vase of twelve blooms, one variety, cactus dahlias went to C. M. Bugholt; that for vase of twelve spikes of Gladiolus primulinus hybrids went to Fred P. Webber.

Various Notes.

Gibson Bros., 9 Malbone road, are making a big run on ferns for the house, offering Boston, Whitmanii and Scottii.



Mr. and Mrs. Carl Jurgens have gone to the White mountains for a brief stay.

W. H. M.

Manistee, Mich.—Ralph J. Southerton, recently of Highland Park, Ill., has purchased the greenhouses of Mr. Clarkson and is now located at 469 South Water street.

Pana, Ill.—Work has started on the greenhouses for Walter A. and Herbert Amling, of Maywood, Ill. The houses will be devoted exclusively to roses. The American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has the building contract.

Waterbury, Conn.—Ryan & Powers report that business has been quiet lately, but that all the florists are looking forward to a good trade the coming season. Prices have been higher this summer. Boston ferns are scarce in this vicinity.

Permanite

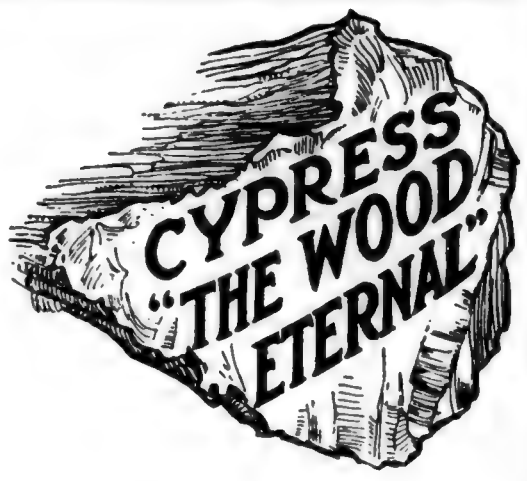
[Trade-mark registered, U. S Patent Office]

SOLD UNDER THE GOLDEN RULE OF A MONEY-BACK GUARANTEE

When you buy PERMANITE—you know you cannot go wrong because the results are guaranteed; but if for one reason or another you are not quite satisfied, you won't be out one single penny because the Garland guarantee protects you coming and going.

It's either satisfaction—100% service and satisfaction—or your money back if otherwise.

That's why the experienced Greenhouse Owner prefers to use PERMANITE because he knows PERMANITE is not alone the original, but after all, the most dependable and most economical Glazing Cement on the market—and he knows from past that it will do all—and more—than what we say it will.



A trial is all we ask—and just one trial will be sufficient to prove our claim to your utmost and everlasting satisfaction.

Yours for a tight house,

The Market.

The market has been crowded with good roses of late. It is seldom that the cuts are so heavy at this time or of such uniformly good quality. To move them the prices have been slaughtered. Orchids remain off the market, though there is some demand for them. Asters are plentiful, but few come under the term fancy; they sell for meager prices. Gladioli, which have been so fine all summer, are declining fast. Only a few each day show quality. There have been some dahlias, but of no substance. All of the outdoor flowers show the effects of the prolonged drought. Chrysanthemums have made their appearance, and while the Golden Glow which is coming in now is ordinary, there are reports of some fine blooms to come.

Various Notes.

The houses of the Cudahy Floral Co. are all ready for winter; the place houses roses only. Some of the new kinds, Premier and Columbia, are showing well, and heavy cuts of Shawyer and Killarney are being taken now. Mr. Scott has great confidence in some 5 and 6-year-old stock which is breaking freely and promises to yield heavily.

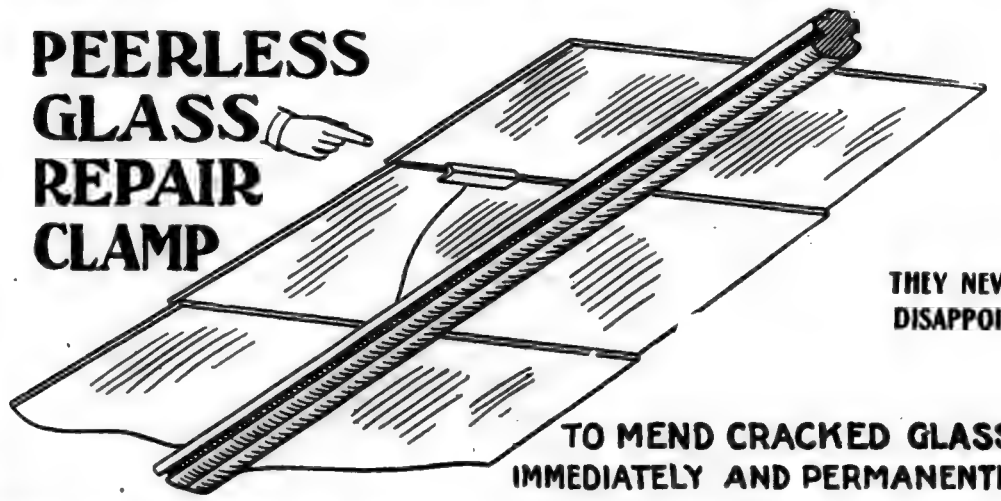
The C. C. Pollworth Co. has a wonderful showing of newly benched carnations, which are heavy, in good shape and look like a bumper crop early. A nice lot of poinsettias and cyclamens are coming on for Christmas.

Arthur Leidiger is home from a month's vacation. This week finds him quite a busy man at the state fair, where he is superintendent of the Horticulture building.

The Milwaukee Florists' Club held the regular monthly meeting Thursday, September 4.

The annual business meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association will be held at the Blatz hotel, Friday, September 12. In the evening there will be a banquet. An unusually large attendance is expected.

Monday, September 8, the Wisconsin state fair opened for a week of rivalry among the horticultural, agricultural and manufacturing producers of the state. The florists have a generous showing of plants in groups and cut flowers in design baskets and vases.



J. E. Matthewson, of Sheboygan, Wis., has been visiting in Milwaukee.

Herbert Hecht, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, called on the trade last week.

BULBS

Why are the Michigan grown bulbs better than Holland bulbs?
(1) No ocean trip to hurt the bulbs.
(2) The bulbs ripen better in Michigan than in Holland. Owing to the dry climate in Michigan, the bulbs shrink more but give you a better flower and are better for forcing and cheaper.

—and where your bars fasten to your wood gutter:

are they rotting off?

Are the nails rusted through?

Before you answer these questions, go out into your houses and examine them along the gutter line. You'll likely find a bar pulling away from the wooden gutter sill here and there and the glass getting loose.

But don't let that worry you — there's a way out.

You can buy AGMCO wood gutter bar clasps and without any trouble slip them over the end of your bars and screw them to the sill with galvanized screws.

Try this — they only cost 8 cents each with screws.

It's so very simple — and for a trifle o'nothing you have a near-new house.

How many do you want?

When do you want them?

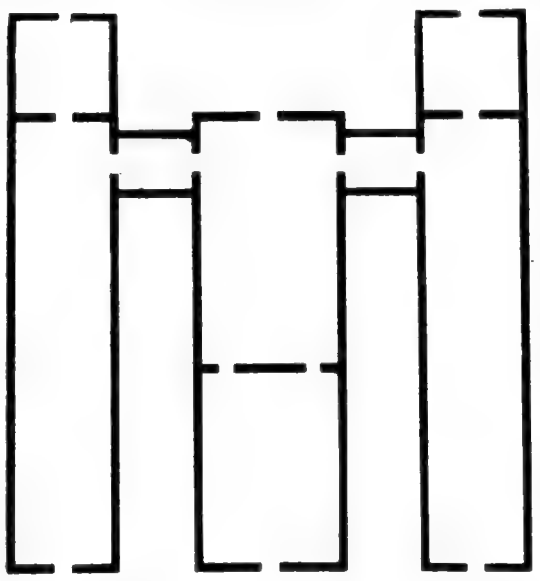
Greenhouse Builders



An Exceptionally Fine Greenhouse Group on the J. A. Allison Property at Indianapolis

When next you are in Indianapolis, take a ride out to the Allison estate, and see the greenhouses.

Unless we are very much mistaken, you will find a most interesting placing of the houses.

The architect with whom we co-operated certainly understood his job, as this glimpse through the pergola shows.

Further than that, he considered every little point that hinged on making that center house and two parallel houses the best possible for growing.

With artistic sense, he wanted an attractive, balanced arrangement. So the work room on one side was duplicated by a tool house on the other, as shown by the two small divisions on the plan.

If the plan interests you, we will gladly send you all particulars. Or if ready to talk over the building of a greenhouse of whatever size or sort, say when and where and we'll be there.

"We, the Judges—appointed to pass on the exhibits at the Convention in session in Detroit, respectfully submit the following report and recommendations:

"That a Certificate of Merit be awarded to the A. L. Randall Co. because of the care and attention with which its exhibit was made and the diversified character thereof."

That's not only the highest award in the power of the judges at an S. A. F. Convention, but it is An award any exhibitor would be proud to merit.

If you were one of the many hundreds of Florists who visited the now famous Randall Room at the Detroit Convention you came away with some conception of the wonderful variety and great size of Randall's stock of Florists' Supplies, but the best way to know the resources of this establishment is to visit the Chicago market. It will pay every florist to spend a day every now and then at Randall's, for here is

The World's Largest Stock of Florists' Supplies.

Randall's is first hands. Randall's actually manufactures in its own factories a large variety of merchandise, is distributor for other factories and is direct importer from Europe of such lines as cannot be better made at home. Randall's stock is so large, so varied, that its inspection never fails to afford new ideas of business possibilities for the retail Florist or Jobber, and the prices are so close they are seldom equaled and never beaten by anyone selling at a profit.

From a Buyer who left the selection to us.

"We wish to extend our hearty thanks to you for the quality of the baskets, together with the manner in which this carload order was taken care of. We are entirely pleased with this shipment and we hope that this is the beginning of a good business between us. The baskets are moving in good shape, and we hear compliments from all sides upon the complete selection.

"WALTER ARMACOST & CO.,
"Los Angeles, California."

This plainly shows the complete confidence reposed in us by the trade, a confidence which we have gained through the high quality of our goods and the high class service which we render at all times. Every transaction made by us must carry with it your entire satisfaction before we consider it complete.

The Randall Supply business has become the largest in America, but it would be still larger if more buyers came personally to market and saw the opportunities here afforded them.

It is high time orders were being placed for Autumn and Winter. The Florist who gets his goods now will pay no more, if as much, and next winter he will be pushing his selling when the other fellow is spending his time hunting for merchandise or waiting for it to come.

The Randall salesman in your territory will serve you well, but there is inspiration in a visit to Chicago, the Great Central Market.

SECURITY

Do you feel secure enough in your purchases of Supplies and Cut Flowers?

Even if you do feel secure, you owe it to yourself, Mr. Florist, to look into the matter and see clearly that you are getting the most for your money

The Boston Floral Supply Co. entertains a high respect for their competitors; yet, as a matter of business, we can scarcely hold back from stating our reasons for kindly asking you to investigate us thoroughly.

Our modern facilities, our manufacturing our own goods right on our own premises, and our working on the principle of a large volume of business with small profits, lead us to believe that we can save you from 25 to 33% on your purchases.

You want to remember that you buy direct from us, and in so doing you are eliminating the middleman's profit.

Hundreds of florists have asked themselves the question, "Why has the Boston Floral Supply Co. obtained such a high and enviable position among wholesale florists?" Some people say it is by advertising. Advertising has helped us; but only in a small way. The real reason for our success lies in selling the best goods at the lowest prices, and making it our business to maintain this central thought of the best goods and lowest prices at all times.

Our Traveling Men

We want you to feel when you come in contact with some of our traveling men—Mr. Herbert Sloane, Mr. Samuel Mann and Mr. Jack Feldman—that their services are at your entire disposal. We also want you to feel that when you have occasion to come to Boston our manager, Mr. Albert Strumph, will be glad to do anything in his power to make your stay pleasant. And what is more, you are in no way obligated to buy anything unless you feel like doing so.

Our Cut Flower and Evergreen Department

If you need any flowers at any time telephone or telegraph us at our expense. Tell us the train you desire your goods on and we will make every effort to get them on that train.

Our guarantee has always been "Satisfaction to Our Customers or Money Refunded." For our mutual advantage we ask you to place your orders with us for

The tribute of Thomas Griffin to Davey Tree Surgery

View of Harry Payne Whitney estate at Old Westbury, L. I.—Thomas Griffin, Superintendent

Old Westbury, L. I.

The Davey Tree Expert Co.,
Kent, Ohio

Gentlemen: Your request concerning conditions of the large trees treated on Mr. Whitney's estate I gladly accede to.

Considering the bad condition you discovered after you had started with the big ash, I certainly think you made a wonderfully good job of it. The same must be said of all the others you treated, for they are now looking well and the bark is healing nicely over the cavities.

I think it is a splendid achievement in Tree Surgery and gives you great credit. While watching the work of your men, I noticed how very careful they were, even to the smallest detail, and feel convinced that to insure success to such important work you must have a force of well-trained men who thoroughly understand their business.

Wishing you the success you deserve,

Very truly yours,
THOMAS GRIFFIN, Superintendent.

The saving of priceless trees is a matter of first importance on every estate. Davey Tree Surgery is a fulfillment of the maximum expectations of those who love and value trees. A careful examination of your trees will be made by appointment.

The first severe storm would doubtless have destroyed this valuable old ash. But Davey Tree Surgeons were called in time. They removed the decay, disinfected and waterproofed the cavity, braced the sides, and filled the interior with concrete by the sectional method, which allows for swaying and prevents cracking

IMPROVED IRIS INCREASE INCOME

During late years the varieties of tall bearded iris have so much improved that now this flower presents possibilities of good profits to the florist who grows outdoor stock. Here an authority indicates the best varieties and how they should be handled for most profitable results.

By WILLIAM A. PETERSON.

THE kind reception given my article in The Review on the herbaceous peony has prompted the request for a similar article on the profitable growing of the tall bearded iris. The formerly used term of German iris was never correct, as it included many forms not botanically called "germanica." The French name of fleur-de-lis is familiar to all.

The English, Spanish, Siberian and Japanese iris are, for a variety of reasons, eliminated from this discussion, as are all dwarf sorts which have stems too short for cut flower purposes.

In our study of this one great group of iris there are still possibilities for profit from the manufacture of face powder, perfumery, dyes and flavoring extracts, which we will leave to the chemist, confining ourselves to considering the iris from the florists' standpoint.

Shipping Season.

There is hardly anything grown that can be moved with as little regard to season as the iris. In the spring if a short plant is standing behind tall ones, move it forward any time, even when flowering, and it will go on the same as ever.

When moving iris, cut back the foliage to a height of four inches, as well as remove most of the fibrous roots. If the leaves are not thus trimmed when boxed for shipment, the plants require more space and may be injured by heating in transit.

The regular shipping season is after August 20, and until the leaf stalks are not over four inches in height in the spring, barring when the ground is frozen. In latter years much local transplanting of iris is done two weeks after they are through blooming in June.

To demonstrate the tenacity of life of an iris root, I have cut all the foliage off a rhizome, together with all the fibrous roots, about July 1 and placed this tulip-like root on a shelf in the house, without any moisture, and planted it outdoors two months later and it bloomed the following season.

Anyone can divide the rhizomes, as the heart roots are called, leaving one tuft of leaves to each section of root. To obtain the greatest number of divisions, the plants should be lifted every two years. If one is short of land, they can remain undisturbed for many years, but do not multiply so rapidly.

Plant in Well Drained Soil.

Plant in rows two and a half feet apart by ten inches between plants down the row. Never set them more than one and a half inches deep in the ground. Though considered an aquatic, they do best in a well drained location.

When a blooming stalk is cut and developed in the house all the buds, often nine in number, will open in succession even if it takes ten days to do so, provided the water is frequently changed and the stems shortened. The withered blooms must be snapped off before they begin to curl.

The local trade florists who cultivate anything outdoors can do no better than to grow iris. There are always some varieties at their best on Memorial day.

They are dependable perennial bloomers, come earlier than most annuals, increase rapidly, require but little water, thrive even in partial shade and poor soil and never need covering in winter.

No other flower has so many combinations of color, especially of the delicate and unusual shades, and the name of rainbow flower is most fitting.

They are absolutely hardy, as beautiful in form, texture and coloring as any orchid, and many are delightfully fragrant.

No Other Flower Combines so Many Colors as the Iris.

Tabulating Varieties.

The varieties of recent introduction so far surpass the old sorts that a modern list of best varieties is largely made of new names.

In tabulating the desirable varieties of tall bearded iris, it seemed unwise to try to educate the public up to a botanical classification, because it was often found to be totally at variance with the usual grouping by color.

For instance, we find botanically deep purples, like Kochii and germanica, lined up with neglectas like Archeveque, Monsignor and Black Prince, and pallidas like Caprice and Edouard Michel.

Two things were dominant in making the division by color. First the decided shades, like purple, violet, yellow and white, were separated. Second, so many desirable yellows and smoke or bronze sorts appeared that all not really yellow were put together in a class as bronze. The same condition prevailed among the violets; so we rather arbitrarily divided them into blue violet and pink violet. Finally came those not included with the others, having a white ground variously mottled or penciled, which, for want of a better name, we called "frilled." The universally known Madame Chereau belongs to this class.

When the standard or erect petals vary from the falls, or lower petals, the bloom is classified by the standards. This makes seven distinct groups as to color.

Next to consider is time of blooming, to obtain a well distributed list covering representatives of striking individuality over the greatest range of time.

Making a Master List.

As in our study of the peony, we have made a master list of irises. Here are first installed the absolutely unassailable varieties, then others are temporarily put into their respective sections until they finally demonstrate their fitness to remain or are superseded by similar, but more desirable sorts. A consensus of those studying together, assisted by the judgment of the large number of discriminating buyers who make their selections in the field, determines the most valuable. A test of five years is given to assure ample opportunity for full development. The annual record also includes the constitutional traits, and these share in settling which are to be carried.

Not more than seven kinds are wanted in a section, and less are preferable, to keep the maximum within fifty varieties. A preference is given to those whose standards and falls are of a general similar shade, as when massed they best carry out a decorative color scheme, though some representatives of 2-color effects, like Rhein Nixe and Walhalla, are retained.

How Selections Are Made.

This program works out as follows: Take Iris Cordelia, a choice, rich purple of the same shade and effect as Monsignor; when they are blooming side by side people always prefer Monsignor. We therefore, after growing Cordelia for five years, sold out our complete stock.

Albert Victor and other forms of pallidas are too similar to the stalwart dalmaticas and are not needed.

In my travels I have visited Goos & Koenemann in Germany, the originators of Iris Koenig, which is truly the king of irises, and no longer carry its paternal parent, Maori King, which has such a short stem. They have sent out too many yellow and brown combinations for our list, but Loreley is a gem and the fastest multiplier on my place. Varieties like these have put Sans Souci and Ossian out of the running. On account of its short stem and slow propagating, we prefer the sturdy Rhein Nixe to Clio.

The list of frilled sorts is culled from thirty different forms, all pleasing but not essential.

Upon growing Parc de Neuilly and Crepuscle side by side for years, so little difference was found that the freer bloomer was retained.

For lack of constitution, in our climate, the following desirable sorts have been dropped: Neglecta Black Prince, Oriflamme, Tamerlane, Diane and Ingeborg.

A delicate pastel shade like Cherubim soon bleaches in the field to white and gives way to Mrs. Alan Gray as a more enduring pink. Nuée d'Orage, the storm cloud from France, though true to its striking name, under another appellation would be passed unnoticed as a neutral in the search of prospects for the hall of fame.

The Master List.

The following classification represents my study up to date and of course omits varieties not yet thoroughly tested out.

In the brief descriptions given, "S" indicates the erect petals, or standards, "F" the drooping petals, or falls. The inches shown designate the height of bloom.

The varieties are listed in each section in their order of blooming, the earliest appearing at the head.

REDDISH PURPLE.

Kochii (germanica), 24 inches. S. and F. both of the deepest purple. Buds soot black. Often sold under the name of Black Prince.

Governor Hughes (Fryer seedling), 28 inches. S. deep violet tinged with red, F. still deeper shade. Large orange beard.

Caprice (pallida), 30 inches. S. and F. a delicate purple blending into a silky lavender at the base. Has a decided grape juice fragrance.

Parc de Neuilly (pallida), 28 inches. S. and F. a navy blue of reddish tinge, with an ever changing effect.

Edouard Michel (pallida), 32 inches. S. and F. unusual shade of rich reddish purple.

Monsignor (neglecta), 28 inches. S. and F. velvety purple crimson. A stately, massive and imposing variety.

BLUE VIOLET.

Walhalla (interregna), 24 inches. S. light violet, F. dark purple, showy, large flowers. A striking bicolor.

Gertrude (pallida), 34 inches. S. and F. same shade, rare violet blue. Peterson variety.

Perfection (neglecta), 30 inches. S. fresh lavender, flecked with deeper shade, F. rich velvety lavender, dark reflections. Bicolor. Has more blossoms on one stalk than any other sort.

Dalmatica (pallida), 44 inches. S. and F. delicate lavender with pink reflections. A pastel shade much sought for, with broad glaucous foliage.

Alcazar (squalens), 36 inches. S. blue violet, F. rich ruby slightly veined.

Violacea grandiflora (pallida), 32 inches. S. and F. fresh clear violet. Massive and blooms late.

PINK VIOLET.

Dorothee (germanica), 20 inches. S. and F. a robin's egg blue blending to a deep heliotrope.

Mrs. Alan Gray (pallida), 22 inches. S. and F. delicate orchid pink, all the same shade.

Lohengrin (pallida), 33 inches. S. and F. pink silvery mauve, shading nearly to white at the claw. A tall, strong grower, with wide leaves. Undoubtedly the most desirable of all the pallidas.

Isoline (squalens), 36 inches. The Imperial Mandarin. S. opalescent lilac three inches long, surmounting an apron of 3¾-inch mauve falls.

Her Majesty (pallida), 30 inches. S. pinkish violet tourmaline, F. deeper shade heavily veined. The most pink variety in the collection.

Queen Alexandra (squalens), 30 inches. S. lavender, F. pale purple, self-reliant in attitude.

BRONZE.

Prosper Laugier (squalens), 30 inches. S. fiery bronze, F. velvety ruby purple, like a pansy bloom.

Eldorado (squalens), 32 inches. S. fiery opalescent, F. old gold silhouetted with burnt purple.

Iris King (squalens), 28 inches. S. bronze yellow, F. large maroon edged yellow.

Quaker Lady (squalens), 36 inches. S. lilac mauve, F. deeper shade with old gold tinge. A modest though highly pleasing effect.

YELLOW.

Mrs. Neubronner (variegata), 28 inches. S. and F. rich, clear golden yellow, best solid yellow. Like giant daffodils.

Darius (variegata), 26 inches. S. lemon yellow, F. amethyst with deep veining and yellow margin.

Loreley (variegata), 30 inches. S. breast of a wild canary, F. creamy white with purple reticulations blending into a velvety purple mass near the ends.

Sherwin Wright (variegata), 28 inches. S. and F. rich golden yellow without markings or shadings.

WHITE.

Florentina (species), 26 inches. S. and F. pearly white, source of orris root perfume; quite fragrant.

Mrs. H. Darwin (amœna), 28 inches. S. and F. satin white with a little purple reticulation at the claw.

Fairy (plicata), 36 inches. S. and F. resemble sun-kissed snow outlined by the faint azure of the sky.

Rhein Nixe (amœna), 36 inches. S. pure white, F. raspberry purple, edged white. A most vigorous grower, always dependable. The only one of the white standards and purple falls worthy of being kept in our list.

La Neige (variegata), 26 inches. S. and F. a pure waxy white without any throat veinings.

FRILLED.

Ma Mie (plicata), 32 inches. S. and F. clear white, delicately frilled blue lavender.

Madame Chereau (plicata), 42 inches. S. and F. clear white with distinct frilled blue lavender edge.

Parisiana (plicata), 28 inches. S. lavender pink mottled all over, F. creamy white center heavily bordered with lavender pink.

Mercedes (plicata), 30 inches. S. purplish lilac shaded brown toward claw, F. ivory white ground veined and dotted purple.

Mary Garden (Farr), 28 inches. S. pale yellow flushed pale lavender, F. creamy white minutely dotted and veined maroon.

SOMETHING SPECIAL.

Taking for granted the standard of quality produced by the trade and required by the public, the Knoble Bros. Co., Cleveland, goes a step farther and in a recent newspaper advertisement in a local paper calls attention to "Proving Ability to Produce the Unusual." Since the requirement of a dollar's value for a dollar's patronage must be fulfilled by the florist who maintains the trade's standard, the firm which can bid for custom must, according to Knoble Bros. Co., give something special, in the way of service or ability. It is this firm's capacity for just that which the advertisement publishes, calling attention to special articles, whose prices are quoted, which may be noted in the reproduction of the advertisement on this page.

MOBILE AIDS SUNDAY CLOSING.

Flowers for Sunday funerals do not furnish the necessity for the florist's keeping open on that day which they once did. In many of the larger cities the unions of undertakers' employees have stopped funerals on Sunday, since they, like all other workers, want one free day in seven. Now the city of Mobile goes a step farther and prohibits burial on Sunday. A city ordinance just adopted imposes a fine of $100 for burial of the dead on that day. It is reported that the passage of the ordinance was the result of a petition to the city commission by ministers, undertakers and gravediggers.

HERE'S A BARGAIN.

In these days opportunities to get something at a cost no greater than before the war, and below real value, are rare indeed. But here's one:

At the Detroit convention the S. A. F. voted to increase the annual dues to $5 and the life membership fee to $50. The increase goes into effect January 1. In the meantime the bargain is available. The present life membership fee is $25 for those who hold annual membership. Non-members may obtain life membership for $30. After December 31 it will be $50 and $55 respectively. Life members pay no dues.

Anyone who wishes to take advantage of the present bargain rate may send application and remittance in care of The Review.

F. T. D. MAILS QUESTIONNAIRE.

In preparation for the convention of the F. T. D. at Buffalo October 14 and 15, Secretary Pochelon has sent out to members of the association a 4-page questionnaire, from the answers to which will be compiled figures and suggestions to be presented at the meeting.

Aside from this, Secretary Pochelon says, no program is arranged. The first page of the questionnaire announces the "Buffalo business meeting, Tuesday, October 14, and Wednesday, October 15, from 9 a. m. to 12 and from 1:30 p. m. to 6 o'clock," and bears the injunction, "Do not look for any entertainment or other events of pleasure at this meeting, but come here with your sleeves rolled up ready to go to work for your own benefit as well as for the entire F. T. D. service." So members may look forward to the interesting and active sessions of trade value that characterize F. T. D. gatherings.

LAMBERT'S LOCALS.

Miss A. M. Tierney, proprietor of the Bills Floral Co., of Davenport, Ia., is feeling fine as a result of her vacation of several weeks. After a prosperous season, she is making extensive repairs in the store and installing a refrigerating machine, the Lipton, capable of caring for all the refrigeration needed about the store, for both her display and storage. This long established firm is enjoying continued success under the management of Miss Tierney, who bought out the Bills Co. some years ago, when the Bills family retired and went to Florida to live.

A call at the Bocks' Flower Shop, Burlington, Ia., showed once again the inevitable results of close attention to business. This business has grown steadily under the management of Mrs. Joseph Bock and since her recent retirement has been sold, both range and store, to her son, Harry Bock, who is now making extensive improvements in the store. Besides adding to the refrigerator and display space, he is installing a Baker refrigerating plant in his basement, with a 4-horsepower machine, thereby cooling refrigerators and window. Mr. Bock is cutting some fine roses and a large number of early chrysanthemums and finds a ready sale for them.

Mrs. John Zaiser, with her two daughters, is running a well appointed flower stand in the Henry Drug Store, Burlington, Ia., in connection with the old established greenhouses, and is taking in her son as a partner, who will give his time to the growing, having had a long training under his father, the late John Zaiser. J. A. L.

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Chicago, Ill.—Creditors of the bankrupt firm of Pyfer & Olsem may secure a dividend of 4 or 5 cents on the dollar when the final settlement is made. The final report made by the Central Trust Co., trustee, shows $900.90 on hand, with a $375 attorneys' fee and the trustee's fee yet to be paid. The total liabilities approximate $9,500. Uncollectible bills amounting to $562.50 are listed by the trustee. Sidney C. Eastman, referee in bankruptcy, has sent out notices of a meeting October 16 at 10 a. m. in his office, 907 Monadnock block, Chicago, to hear the final report and declare the final dividend. At the same time will be heard the petition of the trustee to sell the open accounts mentioned above. The largest creditors are several Holland bulb firms.

Wilmington, Del.—A. S. Holland, 1211 Market street, who has been for four years with his brother, S. F. Holland, of Washington, D. C., is now starting in business for himself.

TRANSPORTING A PARK

BALTIMORE'S FLORAL FETE.

Beds Bodily Transplanted.

Baltimore, which has one of the greatest reputations as a convention city in the country, on the occasion of the centennial celebration of the Odd Fellows, which was held there during the last week, proceeded to welcome the vast throngs of visitors to the city by "Saying It with Flowers." Flowers were to be found in the most unlikely places and there is no room for doubt that they are far and away above bunting for such occasions. One of the things which have excluded plants from decorations of this kind in the past was the fact that almost everyone, florists as well as laymen, were of the opinion that nothing but potted plants could be used, and these the more expensive varieties, such as palms, but last week proved this to be altogether a myth. True, many crotons were used, but only because they are a good bedding plant, and they were in proportion to the number of alternantheras, blooming begonias, echeverias, agaves, etc. These floral decorations were all furnished by the city; so, of course, the commercial florist received no direct benefit, but think of the thousands of people from every state in the Union who stood about these displays and admired the insignia of the order worked out in bedding plants. If I had the knowledge and wit of Major O'Keefe, I might be able to tell you just what sort of advertising it was, but not possessing this, I can only say that hundreds of thousands got better acquainted with plants and recognized a new use for them. Let me say right here that Baltimore is going after the S. A. F. convention in 1921, and will show you "Say It with Flowers" in bedding plants in the center of the streets of the downtown districts.

How It Was Done.

May 15 there was planted in Druid Hill park a scheme of beds, consisting of a large round design bed in the center, the panels of which were worked out in alternantheras and echeverias, with, of course, the usual centerpiece. In each corner were four beds of crotons, which contained about 200 each from 6-inch pots. These corner beds were connected by borders filled with blooming begonias in the center and edged with red alternantheras. At each end in the center of the plot were the two insignia of the order, that is, the three links and I. O. O. F., with agaves in wide spaces between beds. This is the way this scheme of beds grew all summer in the park.

September 1 this entire scheme of beds was transplanted to the Court House plaza, the block of St. Paul street from Fayette to Lexington street, which is about 100 feet wide by 200 feet long, paved with wood blocks and used in ordinary times to park automobiles. The wood blocks were first treated to a heavy coat of tar, then a curb of wood five inches deep was laid. The space was filled with soil and sodded and the beds cut. Then a bed at a time was transplanted from the park to its counterpart on the plaza. The crotons came first. They had the original balls from the pots, but the roots they had made this summer were all exposed. Old man though I am in the business, I was skeptical and then next day, when the softer stock put in its appearance, I could not help thinking of my early training in gardening, for they were planting that stuff without the semblance of earth on the roots. It just goes to show how much our forefathers did not know.

The Feat Accomplished.

There has been planted in their present location in ten days some 50,000 ordinary bedding plants, such as are seen in any park, and it would take an expert to tell they had not been growing there all summer. There are other floral schemes at the original Odd Fellows' hall, on Gay street, and at the present hall, at Cathedral and Saratoga streets, but space will not permit a description. But the important point in all of this is what can be said with flowers.

In conclusion, a word about the man who designed and executed all of this. W. H. Kramer, head gardener at Druid Hill park, is a product of that park, having gone to work there as a boy, and has never worked anywhere else, receiving his training from such men as the late William Hamilton and George Talbott. The florists of his native city are proud of his success, for when it comes to bedding he is a wizard.

LOCK UP THE NICOTINE.

A dose of nicotine extract, administered by mistake for cough medicine, September 12 caused the sudden death of Francis Dick, aged 7 years, 4331 North Paulina street, Chicago. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death, but some day someone will be held for criminal carelessness for causing a death by leaving the insecticide outside lock and key.

WINTERICH SELLS OUT.

Christ Winterich has sold his greenhouses at Defiance, O., to W. S. Kircher, formerly of Attica, Ind., who took charge September 1.

The new owner is a friend of Mr. Winterich and has been carrying on a wholesale and retail business at Attica.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Kircher and family will occupy the Winterich home and will have complete ownership of the establishment. The business will be conducted in the same manner as before.

Mr. Winterich will spend a short time in Missouri, where he has other interests. He and his family will then spend the winter in Florida, returning in the spring to Defiance, where they will continue to make their home.

WISCONSIN STATE CONVENTION

WISCONSIN FLORISTS MEET.

First Annual Meeting at Milwaukee.

Friday, September 12, at 2 p. m., the Wisconsin State Florists' Association convened at the Blatz hotel, Milwaukee, to celebrate its first birthday.

President C. C. Pollworth presided. After the opening address, the roll call was taken and the minutes of the previous meeting, at Fond du Lac, read by the secretary, H. J. Seel, and approved. The secretary and the treasurer, Gust Rusch, read their reports and both were approved.

The meeting then came to unfinished business, which brought Richard Heintze, of Fond du Lac, to his feet. Mr. Heintze, who is a champion of law and order in all things, spoke for the adoption of a ruling by the association whereby the discounts and commissions given to agents and undertakers throughout the state should become standardized and suggested twenty per cent as a fair and equitable amount.

Twenty Per Cent Adopted.

An animated discussion ensued, and the question was threshed out from every angle. A motion was made and seconded that the association take some action on this question at once and not lay it over for another meeting. The vote showed but one dissenting voice, surely from a brave heart, and it was written on the records that the Wisconsin State Florists' Association adopts the rate of twenty per cent as the standard discount or commission allowed to dealers and agents outside the trade.

The matter of arranging a telegraph code for the use of association members, with the ultimate view of having it adopted by the F. T. D. and S. A. F. for universal use among florists, was referred back to the committee reporting on it for the purpose of drawing up such a code.

Secretary Seel spoke about the availability of advertising car cards to members of the association outside of Milwaukee.

Election of Officers.

When J. E. Matthewson was nominated for president he declined, but at length yielded when the members would put up no one to compete for the office. The other officers were filled also by unanimous vote. Those elected were as follows:

President—J. E. Matthewson, Sheboyan.

Vice-president — Richard Heintze, Fond du Lac.

Secretary—H. J. Seel, Milwaukee.

Treasurer—Gust J. Rusch, Milwaukee.

Director, three years—John Rindfleisch, Beloit; two years, J. E. T. Taylor, Oshkosh.

Sheboyan was selected for the next place of meeting. The date will be announced later, probably being in July.

The Banquet.

At the banquet given in the Blatz hotel at 6:30 p. m., C. C. Pollworth acted as toastmaster. The example of brevity set by the president-elect, J. E. Matthewson, was followed by those who were called upon to speak, including the out-of-state visitors and the leading figures of the local trade.

The Wisconsin State Florists' Association has a membership of 135, of whom twenty are S. A. F. members. During the coming year the association hopes to double its number and secure enough S. A. F. memberships to entitle it to a director on the board of the national society.

The Visitors.

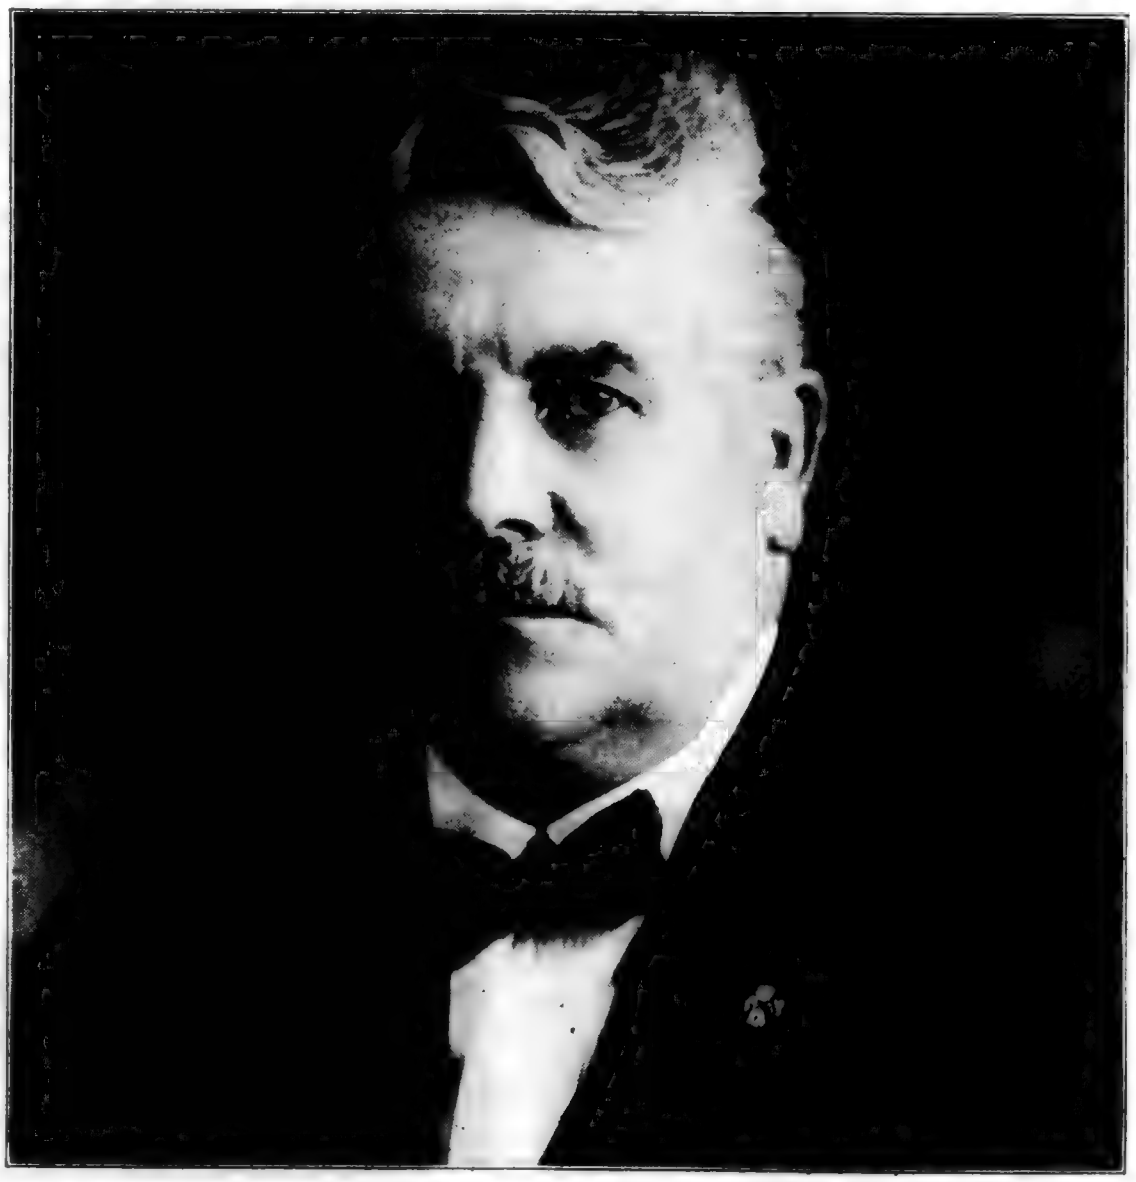
A large number of Milwaukee florists attended the meeting and banquet of the association, so that the room provided was filled to its capacity. The out-of-town visitors were as follows:

Baermann, Gus., North Milwaukee.
Blondey, G. O., New London.
Boelter, J. H., Appleton.
Brueggemann, A. R., North Milwaukee.
Brux, Rudolph, Racine.
Buchholz, Wm., Oshkosh.
Kennedy, W. A., Wauwatosa.
Kilner, F. R., Chicago, Ill.
Lassen, M. B., Racine.
Levenhagen, H. A., Manitowoc.
Longren, A. F., Chicago, Ill.
Marks, Joseph, Chicago, Ill.
Martin, A., Lake Geneva.
Matthewson, J. E., Sheboygan.
Nelson, J. V., Oshkosh.
Oehlenschlager, Chas., Oconomowoc.
Pampin, R. E., Oshkosh.
Phillip, M., Wausau.
Reinhardt, A., North Milwaukee.
Rindfleisch, John, Beloit.
Rugowski, John K., Manitowoc.
Schucht, W. G., Chilton.
Staeps, H., Elm Grove.
Taylor, J. E., Oshkosh.
Vatter, George, Marinette.
Zech, Allie, Chicago, Ill.

WISCONSIN STATE FAIR.

Throngs View Flower Display.

Saturday, September 13, saw the closing of the largest and most successful state fair Wisconsin ever had. From every point of view it excelled the previous fairs. The exhibits were larger and more numerous, the program offered more attractions and the attendance was phenomenal.



The Horticultural building, as usual, proved to be the most popular with the patrons, and, though it is a mammoth structure, the crowds it was called upon to handle, together with the numerous exhibits, kept it jammed throughout each day. It is estimated that 250,000 people passed through its aisles.

The Awards.

The prize-winners in the trade were as follows:

Collection of greenhouse plants, twenty-five varieties, covering at least fifty square feet—Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, first; C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, second; A. F. Kellner Co., Milwaukee, third; Edw. J. Hamme, Wauwatosa, fourth.

Display of palms, covering at least fifty square feet—A. F. Kellner Co., first; Holton & Hunkel Co., second; C. C. Pollworth Co., third.

TRANSPORTING A PARK

BALTIMORE'S FLORAL FETE.

Beds Bodily Transplanted.

Baltimore, which has one of the great est reputations as a convention city in the country, on the occasion of the cen tennial celebration of the Odd Fellows, which was held there during the last week, proceeded to welcome the vast throngs of visitors to the city by "Saying It with Flowers." Flowers were to be found in the most unlikely places and there is no room for doubt that they are far and away above bunt ing for such occasions. One of the things which have excluded plants from decora tions of this kind in the past was the fact that almost everyone, florists as well as laymen, were of the opinion that nothing but potted plants could be used, and these the more expensive varieties, such as palms, but last week proved this to be altogether a myth. True, many cro tons were used, but only because they are a good bedding plant, and they were in proportion to the number of alternantheras, blooming begonias, echeverias, agaves, etc. These floral decorations were all furnished by the city; so, of course, the commercial florist received no direct benefit, but think of the thousands of people from every state in the Union who stood about these displays and admired the insignia of the order worked out in bedding plants. GREETING FOR GENERAL

PERSHING AT PHILADELPHIA.

Florists Aid Reception.

The event of the week in Philadelphia was General Pershing's visit September 12. It was one of the most remarkable events in the history of Philadelphia. The man who led the nation's troops to victory in the cause of humanity and justice received an extraordinary welcome there, that came from the hearts of the people. General Pershing reached North Philadelphia at 10 o'clock in the morning. He was met by the governor, the mayor and other leading citizens. Escorted by the City Troop, he was motored through wide streets thronged with cheering crowds to Independence hall and to the Union club. At each place he made two brief addresses, one inside the building and the other outside. The general and his escort left for Washington at 12:30 p. m. It is with pride that I come to the part taken by the florists in this splendid reception. A booth of generous proportions erected on the Parkway at Twenty-second street was decorated with showy flowers and foliage by our florists, Charles H. Grakelow, J. Liddon Pennock and other leaders in our profession lending their personal aid. Here great quantities of roses and other flowers were distributed among the spectators, who showered the general with them as he passed. The street was strewn with flowers for a square. A half hour later not a flower was to be seen, so keen were the souvenir hunters.

Girls Present Flowers.

The prettiest scene of the day occurred at the point where the school children filled the big stands. Two little girls of 10 years, Marie S. Aeugle, daughter of George Aeugle, of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., and Hazel Matthews, niece of Charles H. Grakelow, presented the great general with a magnificent bouquet of Columbia roses.

At a signal the car stopped for a moment. The two little girls climbed on the running board and presented their gift. "These are for you, General Pershing," Marie said. "Yes, for you," chimed in Hazel. General Pershing was deeply touched. "God bless you, my children," he said, as he kissed them both, and the car was off. The card on the bouquet bore the words, "From the Philadelphia Florists."

A telephone message received Wednesday evening apprised J. J. Habermehl's Sons of the fact that they had just one day, Thursday, to get old Independence hall into gala attire for General Pershing's visit. They worked hard all day and well into the night. The result of their efforts was strongly apparent when the general arrived at the State house on Friday evening. The famous red carpet used on the most impressive occasions was laid from the street curb, across the sidewalk, up the steps, into the hall and right up to the Liberty bell, which the general gravely saluted. The columns were garlanded with beautifully made garlands of flowers and foilage, heavy in the center and tapering toward the ends. A real, live goddess of liberty of majestic mien stood on a platform to welcome the victor. The rooms were beautifully decorated with palms and ferns and autumn flowers. Phil.

RUGOWSKI SHOWS ASTERS.

At the meeting of the Wisconsin State Florists' Association at Milwaukee John K. Rugowski, of Manitowoc, exhibited some asters which he is growing for seed. They were large blooms, coming without branching on stems about eighteen inches long. One, a white, is called Pure Honor. The other, a pink, of firmer stem, is not named and Mr. Rugowski asked the members of the association to suggest a name for it.

The blooms were much admired and the meeting went so far as to place on record the statement that it was the finest aster the association had seen. Mr. Rugowski plans to distribute seed to the trade this fall and left for Chicago the day after the meeting to visit seed firms there in regard to it.

Mr. Rugowski has grown plants at Manitowoc for a number of years. Last spring he opened a seed store there.

SEVERE STORM HITS TEXAS.

Although Houston escaped without any damage whatever from the storm which caused such severe damage along the gulf coast, it is thought that the florists at Corpus Christi, W. H. Caldwell and D. E. Curtis, suffered heavily. At that point were the heaviest losses, the dead in that vicinity numbering over 300 and the financial total reaching $10,000,000. No news has been received from either of the two florists at Corpus Christi. R. C. Kerr.

South Bend, Ind.—Williams & Co., who are looking for a good season, report that it started with the largest wedding order in the history of the firm for September 17. It was the Carlisle wedding and the decorations were the most elaborate ever seen in South Bend.

Evanston, Ill.—September 16 John M. Fischer found the safe at the store of Fischer Bros., at 614 Dempster street, in the icebox, where burglars had blown it open with nitroglycerin during the night. Checks amounting to $200 and $50 in currency were gone. The safe-blowers had used gloves to prevent detection by finger prints.

NEWS FROM THE NATION'S SEAT

"SAY IT WITH FLOWERS" WEEK.

Albany Asks Washington.

Mr. Z. D. Blackistone,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Sir:—

Regarding the "Say It with Flowers" week, will you please advise me if it is necessary to hold same during the week you specify? We have early frosts here and as a rule flowers are scarce at that time; the early mums are not ready until about October 10.

Our club has taken it up with enthusiasm and we want to make it as big as possible. Kindly let me know how you intend to handle it in Washington.

Fred A. Danker.

Mr. Fred A. Danker,
Albany, N. Y.
Dear Sir:—

Replying to your favor, will say that the date of this "Say It with Flowers" week can best be decided according to the different locations. It is immaterial when you have it, but one of the ideas is to hurry up the business, so the sooner the better. We have decided to have ours the first week in November. I was in favor of an early date, when we would have dahlias and other outside stock. A majority, however, thought it best to make it the first week in November, as they figure we would make a better display with the flowers available at that time. I think that this, if taken up and pushed by the florists throughout the country, would give a big impetus to our business.

In regard to details, will say that we have decided on a poster about 20x30. We are having this lithographed and expect to display it in all the florists' windows and stores, in theaters and in a number of specialty shops around the city. We will also have pennants on our wagons. We are engaging a publicity man, who will write up articles on flowers and about our flower week and the "Say It with Flowers" propaganda in the local papers. We will also run a special line of newspaper advertising, inviting the public to the different flower shops during the flower week. In other words, during that week every florist in town proposes to have his shop decorated up especially, and to push flowers and floral propaganda for all it's worth. We will do everything but eat flowers.

In regard to finance, we have appointed a committee that has made a scale for the different florists and growers, according to the extent of their business. This we divide into three monthly payments, or allow them to pay all at a time, as suits their convenience.

This proposition is a pet hobby with me. I personally have never been able to notice that the florists' clubs throughout the country accomplished much. If they take up this proposition and work on it and make an annual thing of it, I believe the results of this alone will justify any club for being in existence.

Z. D. Blackistone, Pres.,
Florists' Club of Washington.

OUTLOOK BREEDS ENTHUSIASM.

The florists' trade in Washington is in a better shape than I have ever known it at this season. There will be ample stock this year without an oversupply, the demand is good and general with everyone, the prices are good without being prohibitive to the customer and the florists all are pulling together and working for our inaugural of this season's flower week.

Our club is increasing in membership and interest. Every member is enthusiastic about flowers. Florists everywhere should engage in a campaign of education—educate themselves, educate their assistants and then they will be better able to educate the public.

Better education means better service. Better service means better business. Better business means a smile that will not wear off and a good smile means a kind heart, a helping hand and more happiness for everyone.

Z. D. Blackistone.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business has been fair. Fancy stock is in greatest demand. Cattleyas are bringing $1.50 each and are scarce. Beauties are $6 per dozen. We are getting a fine lot of roses, such as Russell, Columbia, Premier, Hadley, Ophelia and Sunburst, in all grades. The market is overcrowded with outdoor flowers, such as Shasta daisies, dahlias, gladioli, phlox, gaillardias, marigolds, zinnias and delphinium. Plumosus has been arriving in poor condition from Florida, which makes fresh greens sell well.

Various Notes.

A. B. Price, "The Boxwood Man," at 912 Virginia avenue, who has made a specialty of cut boxwood foliage for eight years, will locate September 20 at 925 Virginia avenue, across the avenue from the present location. The property was bought some time ago. It contains about 5,000 feet of floor space, which, Mr. Price says, will enable him to take care of the business at a smaller labor cost. On account of labor conditions in the south, he will start shipments of cut boxwood September 25.

The S. S. Pennock Co. reports that the summer business has been far above the general average. Asters have sold well and there was not the usual slump in gladioli. They were of better quality than usual and all of them were well taken. Roses have been in fair demand, especially white ones for funeral work, but the better grades, such as Russell, have been the best sellers. Dahlias are arriving in quantity and it looks as though there would be an unusual cut of dahlias this year.

Henry Witt, at Anacostia, built two greenhouses, 25x175 and 28x175, last spring and has ordered for late fall one house, 32x140. A No. 10 Kroeschell boiler is going to heat this range. Mr. Witt grows carnations, sweet peas, chrysanthemums, snapdragons, primroses and some bulbous stock. He says a shortage of field-grown carnation plants on account of too small plants and shortage of help last winter is felt around Washington.

Albert Schnell, manager for the Leo Niessen Co., says that a recent tour of growers found unanimous opinion that last season was the best on record. All of them also anticipate a banner year ahead.

John Sharper, at Oxon Hill, Md., has erected two new houses, 30x130.

B. Winkler, Chevy Chase, Md., recently finished a house, 28x135 feet.

The Easter lily supply in and about Washington is expected to be small this coming season.

Alex. Sharper, at Suteland, Md., put up a house, 25x125 feet, this summer.

W. R. Gray, Oakton, Va., is expecting a good-sized shipment of valley pips from Germany, having been advised of their coming by his agents in New York. He is cutting some fine roses just now.

A. H. Newman, formerly in the employ of the Leo Niessen Co., has gone into the retail business with George Shaffer.

O. A. C. Oehmler and Alber Schnell are the committee appointed to get up a suitable poster for window display advertising "Say It with Flowers" week.

William F. Gude was on the reception committee to receive General Pershing. Adolph and W. F. Gude attended the triennial conclave at Philadelphia September 9 to 11 of the grand encampment of Knights Templar.

At the Anacostia range Gude Bros. Co. is growing largely carnations and roses. Some 50,000 chrysanthemums are about ready to come into bloom. The company is going in heavily on the new carnation, Democracy, of which they have about 20,000 plants. At the northeast range, Mt. Olivet and Blandensburgh road, carnations form the bulk of the crop, although one large house of sweet peas is showing up exceptionally well. The company has received and potted up at the Anacostia place 12,000 Harrisii lilies, which were received in fine shape.

Ernest F. Gude has just returned from a trip to St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago, where he went after the S. A. F. convention. Edgar, Edwin and Adolph Gude returned from the convention by way of Buffalo and New York city in the automobile. Granville Gude has just returned from Virginia beach, where he spent two weeks on the Atlantic ocean.

Adolph Gude, Sr., W. F. Gude, Will Sharper and Ernest and Granville Gude made a trip September 14 to White Marsh, Md., to visit Richard Vincent, Jr., going over by automobile.

Miss Nellie T. Breuninger, the bookkeeper of Gude Bros. Co., is visiting her sister, near Colorado Springs, Colo. She has been gone for three weeks and is expected back next week.

MARKET MEN MEET

VEGETABLE GROWERS MEET.

Officers Elected.

The greenhouse wing of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America was returned to the management of affairs in the election which took place at the concluding session of the eleventh annual convention, at Detroit, September 12. The new officers are:

President—E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, Ohio.

Vice-president—Louis F. Miller, Toledo, O.

Treasurer—H. J. Cheney, Grand Rapids, Mich.

Recording Secretary—Sam. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.

Field Secretary—C. W. Waid, Detroit, Mich.

Cincinnati was favored for the convention in 1920.

A Successful Meeting.

The meeting was one of the most successful in the history of the association, although not appreciably larger than several of its predecessors. The membership, according to the reports, was 469 at the close of the year, which is a small growth and led to the selection of Mr. Waid as field secretary, to carry the work of the association from one locality to another, to increase its usefulness and its membership.

The convention was all under one roof, that of the Hotel Statler, which, in its continuously overcrowded condition, offered poor accommodations for a trade's display. Among the 300 or more people from out of town who attended the convention, many carried order books, but only about twenty-five attempted any sort of an exhibit, and most of these were small. Two greenhouse building concerns, the John C. Moninger Co. and the Foley Mfg. Co., both of Chicago, made exhibits. The only seedsmen who made displays were the Everette R. Peacock Co., of Chicago, and Stokes Seed Farmers Co., Moorestown, N. J., the former putting up one of the most interesting exhibits thus far seen at these conventions. It included specimens from the trial grounds and the seeds from which they grew, with a demonstration of the seed testing methods employed, with full laboratory equipment. The booth was decorated and contained many photographs of the company's seed farms, trial grounds, branch stores, etc. Methods of packing onion sets for foreign and domestic shipment were shown. Six people were required to keep the display in operation.

The Greenhouse Section.

The interests in the association are divided into two groups, those with greenhouses and those without. In order to give more time to each, it has become the custom to hold sectional meetings, two or more being in progress at the same time. The program for the two special sessions of the greenhouse section was as follows:

"Better Crops for the Greenhouse," by Chairman H. F. Thompson.

"Past, Present and Future of Vegetable Forcing," by Frank Luce, Ashtabula, O.

"Vegetable Forcing at Cleveland, O.," by H. B. Richardson, Cleveland.

"Development of Vegetable Forcing at Toledo, O.," by George Bayer, Toledo, O.

"Experimental Work in the Greenhouses at the Ohio Experiment Station," by Professor W. J. Green, Wooster, O.

"Some Diseases of Greenhouse Crops and Their Control," by Professor A. D. Selby, Wooster, O.

In general the program, as published in full in The Review of August 28, was carried out with notable fidelity, the principal deviation being that the lake trip as guests of the local gardeners' organization was moved forward one day, to the afternoon of Wednesday, September 10, to avoid possible conflict with the annual banquet, held during the evening of September 11.

CARE OF CHRISTMAS PEPPERS.

Will you kindly tell me how to care for Christmas peppers, in regard to moisture, temperature, etc.?

L. N. B.—Ohio.

Give the plants plenty of sunshine, but do not spray overhead now, as it may cause damping. Keep the soil moist and give the plants a temperature of 55 degrees at night. C. W.

TOPPING SNAPDRAGONS.

Will you kindly tell me how to top snapdragons so as to have strong, fine stalks of bloom? L. N. B.—Ohio.

A great many growers blunder when topping snapdragons, pinching out the tops while quite soft. This causes them to break weakly and throw blind shoots. Let them run up and show flower; the wood is then firm and you can top them back with an assurance that they will break vigorously and throw flowers instead of blind shoots. It is best to pinch well back; I prefer to take young plants within three inches of the ground; then you are sure of a crop of stocky shoots from the bottoms of the plants. C. W.

Holland, Mich.—At the Ottawa county fair, held here September 9 to 12, the Twelfth Street Florists received first prize for the largest and choicest collection of potted plants, consisting of palms, ferns, begonias, araucarias and other fancy-leaved plants. The Central Park Florist received first prize for a beautiful anchor made of gladioli and asters. Both florists received a large number of prizes on their plants and cut flowers.

AMERICAN PHOENIX SEED

PALM SEED FROM MISSISSIPPI.

Phœnix Roebelenii Bearing.

Perhaps American enterprise will make home markets independent of the foreign supply of Phœnix Roebelenii seed. During the war the seeds of Phœnix Roebelenii were practically impossible to get. One large shipment from Bangkok was submarined somewhere in the Mediterranean. So the report that J. B. Adams & Sons, at Pass Christian, Miss., have succeeded in gathering seeds from two plants last year and this, is of unusual interest, particularly as it is the first instance of Phœnix Roebelenii seed being grown in America that has come to the notice of The Review.

During the last eight years this phœnix has gained an immense popularity in the United States. It is known as the pygmy phœnix; specimens 20 to 30 years old have stems not over two feet high. Watson, the Kew authority, says of it: "By far the smallest of all the many kinds of phœnix known, and it also is exceptional in the form of its stem and in the elegance and soft texture of its bright green leaves." He adds that it deserves to rank with Cocos Weddelliana.

All these facts have been recognized by the trade, and there has developed a large demand for the plants, principally for indoor use, but in California and some of the southern states Phœnix Roebelenii is reported in many gardens, though it grows well only when in rich, moist soil and in half shaded spots. In California it is grown both outdoors and under slat houses.

Seeds from Asia.

But the world's supply of seeds of Phœnix Roebelenii has so far come from a remote district in the northern part of Siam and the northwestern part of French Indo-China. The variety obtained its name from its discoverer, Charles Roebelen, whose business was collecting orchids. He found it native in the Laos region of Indo-China and he it was who first sent seeds to Europe. The district is a long way north of Bangkok, but so far as known all the seeds found their way out of the country through that port. The American supply came from London or Ghent.

Now from Mississippi.

Now the news comes from Pass Christian, Miss., that J. B. Adams & Sons have two plants bearing seed. Last year the firm gathered about 300 seeds, which they planted, and now have 275 young plants in 2-inch pots. This year both palms are bearing, and one of them has thousands of seeds just turning brown. When ripe some of this seed will be offered to the trade and the rest planted.

BLACK ROT ON DAHLIAS.

I am sending you under separate cover a few dahlias which are diseased. This infection of black streaks that you will see along the stem will stunt the plant and wilt the leaves. This is quite troublesome and causes considerable loss of blooms. Is it a fungus or insects? H. J. J.—Mo.

I do not think insects have anything to do with the trouble. This black stem rot is a disease the cause of which we are unable to understand. It is impossible to tell exactly what causes this and similar diseases, and the best means of combating them is careful and clean culture of the plants.

I would advise destroying not only the affected branch but also the tuber from which the diseased shoot came. This is the only safeguard against the spreading of the disease to the rest of the dahlia stock.

It would also be a good plan to change the planting ground for the dahlias next season and, after giving their present location a good dressing of air-slaked lime, use the space for some other crop for a year or two. M. P.

NAMES OF TWO PLANTS.

Under separate cover, I am sending you a package containing two plants, of which I wish to find out the names. C. F. P.—Kan.

The name of the green and golden-leaved shrub is Evonymus japonica aureo-variegata, and the colored-leaved plant is Amarantus tricolor. M. P.

DISEASED ASTER PLANTS.

What causes aster plants to have a black streak from the roots up the entire stalk, resulting in their death? Some reach maturity before they die and others die almost immediately. J. W. S.—O.

The cause of the trouble is a disease which becomes prevalent among aster plants during the wet season or when the plants are grown on the same land one year after another. It is useless to try to save the plants after they have become badly affected. The best thing to do is to pull them up and burn them.

Next season try the following treatment for your aster plants: Sow the seed a little later, so that the plants will not become hard and the roots wiry before they are planted outdoors. Do not plant outside before May 15. Give enough room between the plants so their growth will not cover the ground and exclude the sun and air. Use the hand cultivator frequently enough to keep a fine dust mulch on the ground at all times during the dry weather. Water only when absolutely necessary to prevent the plants from drying up. It is better to place more faith in the cultivator than in the hose. Give the plants an occasional spraying with Bordeaux mixture, especially in the early stages of their growth. M. P.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE—AND WHY

LARS PETER JENSEN.

DENMARK was responsible for the start in life of the new president of the National Association of Gardeners. He was born at Vindinge in 1869 and served his apprenticeship in gardening on an estate near Copenhagen and later at the commercial establishment of H. P. Beyer, Copenhagen, where he became head grower at the age of 20. Two years later he emigrated to the United States. After three years' work with his father in gardening and landscape work at Webster Groves, Mo., he took charge of the 5-acre Busch place and later of other grounds and estates. His organization activities have been large, including his efforts as director of the National Association of Gardeners, director of the American Association of Park Superintendents, founder and president of the St. Louis Association of Gardeners. Mr. Jensen was married in 1897 and has one son, Arthur George, born in 1899.

CLIMBER IS BUR CUCUMBER.

Under separate cover I am sending a sample of an annual climber that grows from ten to thirty feet high, is rapid in habit of growth, will cover a wall, fence or anything in a short time, seeds itself and is easily carried from year to year. It is not a hardy plant.

I have searched through Bailey's cyclopedia and other books trying to find the name, but am unable to do so. Will you give me the botanical as well as the common name? The plant is not the common wild cucumber, but I believe it belongs to the same family. B. G. C.—Minn.

The name of the plant you sent is Sicyos angulatus or bur cucumber. W. N. C.

Warren, Pa.—R. S. Holcomb, 122 Elm street, is constructing a greenhouse.

Eldora, Ia.—C. C. Wakeling has just returned from France after serving three years in the Canadian army in France, Belgium and Germany.

Orleans, France.—The firm of Levavasseur & Sons was dissolved September 1 and in future the establishment at Ussy will be managed by Norbert Levavasseur and that at Orleans by Ernest Levavasseur.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

There was a big oversupply of stock of all sorts on the market last week, especially roses and gladioli; in fact, as I looked at one particularly large lot of the latter, I made the remark that the street men would have a harvest and was told that even with their help the gladioli could not be handled. This I found later to be the case, for I saw quantities of them ready for the dump. Roses are fast improving in quality, but there are entirely too many for the demand, and when a buyer comes along these days he can afford to be particular and look over a large stock to select the best.

Dahlias are beginning to arrive in good supply, and there are some of fine quality to be seen. Asters are not so plentiful as they have been, but there is still plenty for the demand. There is an abundance of miscellaneous stock of all kinds. In greens, smilax is seldom seen on the market at this time, but a good supply of asparagus is always to be had. To sum up, there are perhaps more sales of stock than in past years; but there is more stock on the market than the retailer can handle at this season of the year, and the result is that a great deal goes to waste.

Club Meeting.

One of the liveliest meetings of the Florists' Club was held September 8. The following officers for the ensuing year were nominated: President, William F. Ekas; vice-president, Robert L. Graham, Jr.; secretary, Robert Tate Paterson; financial secretary, C. Harry Wagner; treasurer, Albert Fiedler, and librarian, C. M. Wagner. As there were no contests, the nominations are equivalent to election, but as the by-laws of the club require that officers shall be elected by ballot, on the next meeting night, the second Monday of October, the secretary will cast the vote of the club. This will not be done in a regular business meeting of the club, but at one of the grandest banquets this club has ever held.

This will be a Victory banquet, for so it is in every sense of the word, and as the florist in these days meditates on the last two years, he can rejoice not only with the country at large over the victory that has been won in France, but with his fellow members of the trade, for they have come through more than victorious, first through one of the hardest winters in history on short coal rations, and then, when every available man was in the service and help was not to be had, many of them were able to work only half their ranges; and yes, many of them, after years of faithful toil, were in a position to close down entirely, but, to their everlasting credit, there was not a man among them that showed a "yellow streak."

As the new president, who is now the chairman of the entertainment committee, William F. Ekas, and his co-workers, Robert L. Graham, Jr., C. M. Wagner and Isaac H. Moss, discussed the annual banquet, they each one felt that the club should do something large this year; that is, they wanted someone to share their joys with them, and I hope I am not telling secrets outside of the lodge when I say it was Mr. Ekas who first thought of the ladies, who were so ready to jump into the breach and fill the men's places. But this was not enough; a good speaker was wanted for the evening, and what was more natural than that the committee's first thought should be of the "silver-tongued orator of Philadelphia," Charles H. Grakelow? Many of our members have enjoyed the hospitality of the Philadelphia Club in the past, so it is now our turn to have them, their wives and sweethearts, with us. Then to the south of us is another club, which has among its membership some of the most wide-awake florists in the country—Washington. Thus it will be Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington—sounds like a newsboy crying his Sunday papers.

But who ever heard of florists getting together for pleasure only? There will be business, too, at this feast, for after the "eats," publicity is going to be the subject of the evening. As at Balshazzar's feast, there will be the handwriting on the wall, but instead of "Thou hast been weighed in the balances and found wanting" (this could not be said of any man who will be found at that table), on this occasion it will be the slogan that is so dear to every florist's heart, "Say It with Flowers."

Prof. S, B. King, of the Maryland Agricultural College, was on hand to boost the Hagerstown exhibition of the Maryland Horticultural Society, which will be held during the week of October 27.

Richard Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co., had on exhibition a fine vase of dahlias, among which were several especially fine ones, which everyone thought, at first glance, were King of Autumn, but on closer scrutiny it was found that they were not, for they had even better stems, better foliage, incurved petals and a deeper color. Mr. Vincent said it was a seedling of King of Autumn and could withstand anything, including wet weather and the beetles that are so destructive to some varieties, and was a free bloomer. Many of the boys wanted him to name it Richard Vincent, Jr.

John L. Wagner had a fine vase of Lady Hillingdon roses, with stems three feet long. This is a variety with which Mr. Wagner is especially successful. James De Groot had a fine display of gladioli. One that attracted special notice was Mrs. Francis King.

Then Thomas Stevenson, I. H. Moss, Fred Bauer, R. Vincent, Jr., and W. J. Johnston all told of their experiences at the Detroit convention. They all agreed it was the largest and best convention since the one held in Chicago.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Already there are whispers of the attractions to be offered to visitors at the S. A. F. convention at Cleveland in 1920.

Aaron M. Shive, of the Flick Floral Co., Fort Wayne, Ind., was topping the newly planted rose plants, on the theory that one top taken off now means three shoots later. Shawyer has been replaced to some extent by Columbia, which, with Ophelia and Premier, will be the main kinds grown the coming winter.

The Loveland Floral Co., Madison, Wis., observes that, owing to the scarcity of outdoor flowers and the smallness of the new cut of roses, the high prices necessary forbid a large profit, but so long as business continues as good as it has been, larger compensation later on is expected.

The Wisconsin state fair, at Milwaukee, as usual brought in a large crowd of sight-seers from the country towns. Aside from the horticultural exhibit at the grounds, the trade made especially attractive window displays, particularly the M. A. McKenney Co., the Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., William Zimmerman and J. M. Fox & Son. The Fox store being on two streets affords excellent opportunity for a fine setting.

James Matthewson, Sheboygan, Wis., was one of the judges at the state fair held at Milwaukee last week and reported that the drought sadly affected the exhibits of outdoor flowers, which have become an important factor at this annual event.

Noting a sign in the window of a barber shop, "Shaving without pain or whiskers cheerfully refunded," I. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, observed that there was more in this than appeared on the surface. In other words, the barber adopted this means of inspiring aspiring manhood to put confidence in his performance. "It is exactly so with us; once we get a line on a new purchaser on the same principle as the barber's, we are sure to hold him."

OBITUARY

Peter Risch.

Peter Risch, president of the Weiland-Risch Co., Chicago and Evanston, Ill., died at his home, 802 Monroe street, in the latter city, September 12, and was buried in St. Henry's cemetery September 15.

Mr. Risch was one of the oldest men in the trade in the Chicago section. He was born August 19, 1845, at Mertzig, in Luxembourg. As a boy he went to Paris, where he remained ten years, coming to America in 1870, when he was 25 years of age. He settled in Evanston in 1871 and, like many of the market gardeners in the north shore district, drifted into floriculture, building up a large range of glass and an extensive business. The firm of Weiland & Risch was established in 1898. The members were Mr. Risch, his son and his son-in-law. Affairs were conducted as a copartnership for twenty years, incorporation taking place January 1, 1918, as the Weiland-Risch Co., with Mr. Risch as president, but with his son, John P. Risch, and his son-in-law, J. P. (Champ) Weiland, as the active managers, the son being in charge of the store and Mr. Weiland in charge of the greenhouses.

Probably the Weiland & Risch establishment is best known to the trade for its success with the Killarney rose. The firm not only was the first in the west, but practically the first in the United States to appreciate this great rose at its real worth, and to find out how to handle it to best advantage. While Killarney had been tried out by several eastern growers before Weiland & Risch took it up, they had practically discarded it and its nation-wide dissemination was principally due to the success had with it at Evanston and to the advertising in The Review given it by Weiland & Risch.

Mrs. Risch predeceased her husband thirteen months. It was her death which broke his health. They had only two children, John P. Risch and Mrs. Catherine M. Weiland.

There was a large attendance at the funeral September 15, at St. Nicholas church, and the many floral pieces attested the high esteem in which Mr. Risch was held in the community.

Mrs. Hannah Gentemann.

Mrs. Hannah Gentemann, widow of the late C. F. W. Gentemann, died September 12 at Quincy, Ill. Mrs. Gentemann leaves seven children and is the mother of the members of the firm of Gentemann Bros., of Quincy. She and her husband founded the firm of Gentemann the Florist just fifty years ago. Now the firm name is Gentemann Bros. She was in good health up to the last and passed away at the age of 77 years.

Charles Heinz.

Charles Heinz, aged 70, died September 2 after an extended illness, of a complication of diseases, at Sharon, Pa. Mr. Heinz was born in Karlstadt, Bavaria, and moved to Pittsburgh in 1868, where he started in the florists' business with the late James Bradley. In 1869 he went to Sharon and two years later erected several greenhouses in North Sharon. Mr. Heinz was a member of the German Lutheran church and of the Protected Home Circle. Surviving are six sons, Harry, Fred, William and George, of Sharon; Edward, of Cleveland, and Carl, of Youngstown, O., and one daughter, Mrs. W. J. Gartside, at home in Sharon.

LINCOLN, NEB.

The Market.

The outlook seems to indicate a good supply of flowers for the coming fall and winter. Carnation plants have, however, been somewhat scarce with most of the florists.

State Fair Flower Exhibit.

The Nebraska State Horticultural Society held its fiftieth exhibition at Lincoln, September 1 to 5, in conjunction with the state fair, with the largest attendance in its history. September 3 the admissions for the day totaled 73,000.

The floral exhibit was excellent. There was an exceptionally fine display of Russell, Ophelia, Columbia, Premier and Hoosier Beauty roses by the Eiche Floral Co., of Lincoln. The fountain in the center of the flower building was handsomely decorated with water lilies and water hyacinths by Professor Grosshart, of the State University.
